INSIST HOOVER IS NO PACIFIST DESPITE CRITICS

Aids Explain on Eve of Arms Parley.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special]—One of the most interesting developments on the eve of the departure of the American delegation for the London arms conference is the effort being put forth to disabuse the public mind of any possible notion that the administration is pacifistic or pro-British or both.

Spokesmen for the administration are letting slip no opportunity to give circulation to assertions that President Hoover may be relied upon to accept no naval agreement at London which will render the United States relatively less capable of effective national defense than any other power.

Mr. Hoover, it is asserted, wants a reduction of naval armament all around, but will insist that the relative strength of the United States in comparison with other powers be preserved. Theoretically, this relative strength in capital ships is now parity with Great Britain and a 40 per cent excess over Japan.

Alarmed by Criticism.

It is evident that the administration has become alarmed by the undercurrent of criticism of the attitude of the Hoover administration on questions of national defense and the course taken by the President in the negotiations preliminary to the London conference. That Mr. Hoover is not a pacifist despite his Quaker upbringing is emphatically asserted by his defenders. They challenge production of a stronger statement on national defense than his utterance in his Armistice day speech, when he said:

"I am for adequate preparedness as a guaranty that no foreign soldier shall ever step upon the soil of our country."

No less indignantly is it denied that the President is pro-British. This is declared to be an echo of the political attacks on Mr. Hoover by Vice President Charles Curtis and other Republicans, who in fighting the nomination of Mr. Hoover at Kansas City, pictured him as more British than American as a result of his long residence in London. The accusation was revived in connection with criticism of the concessions Mr. Hoover has made to the British view point on the abolition of submarines.

Crusade on Rubber Monopoly.

At the risk of dignifying a silly insinuation with a denial, friends of the President say it would be just as easy by the same methods to prove him anti-British. There was, for example, the crusade when secretary of commerce against the British rubber monopoly for the destruction of which the British blame Mr. Hoover.

The growing tendency in and about the capitol to brand Mr. Hoover as a pacifist was the result of the reaction of his critics to his acts and utterances in connection with national defense policies. There was, for example, his postponement of the construction of three of the new cruisers authorized by the last congress. Only two have been started.

Following an announcement by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain that construction of two British cruisers was being postponed Mr. Hoover announced that the building of three of ours would be held up till after the London conference. This pleased the pacifists, but vexed the preparedness advocates. It was pointed out that the two cruisers Britain has held up are in excess of the 15 Mr. MacDonald has agreed to accept as the British quota of big cruisers while the three Mr. Hoover held up it will be necessary to build to attain parity with Britain, whatever the limit agreed upon.

Like Pacifist Propaganda.

Then one day Mr. Hoover gave vent to an utterance that sounded like an excerpt from the literature of the pacifist propagandist. He pictured America as a militarist nation in the following words:

"The American people should understand that current expenditure on strictly military activities of the army and navy constitutes the largest military budget of any nation in the world today and at a time when there is less real danger of extensive disturbance to peace than at any time in more than half a century."

At that the preparedness people boiled over with indignation. Not that they denied that the United States spends more than any other nation for

TRICKED ARMY TO SAVE DIAZ; DIES IN U. S. AT 83

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Alexander K. Coney, 83, for thirty years consul general for Mexico in San Francisco and Paris under the Porfiro Diaz régime, died suddenly today of influenza in his home at Alameda.

Coney's diplomatic career began in 1876 when as purser of the steamer City of Havana he outwitted a Mexican army to save the life of Porfiro Diaz, then a fugitive with $50,000 bounty on his head. Diaz, seeking to reënter Mexico and dethrone Lerdo, then dictator, boarded the City of Havana in New Orleans and was hidden by Coney.

When 1,200 of Lerdo's soldiers sought to find and execute Diaz, Coney threw a life preserver overboard and persuaded them that their quarry had leaped into the sea rather than be taken. A few days later Diaz escaped to shore and reëstablished himself as dictator of Mexico. In gratitude, he offered to give Coney the $50,000 he had lost by hiding him. Coney refused the money and Diaz appointed him consul general to Paris. He later was transferred to San Francisco, where he served until the overthrow of the Diaz government.

ZERO WEATHER IS PREDICTED FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

The mild weather Chicago has enjoyed the last several days will end abruptly with the arrival of a Canadian cold wave tomorrow, the government forecaster, J. R. Lloyd, predicted last night. Temperatures between 40 and 50 degrees, which made yesterday almost as balmy as April, will continue today and rain may fall this evening, Mr. Lloyd said. But the rain will be chilled to snow during the night and tomorrow morning will find the mercury around 10 degrees, he predicted. Zero weather is the prospect for tomorrow night and next day.

SWEETHEARTS OF 1880 WED IN YEAR 1930

Noblesville, Ind., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—A courtship interrupted here fifty years ago has culminated at last in marriage. Charles W. Sapp, then 25, sparked Jessie Stringman, 20. But they drifted apart, Sapp going west and marrying. Miss Stringman married Jaspar Leeman. Sapp's wife died and he returned here recently. Leeman died some time ago. Now each having attained three score and ten they have been married and have bought a farm near here.

Booze Runner Shot, Burned; Keys Are Clew

Seven keys on a brass chain and the engine number of an automobile were the clews by which the county highway police last night hoped to identify the body of a torch murder victim found early in the morning half sprawled in the blazing machine.

Flames shot high in the air as Sergt. Henry Siegel and Deputy Walter Remillard of the highway police came upon the car on a lonely road two miles east of Steger, which is in the southeast corner of Cook county.

The victim, supposedly a bootlegger, was a man about 25 years old. He had been shot through the head from the back, the bullet coming out of the forehead. On the right side of the face were ten gashes, which the police and coroner's physician believed had been made by blows from a revolver barrel.

Find Alcohol Cans.

The body was partly burned when the highway policemen reached the scene. As they were approaching they heard a series of dull explosions. After the fire died down they found in the car eight five gallon alcohol cans.

Seven of the cans had burst open from the heat, causing the explosions. One can had been opened and the contents presumably had been spilled over the slain man's body before the match was applied.

Deputy Remillard said the man wore coveralls of tan such as aviators wear.

The victim apparently had grappled with his slayers outside the car on the gravel road. For ten feet behind the car was a pool of blood. A few feet away lay a tan cap of heavy tweed. Beside the cap lay a pair of canvas gauntlets.

Gauntlets a Puzzle.

These gauntlets were something of a puzzle to the police. They lay neatly piled one on top of the other, and were weighted down with a steel arch supporter. This latter must have come from one of the man's shoes, which were missing. The coroner's physician said the feet of the victim indicated he had broken arches.

The cap had been purchased at the store of A. Starr Best in Chicago. Thus it made a third possible clew.

But the most important clews to his identity were the seven keys on the little brass chain. And most important of these was one bearing the inscription "DSL-678." This, the police said, was a key made by the Durand Steel Locker company of Aurora. Officials of that concern last night said they might be able to trace the locker to which that key belonged by inspecting their factory records.

Among the other keys were a house latchkey, a key to the burned automobile, two Yale lock keys, a small key to a padlock, and the key to a spare tire lock.

Auto Number Is Clew.

The Ford automobile bore no license plates, thus the engine number was the only means of tracing it. Ford officials said during the day its number—A-1362404—was one of a series sold last April. The car was a four door sedan model. Further efforts to trace the ownership of the machine were to be made today.

The head, shoulders and arms of the victim were burned to a crisp. It was impossible to recognize the features or tell what color the hair or eyes had been. The body was taken to the West End funeral home in Chicago Heights.

In the absence of an identification and with the cans of alcohol indicating that the victim probably was a bootlegger, the highway police were able only to speculate concerning motives for the murder. Liquor gang rivalry seemed to be the most plausible explanation.

KINGS STRUT AS SNOW PRINCESS CONQUERS ROME

Masses, Behind Wall of Guns, Greet Her.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

ROME, Jan. 5.—Marie José of Belgium, the blond princess of Laeken castle, in her artistic and operatic royal train, reached sunny Italy this morning. She arrived in Rome promptly at 10 o'clock at the beginning of a brilliant day, so brilliant that the Raphaelesque outlines of the Sabini mountains and the Alban hills were distinctly visible from the station.

Her prince charming, the handsome Crown Prince Humbert, heir to the Italian throne, to whom she will be married on Wednesday, was awaiting her on the station platform and, as the train came to a halt, musicians flourished forth with strains of "Brabanconne," the Belgian national anthem.

Greets Princess Secretly.

Prince Humbert, wearing his military uniform as colonel of the 92nd regiment of Italian infantry, entered his own royal and private coach, in which his future bride had traveled to Italy, and there followed a secret few seconds of reunion from which all eyes, even those of the royal parents, were excluded.

Presently Prince Humbert and Princess Marie José descended from the train. The princess' dress made her a vision of the snow country of the north. She was a symphony in white. She wore a small, close fitting white hat with a white aigrette and a low necked dull white satin afternoon dress, over which she wore a white coat with white fox collar and cuffs. Her arms were full of white lilacs, a gift of the prince.

After them King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, Crown Prince Leopold, the duke of Brabant, and his princess, Astrid, and the count of Flanders left the train. By this time the band was playing the Italian royal march. On the station platform to greet them was King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena and other princes and princesses of the Italian royal household. Inside the station and lining the platform the honor guard was drawn up against red damask decorations. It consisted of a special company of the second regiment of grenadiers which King Albert and King Victor Emmanuel reviewed. Both kings, in their military uniforms, looked grave and stern.

Royalty Clad in Savoy Blue.

The princesses and princes of Italy were wearing capes and dresses of Savoy blue. Queen Elizabeth of Belgium was dressed with outstanding elegance in a light beige colored ensemble and blue fox.

The other seventy members of the royal party then left the train. These included the king's and queen's retinue, about thirty valets, two doctors, and the chief of the Belgian secret police. The party passed from the station platform into the royal waiting room and this ended the first episode of the royal arrival.

In the royal waiting room were gathered members of the Italian court; the ambassador of Belgium; Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister; and his under secretary, Sig. Giunta, representing the Italian government; and Premier Benito Mussolini; and Augusto Turati, secretary of the Fascist party. Further presentations were made, and after this brief interlude the second episode of the arrival began.

Bayonets, Sabres, Lances Gleam.

From the waiting room the royal cortège issued into the Piazza Cincuescento under an elaborate canopy crowned with a gorgeous emblem, representing the united crowns of the Houses of Savoy and Brabant. In this square before the station a dazzling spectacle of multi-colored soldiery, some mounted and some afoot, forming a steel ring of glistening bayonets, sabres, and lances with pennants, with all the pomp and ceremony of ancient heraldry presenting itself. Outside this steel ring were the black masses of people, who seemed to be greatly impressed and who murmured rather than cheered.

The royal hosts and their guests entered fifteen open carriages of semi-state variety with coachmen and outriders in red livery and white wigs, and the drive to Quirinal palace through a forest of bristling steel began.

On the tops of houses and in every window were thousands of spectators anxious to get a glimpse of the princess. The hoary evergreen and oaks

Liquor Found on Five Coast Guard Vessels

New London, Conn., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Another general court martial of coast guardsmen loomed today following the discovery that liquor, supposedly stolen from the confiscated rum runner Flor del Mar, was found hidden on board five coast guard destroyers which returned to port today after a sea tour. It was reported that several members of the crews of the ships were sent to the brig as soon as they arrived here.

Lieutenant Commander Gordon T. Finley, commander of the destroyer Shaw, admitted contraband liquor was found on his vessel, hidden in the engine room and other parts of the vessel.

Five Vessels Involved.

It was quite definitely said, however, that at least 25 bottles of liquor had been discovered, and all five destroyers were involved. A sixth destroyer belonging to the fleet is still at sea.

A complete report of the newest coast guard scandal will be made tomorrow morning by Lieutenant Commander L. T. Chalker, chief of staff, when the general court martial of twenty-three coast guardsmen already accused of theft and intoxication will be resumed.

GUARD GETS DRUNK

Providence, R. I., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Brandishing two guns and staggering drunk, a guard stationed at the rum ship Black Duck in Pawtucket Cove today menaced a crowd collected to see the boat, on which three liquor smugglers were killed a week ago by coast guardsmen.

The guard, Edward L. Foley of the Boston office of the internal revenue service, fell heavily, breaking a bottle of whisky in an inside pocket and saturating his clothes with liquor.

When he arose he drew his service revolver and pointed it against the stomach of Gilbert Taylor of Pawtucket, then drew a smaller pistol. Taylor grasped the larger weapon and induced the guard to go to a shed close by.

Telephones for "Help."

From the shed, Foley phoned to Boston for reinforcements to help him protect the rum ship from a gang of "hi-jackers."

Taylor sent through another call explaining the real situation, and Thomas F. Finningan of the Boston customs office rushed to Providence.

Foley was suspended and ordered to report to his superiors tomorrow.

HUSBAND HELD AS BOMB SLAYER OF BRIDE AND 2

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The Seat Pleasant, Md., bombing, which caused the deaths of three persons, was believed to have been solved tonight with the arrest of Herman Brady, 22, husband of Mrs. Noami Hall Brady, the expectant mother to whom the bomb package was sent, and his brother, Leroy Brady, 24 years old.

After three hours of questioning the brothers were lodged tonight in the Upper Marlboro, Md., jail and although neither of them had confessed to the crime, the authorities in charge expressed the belief that the tragedy will be cleared up when they are grilled further. It developed that Mrs. Brady carried an insurance policy and the question of who was beneficiary was being investigated.

The bombing occurred on New Year's day when Mrs. Brady, an 18 year old bride, received a supposed gift at the home of her father. Members of the family gathered about her as she opened it. The package turned out to a powerful dynamite bomb which exploded as the lid was removed. Mrs. Brady was killed and two other members of the family, Samuel Hall, 19 months old, and Dorothy Hall, died later.

RIVER DISTRICT UNGUARDED AS FORCE IS CUT

The dismissal of 220 firemen was ordered yesterday by Fire Commissioner Goodrich. Immediate action was taken by retiring the three fireboats, valued at $350,000 each, from service and discharging the 75 men who had made up the crews.

Commissioner Goodrich explained that he had received an opinion from Corporation Counsel Ettelson allowing him no alternative in view of the city council's action in slashing the 1930 appropriation for the fire department.

Disband Four Companies.

Four companies will be disbanded today and the station houses which they occupied will stand vacant. The deserted stations will be at 7531 Dobson avenue, 1016 West Division street, 4436 North Knox avenue, and 13507 Indiana avenue.

Forty-five jobs will be saved in this manner. The saving of the 75 positions by eliminating the fire boats and the taking of one man each from 100 of the 122 engine companies and 52 hook and ladder companies will make up the total of 220 jobs cut from the rolls.

"The reduction has been planned in such a manner that the department will be weakened as little as is humanly possible," explained Commissioner Goodrich. "The fire boats were dispensed with because, while they are a most valuable aid in fire fighting, they were regarded as less necessary than the land companies."

Safety Forces Weakened.

The fire commissioner's action, following that of Police Commissioner Russell in discharging 473 policemen, left Chicago's police and fire departments in a dangerously weakened condition, authorities agreed last night. One of the expected results, an increase in burglaries and robberies, has already taken place, police records show, and it was predicted there will also be an early increase in fire insurance rates. The cost to the city was estimated at millions of dollars.

Grain elevators, lumber yards, oil plants and packing houses in the south side river district lay unprotected from a fire menace last night with the docking of the fireboats. Much of the property along the river cannot be reached by land fire companies, it was pointed out.

Captain Foresees Danger.

"If a fire hits one of those lumber yards there'll be nothing to do but let it burn," declared Capt. Thomas Farrell of one of the fireboats. "There are twenty grain elevators, two oil plants, three packing companies, and seven gas tanks in one district alone. Many of them have their only protection from the fire boats."

The three boats retired were the Graeme Stewart, Joseph Medill and the Illinois. Their combined cost to the city was more than $1,000,000. The Joseph Medill has been in service in South Chicago protecting millions of dollars' worth of property in the industrial district. The Graeme Stewart has been on duty in the downtown district and the Illinois has protected property as far south as the stockyards.

Three Boats Put in Slip.

The boats were placed in a slip at Throop and 31st streets and just enough steam kept in the boilers to keep them from freezing. At least two hours would be required to put them into service in case of emergency, the boat captains said.

"If there's a disaster, some one else must take the responsibility," said Fire Commissioner Goodrich. "I would have been personally liable for the pay of the men not appropriated for if they were kept on the rolls as well as subject to a penitentiary sentence for spending more than was appropriated.

"The aldermen were not speaking the truth when they said there was no need to fire any men immediately. The corporation counsel says I have nothing else to do."

Corrigan Points to Hazard.

Fire Marshal Corrigan declared that the hazard would be great. His department had previously been undermanned, he declared, and the new reduction will leave it in a skeleton state. Furthermore, insurance rates are sure to rise, he asserted.

No immediate raise in insurance rates is probable, according to insurance authorities. They indicated that they believed some emergency relief will be provided for the city before long and both police and fire departments returned to their former strength.

William F. Johnston, president of the Firemen's association, announced that the association had adopted a resolution protesting against the loss of 220 jobs and blaming city officials for allowing the financial crisis which caused the reduction. The resolution predicted that "a terrible calamity" would visit Chicago.

Nelson Blames Fairweather.

Ald. Oscar Nelson [30th], city administration floor leader, who has declared he will seek to have the city appeal to Gov. Emmerson for legislative relief in its financial crisis, blamed George O. Fairweather, assistant business manager of the University of Chicago and chairman of the county real estate valuation committee, for the trouble the city is in.

"Fairweather's manipulations led to the reassessment in which loop property valuations were cut $300,000,000," Nelson declared. "Fairweather represents the University of Chicago which, next to the Field estate, owns more loop property than any other institution. The man is the smoothest proposition I ever met."

Nelson predicted that dismissal of 194 persons from the health department will cripple Health Commissioner Kegel's staff and lay Chicago open to epidemics of typhoid and other diseases.

City Treasurer Gloomy.

City Treasurer Peterson submitted an annual report of his office revealing the methods by which the city has been enabled to get along without any income from taxes thus far. Money was obtained by borrowing on tax anticipation warrants and from the transit and other trust funds.

"The future looks bad," declared the treasurer. "If an attempt is made to collect both 1928 and 1929 taxes this year there will be much trouble. Many taxpayers who ordinarily find it difficult to pay have spent the money they set aside for last year's taxes and if called on now to pay for the two years at once will find it impossible to do so."

FEWER COPS; MORE CRIME

Five persons were shot, one of them probably fatally, in encounters with robbers yesterday and early this morning. A clubwomen's meeting, a back room poker party, ten filling stations, and a score of food shops were invaded by bandits. Holdups and thievery appeared on the increase, with fewer police to cope with the criminals since 473 patrolmen were dropped from the pay roll on Saturday night.

The most seriously wounded victim is Joseph Bondi, 20 years old, 5563 Adams street, the son of Antonio Bondi, a building contractor with offices at 747 North Austin boulevard. Young Bondi was shot in the abdomen when he resisted a robber who held him up in a garage at the rear of the Bondi home early this morning.

Finds His Son Shot.

The youth's parents were aroused from their sleep by the shot and a scream for help. The elder Bondi rushed to the garage and found his son lying on the floor with money scattered about him. He took the youth to the West Suburban hospital, where physicians operated at once in an effort to save his life.

Fifteen men were playing in or watching a poker game in the rear of Joseph Titlowski's tobacco shop, 1727 West 18th street, when four robbers blustered in. The leader fired a shot which ricocheted from the floor and struck John Yorka, 28, of 1759 West 18th street, in the hip. As Yorka began to moan the gunman growled: "Quit beefing, it's only a .22 bullet." The four searched all but Yorka and fled with approximately $800.

Guns Menace Women.

Twelve women belonging to Central lodge of the Polish Society of America were meeting in Pulaski hall, 1709 South Ashland avenue. Nearly $400 had been collected for maintenance of a room in St. Joseph's Home for the Aged when three unmasked men entered with drawn guns.

One guarded the exit, a second lined eleven of the women along a wall, and the third led the financial secretary, Miss Anna Riemer, to her desk, prodded her with a gun, and scooped up the cash when she unlocked the money drawer. The robbers strode out the door and fled in a brown flivver sedan without disturbing 200 children attending a Sunday school movie on the floor below.

Rob Cedar Street Apartment.

Jewelry valued at $1,500 to $2,000 was taken from the second floor apartment of Solomon H. Stix, an insurance agent, at 20 East Cedar street by a burglar who gained entrance through a window opening on a fire escape last night. Mr. Stix and his wife heard the thief ransacking a bedroom, but he had fled when they reached the room.

Two armed passengers held up James Bulos, 1152 Harrison street, a Yellow cab driver, and robbed him of $17 early this morning in front of 5035 North Winchester avenue.

Bandit Steals Narcotics.

An undersized, fidgety bandit posing as a narcotic agent, lured a drug clerk, Edward Quin, 9213 South Laflin street, to the prescription room of the Trumbo drug store, 9101 Beverly avenue, stripped the shelves of narcotics and forced Quin to accompany him in flight, pausing to take $50 from the cash register. They boarded a street car and rode a few blocks on the front platform until at a prod from the thief's gun, Quin got off.

Mrs. Frances Clita, 35 years old, was shot in the right leg and her husband, Louis, 43 years old, was wounded in the hip resisting two Negroes who tried to rob their delicatessen at 830 Townsend street. The Negroes fled without loot.

Resisting a six foot bandit, Matt Sherry, 35 years old, 2514 West 61st street, was beaten unconscious by a blackjack in a filling station of the Texas company at 6100 South Western avenue. The marauder fled without loot in a sedan which Sherry filled with fuel and oil before the holdup was attempted.

Edward Jansen, 1824 South Lotus avenue, a Bauer cab driver, was shot in the right hand while struggling with two armed robbers who accosted him at 25th street and Homan avenue. The gunmen got no money from Jansen.

Butcher Loses $1,000.

Stephen Martinet, owner of a meat market at 334 West 74th street, was bearing $1,000, his week's receipts, to his home at 4401 South Wells street, when an armed man robbed him of all he had a block from his home.

Four men surrounded John Hull, stage carpenter at the Great Northern theater, in front of his home, 3420 North Kilbourn avenue, and escaped in a car with Hull's weekly pay, $67.

Three bandits with pistols and a fourth with a sawed-off shotgun cowed Vito Rocconelli and five guests in his home, 1939 West Van Buren street, and escaped with $228.

The North Park hotel, 1936 North Clark street, was robbed of approximately $500 cash by an armed pair, who escaped in a sedan. Edward W. Fahey, 1427 Church street, Evanston, was the clerk on duty at the time.

Another clerk, Harry Arp, was held up in the Kenmore hotel, 4618 Kenmore avenue. The four robbers escaped with $70.

Rob Restaurant Cashier.

A Thompson restaurant at 220 South Clark street was visited by a robber, who held up the cashier, John Deckner, 2402 North Clark street, and got away with $40. Patrons remained unaware until after the robber escaped.

Harold Anderson, 25 years old, of San Diego, Cal., and Daniel Owens, 27, of St. Paul were captured by Detectives Roy Spence and William Hoban after a short pursuit from a tobacco shop at 933 West Van Buren street, which the men had broken into and robbed. Anderson surrendered when a bullet creased his scalp, while Owens was stopped by Hoban's flying tackle.

"The news of the police cut has attracted many thieves, gunmen, and low characters to Chicago," said Police Commissioner Russell as he scanned reports showing 59 robberies since Saturday morning. "These discharged men were, in a sense, the backbone of the force. All were young and, being probationary policemen, were eager to make good records."

BACK HOME

GEORGE E. HUCKINS.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—George E. Huckins of 26 per cent interest fame is seriously ill in a hospital here, it was announced by his physician today, shortly after he was returned from Excelsior Springs, Mo., to answer to a charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. It will be several days before he can be arraigned.

Huckins was met at the train this morning by Walter J. Barngrover and S. J. Milner, his attorneys, and was whisked away to the hospital in an automobile. No one was permitted to talk to him.

Huckins had been at Excelsior Springs since the middle of December when charges were filed against him here. His bond has been placed at $10,000.

County Attorney Carl Hendrickson is ready to make a demand on Gov. Kohler of Wisconsin for the return of Elmer S. Huckins, father of George, to stand trial with his son. His bond has been placed at $17,000. Huckins' attorneys indicated today that the case may be postponed. They declined to say whether the elderly "financier" would resist extradition.

New Freedom Bitter Pill To Women; Chivalry Gone

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The old fashioned girl who married a good provider, expecting him to support her for life, has passed out of the American picture and with her has gone the chivalry that once characterized the attitude of men toward the weaker sex.

This analysis of the new sex freedom era was made in a bulletin issued today "in behalf of America's wage earning women," by Miss Agnes L. Peterson, assistant director of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor.

What women have lost in gaining equal rights, she argued, they must be repaid in equal pay envelopes.

Old Chores Remain Despite New.

Marriage nowadays isn't what it used to be, according to the findings of the bureau, as set forth by Miss Peterson. As well as getting a job and helping win the family's bread, she averred, the modern woman still is shouldered with "the eternal cooking, dish washing, scrubbing, laundering, and care of dependents."

In a word, while securing equality she has traded her former secure economic position for a double burden and forfeited the chivalry of men in the bargain.

Sex Basis of Wages Unjust.

"The general custom of paying wages on the basis of sex not only is unjust, but complicates home problems for the women," said the bulletin. "It is a relic of the dark ages, when even many women failed to place an economic value on productive labor done in the home.

"Another age worn theoretical myth, of corresponding vintage and value, has reacted to the disadvantage of women, namely, that which is called chivalry in men and which tradition holds should protect women. The exact contrary is the true situation—that the double standard in wages and the absence of chivalry have resulted in the unscrupulous exploitation of the potential motherhood of the land.

Family Needs Often Pressing.

"The majority of employed women are at a great disadvantage, either because the needs of their families are so great that they do not dare to bargain about a job for fear of losing out altogether or because they are too young and inexperienced to choose or bargain among the jobs available."

Information from about 60,000 women, according to Miss Peterson, showed that more than half turned all their earnings over to the family. In another investigation covering four widely separated cities and 30,000 families it was ascertained that more than one-fifth of the women were the sole bread winners. In a study of 17,000 single women, it was also found that one in five were caring for a family without help from male relatives.

Sons Shirk Responsibility.

"Sons do not assume equal responsibility with daughters toward the parental home," the bulletin went on to point out. "It may be considered common knowledge that sons do not forego marriage and careers to anything like the extent that daughters who remain at home because of the needs of parents or younger sisters and brothers."

Declaring that the efforts of women to provide for the family "are often far more heroic than are some things officially regarded as heroism," Miss Peterson added the prophecy that their new economic status constitutes "a menace to their health and that of the race."

It is urgent, she declared, that the wide difference between the $12 and $15 in the pay envelope of the stenographer and shop girl and the $30 and $40 in that of men doing no more important work be eliminated.

"THE RED BOY" TO BE SOLD TO N. Y. ART COLLECTOR

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Sir Thomas Lawrence's famous painting, "The Red Boy," is about to be sold for a very high figure to a New York collector, it was learned tonight.

According to the Daily Mail, negotiations for the sale of the picture has been in progress for several days between an American dealer and representatives of the earl of Dunham, its present owner. Definite word from the United States is expected hourly.

"The Red Boy" is more correctly entitled "Master Lambton" and shows a small boy in a velvet costume sitting on a rock overlooking a landscape. The picture is said to be worth $1,000,000. Last August the earl of Dunham refused $750,000 for it.

HIT AND RUN CAR TRACED; GIRL AND COMPANION HELD

Michael Crowe, former owner of the Peep o' Day roadhouse, was being held yesterday at the Summerdale police station, and Miss Florence Torrey, 7219 North Paulina street, was held at the detective bureau, while the police were investigating a probably fatal automobile accident in which a car owned by Crowe figured.

No charge has been placed against either, pending the outcome of the injury to John Shea, 45 years old, 1331 Granville avenue, who was run down by a hit and run motorist at Ardmore avenue and Broadway on Saturday. Shea, a watchman, is in the Rogers Park hospital and is not expected to live.

Two Identify Auto.

The automobile which hit Shea crashed into another in which Bernard Camden, 6317 Lakewood avenue, and Francis L. Daily, 6256 Winthrop avenue, were riding and then sped away. Camden and Daily took Shea to the hospital and when Crowe's car was found later standing in front of the Birchmont hotel at Greenview and Birchwood avenues they identified it as the machine which struck Shea. Crowe was arrested in his room at the hotel with Miss Torrey, in whose name the license for the automobile was issued. She said she did not own the car but had permitted Crowe to obtain the license in her name.

Miss Torrey was fined $100 last March when she drove the same automobile into the foundations of a house at 7430 North Paulina street. She admitted that she had been drinking at the time.

Shea's Brother Aids Inquiry.

Policeman George Meinhordt of the Summerdale station, who investigated Saturday's accident, said two witnesses, whose names he withheld, had identified Crowe as the driver who struck Shea and that he would be charged with murder if Shea died of his injuries. Working with Meinhordt on the case was Shea's brother, Walter, a probationary policeman who was one of the 473 dismissed two days ago.

John P. Goebel, 59 years old, 736 North Lorel avenue, died yesterday at the Highland Park hospital of internal injuries received on Saturday night when the automobile in which he was riding skidded and turned over at Waukegan road and Osterman avenue in Deerfield. Mrs. Goebel, 56 years old, is in the hospital suffering from internal juries and may die.

With no deaths reported in Cook county yesterday the motor toll for 1930 remained at 10.

Speeding Car Hits Bridge Abutment; 2 Men Killed

Robinson, Ill., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Two men were killed and a third possibly fatally hurt, while a fourth escaped almost unhurt, late today, when their sedan crashed at high speed into a concrete bridge abutment over a creek near here. The dead were Ralph Beaubert, 23, and Randall Goodwin, 21, both of Robinson. William Deckard, also of Robinson, is near death. The man who escaped is Harold Harrison.

AVOID HOSTILE OUTBREAK AGAINST RUBIO

COUNTY EMPLOYES MAY NOT GET PAY UNTIL AFTER FEB. 6

Cook county employés will have no pay day today, and their next pay checks may not reach them until after Feb. 6. This was revealed last night by Deputy County Controller William J. Graham upon the eve of a county board meeting today at which tangles in the latest county warrant ordinance will be considered.

Lawyers for some of the banks which are expected to purchase the new tax anticipation warrants, are reported to have discovered flaws in the drawing of the ordinance and are expected to demand that these be removed. The lawyers will present their case at the board meeting today.

If the opinions of these lawyers prevail, the matter of getting the pay checks for the county employés will have to be gone over again, Mr. Graham said. A balance of only $109,000 was left in the corporate fund when the county closed its books on Dec. 31. Total revenues come to about $250,000 a month, while Cook county's pay rolls total about $900,000 a month, making it necessary to issue the warrants as soon as possible.

SLAIN IN DICE GAME.

Harry Kokomo, colored, 25 years old, was stabbed to death with a butcher knife yesterday during a quarrel over a dice game in his flat at 3208 South Wabash avenue. Martin Johnson, 2829 Calumet avenue; John Stocker, 911 Townsend street, and James Little, 2208 South Wabash avenue, all Negroes, were arrested.

FEAR RADICALS, CANCEL MEXICAN RALLY FOR RUBIO

Fear that radicals would organize a demonstration against President Elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico caused the Mexican consul, Rafael Aveleyra, to cancel arrangements for a meeting of Chicago Mexicans in the Ashland Boulevard auditorium yesterday afternoon.

Without any previous public announcement, a meeting of members of the Mexican colony was held last night in the Blackstone hotel before President Elect Rubio's departure for Knasas City. More than 300 persons attended the meeting, most of whom were invited by telephone by the consul and his friends.

A small group of Mexicans waited in the afternoon before the entrance to the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, hoping President Elect Rubio would arrive, despite a placard, written in Spanish, to the effect that on account of an attempt on the part of some radical elements to stage a demonstration the meeting had been called off.

Among the speakers at the reception in the hotel were President Elect Rubio; Dr. Manuel Puig y Cassaurano, governor of the federal district of Mexico and former minister of education; Señor Aveleyra, the consul; and Adolfo Dominguez, vice consul.

The president elect and his party left at 11 o'clock last night on the Santa Fé for Kansas City, where they plan to remain today, continuing to the Grand canyon and to San Diego, Cal.

Lookout Asleep, Raiders Seize 23 in Gaming Den

Alex Jackson, colored, fell asleep at his post behind a door in the basement of the Ajax club at 1929 Asbury avenue, Evanston, yesterday, and as a result the Evanston police walked in and arrested five white men and eighteen Negroes in the first black and tan gambling house discovered in Evanston. Richard Lee, colored, was fined $50 on a charge of running a gambling house and the others, who were found hiding in closets and under beds, were fined $1 each by Justice Harry H. Porter.

BITTEN BY TARANTULA IN FRUIT.

Martin Dott, 16 years old, 8115 South Carpenter street, was recovering yesterday from an operation on his right hand performed on Saturday after he had been bitten by a tarantula hidden in a bunch of bananas which he was arranging in a window of a National Tea company store at 6504 South Halsted street.

ILLINOIS U. BOY SLAYS FATHER, WOUNDS MOTHER

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Allan R. Schumm, 17 year old freshman at the University of Illinois, early this morning, killed his father, William Schumm, 42, and shot his mother, Mrs. Fayette Schumm, 40, at their home here. Police believe he was suffering from a temporary mental derangement, caused by over absorption in his studies.

His father was manager for Thompson, Mitchell, Thompson and Young, a law firm, and was a Shriner and member of Cache Masonic lodge.

Young Schumm returned home about 2 a. m. Sunday from a party at the home of a girl friend, Miss Elsa Winkler, 16, and summoned his parents, who were in bed, to the living room to ask them if they believed in God.

Command to Pray Ignored.

"Certainly," replied the father. "I'm a Mason. Naturally, I believe there is a Supreme Being."

"Then pray," commanded the youth.

The parents looked puzzled, but did not comply. The boy drew a pistol and began shooting.

His father staggered to the hallway and fell dead in front of the bathroom door. The mother ran into the kitchen, followed by her son.

He pressed the pistol against her as she sought shelter in a closet. She wrested the weapon from him and pulled the trigger three times to empty the chambers. Then she tossed the pistol under the kitchen range and ran upstairs to the apartment of Mrs. Viola Blum, where it was discovered she had been shot twice in the right hip.

Queer Conduct Reported.

Young Schumm later told police that he had been obsessed with a desire to kill and had intended to kill his parents and any one else who entered the room.

At St. Anthony's hospital, his mother said the youth had been acting queer lately, and shown a strange interest in religious beliefs of his acquaintances.

Roy A. Burch, a family friend, said the boy has been taking a heavy course at the university, preparing to enter the medical school. He was graduated from Cleveland High school last spring as an honor student. He was particularly interested in mathematics and languages, and was president of his high school French club. Exceptionally quiet, studious and polite, Burch said, the boy neither smoked nor drank.

Phoned Friend and Left.

After his mother had fled from the home, young Schumm called Burch on the telephone and told him what he had done. He asked Burch to call a doctor. Then, leaving the door open and the lights burning so that the doctor could get in, he got in his father's automobile and drove out on the free bridge, where he tossed the pistol, which he had retrieved from under the kitchen stove, into the Mississippi river.

He had borrowed the pistol Saturday afternoon from Miss Winkler on the pretext that he wanted to practice shooting in a quarry.

After disposing of the weapon he drove to Burch's home, where Mrs. Burch admitted him and persuaded him to wait until police arrived to arrest him. He was questioned at the mounted police station and placed in the observation ward at the city hospital.

Immediately on receiving the phone call from young Schumm, Burch hurried to the Schumm home and summoned police.

Considered a Model Student.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Allan Schumm, who shot and killed his father and seriously wounded his mother at St. Louis today, was considered a "model" student by classmates and members of the faculty at the University of Illinois.

Allan and his brother, Arthur, a senior, occupied adjoining rooms in Newman hall. Allan, however, shared his quarters with Howard Frick of Marion, Ill., a junior.

SENATOR ROBINSON HITS AT CRITICS OF U. S. IN WORLD COURT

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Answering, one by one, the objections of those who oppose the entry of the United States into the world court for international justice, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic floor leader of the senate, in an address here tonight, replied to critics of the court. He declared that the United States should and must adhere to the court under the terms of the Root formula, if we are to fulfill our necessary international obligations.

Senator Robinson declared America owed some consideration "to the opinion of mankind, which is disposed to mistrust our aloofness as evidence of selfish and aggressive purposes," and warned that such mistrust would make difficult, if not impossible, future reduction of military armaments and would negative the Kellogg-Briand treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy.

MINISTER HUNTS SIN TO ITS LAIR; IT COSTS HIM $40

Reports that vice flourishes in the vicinity of 14th and State streets sent the Rev. O. G. Davis, 3407 Van Buren street, field secretary of the Illinois Vigilance association, into the neighborhood last night in search of evidence to substantiate the rumors which had reached the ears of the Rev. Philip Yarrow, head of the association.

Mr. Davis alighted from a street car and assumed the rôle of a drunken man, staggering as he walked down the street. Two Negroes approached him and asked him if he had a drink.

"No, I haven't," Mr. Davis replied, simulating a thick tongue and a slight hiccough, "Do you know where we can get one?"

"Sure, we'll get you a drink," one replied. "Do you want a girl, too?"

"Yeh, I'll take the whole works," said Mr. Davis.

The Negroes led him into a hallway and gave Mr. Davis "the works." One of them threw his arms around the investigator's neck and the other extracted $40 from his pocket. At the South State street police station Sergt. Phil Murphy loaned Mr. Davis a dollar to take him home.

WET, DRY ISSUE MAY BE THRUST UPON CONGRESS

Split in Coalition Forces Not Unlikely.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Prohibition has added new uncertainties to the chaos already existing in congress.

The wet and dry issue, which flared up during the holidays, lurks in the background as a trouble maker as the senate and house prepare to resume sessions tomorrow after a two weeks' recess.

Senate leaders, who thought they had disposed of most of the annoying side issues which hampered consideration of the tariff, admit they are completely up in the air as to what may now happen. They fear continual outbursts over the liquor question which will interfere with the carrying out of the legislative program.

Prohibition discussions may bring a shifting of factional lineups and an upsetting of the coalition of Democrats and radical Republicans which has ruled the senate during much of the tariff debate.

Borah at Odds with Many.

Senator William E. Borah [Rep. Idaho], who has been one of the leaders of the coalition, now finds himself at odds on prohibition policies with many of those who have been associated with him in the tariff fights.

The dry senators for the most part reflect the sentiment of the Anti-Saloon league and other dry organizations—the organizations that have had a hand in building up the prohibition enforcement machinery—and they resent the assertion of Senator Borah that prohibition will never be enforced with the present personnel in the prohibition bureau and the department of justice.

It is no secret that Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran was named to his present post during the Coolidge administration at the time of the Andrews-Haynes shakeup, after being approved by the Anti-Saloon league, and that Attorney General William D. Mitchell was indorsed by the league before President Hoover gave him preference over his former close associate, William J. Donovan, a wet.

Many of the minor officials who have to do with prohibition enforcement also have the backing of the Anti-Saloon league.

Rally for Administration.

Hence Senator Borah's sweeping attack upon the prohibition enforcers is driving the drys in the senate, including those hostile to President Hoover on other matters, to the support of the administration.

It would not be surprising if the senate, which under the rule of the Democratic-radical coalition has come to be known as anti-Hoover, shows itself to be decidedly pro-administration on the prohibition issue.

Although Senator Borah has figured conspicuously as a champion of prohibition enforcement, he has long been at odds with the Anti-Saloon league. While neither the Idaho senator nor officials of the league have cared to tell publicly what they thought of the other there has been no love lost between them. The league officials have complained that Senator Borah could never be depended upon to help them in campaigns and he has usually developed his own policies without reference to their programs.

Senator Borah has made it plain that his interest in prohibition enforcement is primarily because of his belief that disrespect for any provision of the constitution tends toward destruction of constitutional government rather than because of any zeal for prohibition as such.

Without League's Approval.

The reported offer which President Hoover made to Senator Borah of the attorney generalship before it was tendered to Mr. Mitchell and which the Idahoan is understood to have declined, was without the approval of the Anti-Saloon league.

Senator Borah, although he was one of the chief campaigners for President Hoover last year, is likely to be more or less opposed to as many as a half dozen different administration policies during the life of the present congress. Senator Borah, who does not admit an actual break with the President and who frequently is a White House guest, first kicked over the traces on agricultural relief legislation. He was one of the leaders in the unsuccessful fight for the export debenture provision. He then insisted that there should be no increases in duties on industrial products, although the President had advocated such boosts as were urgently needed.

The administration tax reduction program did not entirely suit Senator Borah and the President's proposal for a commission to investigate Haitian affairs also has failed to please him. Senator Borah is prepared to lead the opposition to acceptance of the modified reservations to the world court protocol as recommended by the President.

Question May Bob Up.

Prohibition may bob up in the senate at the outset of tomorrow's session. The resolution of Senator W. J. Harris [Dem., Ga.] to demand a report from the President's law enforcement commission will come up for action unless administration leaders succeed in sidetracking it. This may start a discussion which may easily run all day, interfering with the plan to return to the tariff bill as soon as the morning business hour is over.

Senator Borah is willing to defer discussion of the prohibition issue until after the tariff bill is passed, which the leaders hope will be by the middle of February. However, the Idaho senator says if a prohibition debate is precipitated he is prepared to take a hand, and promises to furnish an exposé of laxity in law enforcement by as many as seventeen district attorneys. Senator S. W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.] is ready with a prohibition speech which will include a new demand for the resignation of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and other officials who have to do with enforcement of dry laws.

Resolution in Committee.

In the house matters are pending which are certain to bring the prohibition issue to the front at an early date, although the leaders there are able under its rules to prevent the promiscuous discussions which go on in the senate. The resolution to create a joint committee to consider proposals to reorganize the prohibition enforcement machinery, which was approved by the senate, is before the house rules committee and will be acted upon within the next two weeks. The treasury appropriation bill containing funds for prohibition enforcement will be reported from the house appropriations committee within a week and is scheduled for consideration in the house immediately thereafter.

Despite the overwhelming dry majority in the house, some of the wet leaders are convinced that the wet bloc, if it hangs together, has an opportunity not only to put a crimp in dry legislation, but to make some headway toward modification. Among these leaders is Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.].

ASKS HOOVER CRIME BOARD FOR TRUTH ABOUT PROHIBITION

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement will be remiss in the performance of its duty if it is convinced that modification of the prohibition law will bring a measure of relief, but out of regard for political exigencies fails to recommend such action, United States Senator Robert F. Wagner declared today in a statement issued as he left for Washington.

Senator Wagner said the American people are entitled to have the commission go beyond "the mere tinkering with enforcement machinery." He declared the people are entitled to have the prohibition law itself weighed in the balance and will be satisfied with nothing else.

HIP-FLASK TOTERS NOT HIT BY JONES LAW, W. C. T. U. FINDS

The Women's Christian Temperance Union is convinced that trivial prohibition violators have not been punished under the Jones 5 and 10 law, according to a statement issued yesterday at the national headquarters in Evanston. The statement said that the W. C. T. U. had made a study of indictments and convictions under the Jones law throughout the country before arriving at its conclusions.

The investigation was prompted, the statement said, by a remark attributed to Senator Glenn of Illinois that he voted against the Jones law because he feared college boys with pint flasks would be sent to Leavenworth.

"No college boys have gone to Leavenworth for owning hip flasks," the society's announcement said. "In fact, as Senator Glenn knows, if all the college boys in the United States owned all the flasks in the country filled with liquor, the Jones law would not relate to them. It does not relate to the possession of liquor and is specifically clear in its intent to punish only the large commercial violators, not the casual or small violater."

IT MAKES SOME DIFFERENCE WHO BUMPS COPS' CAR

Mrs. Herbert S. Simpson, wife of the alderman of the Sixth ward in Evanston, learned last night that circumstances alter automobile accidents in Evanston. While she was slowing down for a stop sign at South Boulevard on Sheridan road, her new sedan crashed into the rear end of a car which stopped suddenly in front of her. Indignant, Mrs. Simpson alighted from her car just as two equally indignant men leaped out of the car ahead of her. Her indignation cooled when she recognized Sergts. Ben Hanke and Otto Brey of the Evanston police department, and the policemen became apologetic when they recognized her.

DRY INFORMER FOUND CHOKED TO DEATH IN ALLEY

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The body of George Mast, 27 years old, an informer for federal prohibition agents here, was found in an alley this morning. Mast had been strangled with a wire noose. Though he was completely dressed, Mast's hat was not found, and police believe he was killed elsewhere and his body carried to the alley.

Police first identified Mast through fingerprints filed at headquarters. The prints were taken Dec. 14 when he was arrested on a charge of removing contract property. The police record does not show what disposition was made of this case.

Police say that Mast was not a regular member of the federal prohibition force; he had been employed at times as an under cover man and has many arrests to his credit.

TWO NEGROES DUEL TO DEATH.

Lyman Lewis, 41 years old, and Earl Townsend, 26, both Negroes, shot each other to death and wounded Lewis' wife, Helen, probably fatally yesterday in a pistol duel at Lewis' home at 5207 Indiana avenue. The fight started when Lewis attempted to recover a pistol which he had loaned to Townsend, and the woman was shot when she stepped between the pair to stop the quarrel.

"I'M GLAD HE DID" SAYS MRS. COOK

MRS. WM. J. COOK

Druggist recommended REM

Two coughs are two too many, in the opinion of Mrs. Wm. J. Cook of 940½ Virginia Ave., S. W., Washington, D. C. Her two children are subject to "bad-weather" coughs and had severe ones early last winter. So she went to Herbert's Drug Store at 10th and Virginia Ave., and asked him for a good cough medicine. He suggested REM and Mrs. Cook adds: "I'm glad he did, for it gave the children wonderful relief. Since then we've used nothing else for coughs, and my sister-in-law uses it in her family, too, as I told her what I think of it." That's how the good word gets passed along. One person tells another. It won't be long before you, too, will be telling others how good REM is.

REM's easy to take, too. Children and parents can both appreciate that REM

YOUNG FATHER ADMITS KILLING WIFE, 2 OTHERS

Baby Left in Bed Beside Bodies of Victims.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Delbert Green, 20, today confessed to officers that he killed his young wife, her mother and her stepfather, about 12 o'clock last night. The stepfather, James Green, was an uncle of the slayer.

An infant daughter of the slayer, lying in bed with her mother and grandmother, was spared and left by her father beside the bodies of his victims.

The triple slaying occurred at the home of the uncle in Davis county about 30 miles north of Salt Lake City, where Mrs. Delbert Green had gone after a family quarrel. Green was arrested at his home in Ogden.

Planned to Kill Self, Too.

He told the officers he had followed his wife to her mother's home "determined to settle matters."

"I figured I would bump them off and then bump myself off," he added. "I would have killed myself but the gun jammed."

Infuriated by his wife's refusal to return to their home, and in the face of pleadings by his uncle and his grandmother to effect a reconciliation, Green first shot and killed his uncle, and then entered the room where his wife and her baby were in bed with her mother and fired a bullet into the body of each woman.

3 Members of Family Spared.

Three members of the Green family escaped his bullets, his grandmother, Mrs. Hannah Green, his ten year old sister-in-law, Lois Green, and his own infant daughter.

Lois, aroused by her grandmother, ran into the kitchen, the told the officers, where she saw Green with a pistol and a flashlight in his hands. She fled to the home of David Green, a neighbor, and soon afterwards her grandmother, carrying the baby, also arrived.

The slayer returned in his automobile to his home in Ogden.

FIND BODY ON BREAKWATER.

The body of Michael Trak, 35 years old, 1663 North Leavitt street, was found yesterday frozen to the breakwater at Schiller street and the lake by a Chicago avenue policeman. Trak disappeared several days ago and when his coat and hat were found on the breakwater at Burton place it was supposed that he drowned himself.

HARRY THEODORE BEWES.

ROBERT CECIL BEWES.

Chicagoan Heir

At least one English mother chose to disregard all the stories current in her country about crime being rampant in Chicago, it was revealed yesterday with the filing of her will in London. The mother, Mrs. Theodora Beatrice Bewes, a widow, of Plympton, Devon, England, in leaving her estate to her two sons, one in Chicago and the other in Montreal, specified:

"It is my earnest wish that both my sons make their home abroad and not return to this country."

Each of the sons inherited $50,000. The mother died last May.

Harry Theodore Bewes, a salesman, is the Chicago son. He is married and lives at 636 Waveland avenue. He declared last night that he is glad to carry out his mother's testamentary wish and live in Chicago. The other son is Robert Cecil Bewes.

PLANE HITS AUTO; HURTS 4 INSIDE; PILOT UNSCATHED

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A monoplane dropped out of the sky near the Oakland airport today, landed on top of a closed automobile, injuring four of the occupants, and then bounced off into a fence. Richard Starrett, 21, the pilot, was not injured.

Starrett's plane struck an automobile driven by J. C. Cahlon of Alameda, in which his wife and Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins, neighbors, were riding past the airport. Mrs. Jenkins received a fractured skull and other serious injuries, while other were severely cut and bruised.

Says 75 Year Old Swain's Love Cooled; Asks $5,000

Texarkana, Ark., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Because J. W. McFadden, 75 year old retired business man, made ardent love to her, as she alleges, and then jilted her, Miss Mattie Hickey, 30, has filed suit for $5,000. Miss Hickey charges that they set the wedding date for New Year's day, but that McFadden met a thirty year old widow and married her.

3 PLANS TO GET INDIANA SCHOOLS BACK ON FEET

Poorer Ones Lack Funds to Pay Teachers.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The state school aid commission recently appointed by Gov. Harry G. Leslie, by mandate of the 1929 state legislature, already has three major proposals before it for alleviation of the crisis confronting scores of public schools in poorer Indiana counties, especially in the southern part of the state. These schools are unable to meet expenses of teachers' salaries because the state school aid fund has suspended payments, being more than $1,000,000 in the hole.

Gov. Leslie himself suggested that the commission consider advocating removal of the state aid fund from the state board of education to the state board of accounts, which could not only pass or reject petitions for state aid, but could check expenditures and demand elimination of school extravagances.

It has been charged that some bankrupt school corporations have been milked for the benefit of non-educational projects, personal benefit of school officials, or for promoting non-academic quasi-school activities.

Another proposal is that of State Senator Alonzo Lindley of Kingman, that there be a state-wide tax levy to guarantee minimum salaries for all public school teachers, the local school corporations themselves being responsible for payments above this minimum.

The third proposal by George C. Cole of Lawrenceburg, superintendent of Dearborn county schools, is that there be created a state-wide tax to provide money for minimum requirements for all phases of school expenditures.

Insurance Agent Is Killed by Motor Gas in Garage

Lawrence Anderson, 27 years old, 3726 Montrose avenue, an insurance agent, was asphyxiated by automobile gas yesterday in the garage in the rear of his home, where he had been working on his car. His wife, Mrs. Betty Anderson, found his body slumped over a tool box at the rear of the machine. The engine was still running and the garage doors were closed.

DECLARE HOOVER IS NO PACIFIST DESPITE CRITICS

Friends Defend Him on Eve of Arms Parley.

national defense. They conceded it. They conceded that the United States spends more money but they contended that it gets less for its money than any other nation. We have a navy inferior to Britain's and an army smaller than any other, but each costs us more.

What Disgusts His Critics.

What disgusted his critics was that the President, just as the professional pacifists fail to do in their literature, did not tell the reason for this greater expenditure. He failed to point out not only that the United States expends on the pay and subsistence of its soldiers and sailors many times what other nations expend, but that the United States is a protective tariff country in which the costs of ships and guns and everything else that goes into the making of the army and navy is almost double what is is abroad.

Because of the scale of wages and commodity prices produced by the protective tariff, which the President defends as a pillar of our prosperity not only our army and our navy cost more but our industries, our railroads, our governments, and even our pacifist propaganda organizations, the officers of which receive double the salaries paid the professional pacifists in pauper labor countries.

Mr. Hoover next ran afoul of the apostles of preparedness with his personal analysis of government expenditures in which he showed that 72 cents out of every dollar of federal government appropriations is required to pay for the wars of the past and to prepare for the wars of the future. Out of total federal appropriations of $3,976,141,651 for the current fiscal year $2,729,338,389 is being spent to pay principal and interest of the public debt bequeathed by the world war to pay the pensions of veterans of all wars and their dependents, and to maintain the army and navy.

President Didn't Explain.

The President did not explain that under the American federal system more than 90 per cent of the function of the national government is that of national defense and that the extraordinary circumstance is that the cost of our national defense is far short of 90 per cent of federal appropriations.

In its pacifist propaganda the National council for prevention of war stresses the expenditure of 72 cents of every dollar of the federal taxpayers' money on war and preparation for war. A pacifist organization of the same name in England proclaims that past wars and preparation for future wars are costing British taxpayers 73 cents of every dollar.

The figures quoted are misleading in both instances, though far more so in the case of the United States than of Great Britain because of the radical difference in the form of government involved. In America the federal government expenditures are a minor part of the whole cost of government. In Britain the condition is the exact reverse.

In the United States the federal government costs four billion dollars a year while state, county, city and other local government costs eight billion dollars. Of this twelve billion dollars, representing the total cost of government in this country, our national defense expenditures as segregated by Mr. Hoover constitute 23 per cent. Of the total cost of national and local government in Great Britain national defense constitutes 60 per cent.

It therefore appears that the United States in reality expends only 23 cents of every dollar of tax on national defense while Great Britain expends 60 cents.

Leaf from Pacifist Doctrine.

Mr. Hoover took another leaf from the book of pacifist doctrine when he decreed that there should be no naval officers in the delegation sent to the London conference. Ever since the failure of the Geneva arms conference of 1927 at which admirals were delegates, though in a minority, the pacifists have been harping on the theory that the conference was wrecked by militarists. They gave Mr. Hoover their blessing when he reduced the admirals to the status of advisers only in constituting his delegation to the London conference.

From the beginning of the preliminary negotiations with Great Britain the attitude of the administration was intensely antagonistic to the members of the navy general board which shapes the policies of our sea defenses. First, they were muzzled to prevent their views from becoming public. Then began a period of systematic coercion to drive the admirals of the general board into line for the concessions it was desired to make to the British proposals.

The rough work in this undertaking was assigned to Joe Cotton, undersecretary of state, a hard boiled New York lawyer, whose knowledge of the navy was confined to an occasional view of the fleet in the Hudson river. The general board has held for years that the United States requires big cruisers with wide steaming radius because of its lack of outlying naval bases. The British endeavored to persuade us to build fewer big cruisers and more small ones as is the policy of Britain. The British have 27 outlying bases while we have only seven.

Cotton Called "Lion Tamer."

The Hoover administration endeavored to wring from the general board consent to this proposition. Cotton put the admirals on the witness stand and went after them hammer and tongs. It was soon reported that they were yielding and Cotton became known as the "lion tamer." In navy circles it was asserted the admirals were standing pat. This is supposed to be the reason they were passed over in the selections for the advisory commission to the delegation.

Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, who is retired and does not have to take orders, refused to go to London unless the navy had a voice in the delegation. Thereupon, the administration capitulated and included Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams in the delegation.

British Juggle Navy Facts to Make Bogey of U. S. Fleet

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Sunday Express today leaped boldly into the arena where the Daily Telegraph has been disporting itself with naval statistics showing how the American Goliath completely outclasses the British David.

The particular point of the mass of figures which the Express selects to emphasize, in hopes that all other figures will be forgotten during the heated argument, is the number of torpedo tubes possessed by the respective navies. As this type of weapon is carried chiefly by destroyers and submarines, of which the United States possesses a large number of obsolete type while Great Britain has regularly retired the out of date ships, retaining only the modern vessels, it is made to appear that America owns a larger number of torpedo tubes.

Declares U. S. Navy Superior.

"The American navy is three times as strong as the British in one type and more than one and one-half times as strong in another." That is the way the Express summarizes its conclusions from the figures reviewed.

The United States possesses 2,472 torpedo tubes in destroyers to the Britain's 854, says the Express, ignoring the fact that a large number of these destroyers could not bring torpedoes to bear on any British vessel unless the latter were kind enough to await them. American submarines carry 516 torpedo tubes to the Britain's 128, the paper goes on to say. Here once again a large number of the craft the paper includes would never be able to get within shooting range of any of the fast modern British ships.

The Express gives its own show away by listing the torpedo tube sizes. This list shows that while the American strength is composed of tubes of all sizes, from 18 to 21 inches, practically all of the British tubes are of 21 inches with a range of 15,000 yards against the maximum of 8,000 yards of the old fashioned 18 inch torpedoes carrying 300 pounds of explosive against 500 pounds of the bigger projectiles.

Russia Cold on Ship Talk.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 5.—Russia has the same interest in the approaching conference of sea powers in London as an elephant has in watching a battle between whales, according to the Moscow press, which is pessimistic over the possibility of an agreement being reached between the great powers.

Under the title, "The Coming London Disarmament Comedy," the Pravda says that the European press has apparently forgotten the differences existing between the United States and England in its discussion of the militaristic attitude of France and the proposals of Italy. The Pravda sees England supporting the Italian demands for curtailment of the French naval program in order that she may herself be compelled to keep a larger fleet in the Mediterranean.

REDUCE NAVIES, DON'T LIMIT 'EM! 5-POWERS TOLD

European Socialist Chiefs Lend a Voice.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Jan. 5.—The disarmament commission of the Labor and Socialist International concluded a two day session here today with adoption of a resolution urging the five powers to the forthcoming naval conference in London to agree to reduce, not merely limit, marine armaments.

The resolution severely criticizes the league of nations for failure to achieve anything on disarmament, but insists that any agreement in London should be incorporated in Geneva's general scheme.

Supports U. S. Blockade Policies.

The International supports America's view point, denouncing private ocean blockades and declaring that the high seas should only be closed by international agreement against an aggressor state. Prime Minister MacDonald and the Labor government were praised for calling the conference, and regrets were expressed that the United States is not a member of the league of nations.

Those attending the conference were Jonkheer M. Albarda of Holland, Rudolf Breitscheid of Germany, Pierre Renaudel of France, Mr. Gillies of Great Britain, and Friedrich Adler, secretary of the International. Herr Deutsch of Austria, Honsson or Sweden, and Louis de Brouckere of Belgium were unable to attend.

The resolution says in part:

"London must not only arrest competition in naval armaments, but must bring a notable reduction in existing armaments. Reducing every class of ship within the total tonnage only means preventing an increase of certain classes as compensation for reduction of other types. Disputes about the offensive and defensive character of certain types should not prevent a general limitation by classes."

Calls Naval Parity "Snare."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—"A parity as between the British Empire and the United States, if it means equality of power to protect national interests, is a snare and a delusion for us, if it is to take the form of equality in numbers," Rear Admiral T. P. H. Beamish, Conservative member of parliament, writes in a letter to the Daily Telegraph today. He insists that with an equal number of ships the United States would have an advantage, since it would not need to disperse its forces to protect commerce vital to its existence.

WINTER SPORTS LEAD TO WINTER COUGHS

BRUCE & BILLY MILLER

Then REM leads way to quick relief

"My three children, Bruce, Billy and Betty Jane, live outdoors during the winter," says Mrs. L. H. Miller of Sea Breese, N. Y. "The two eldest are always sledding, skating or ski-ing and they have a wonderful time every winter. Sometimes they get coughs as all children do, and it's quite a problem sometimes to find something to relieve them. Last winter Billy had a bad cough, and I had seen in the papers how REM was so highly recommended, so we got some and gave it to him. It relieved him at once and has since helped coughs of the other children and my husband. I've since told my neighbors about REM, and I know at least two other families using it now. REM's the only cough medicine the children will take willingly and without making a face."

REM's easy to take, too. Children and parents can both appreciate that REM

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

GERMANY OPENS OLD ARGUMENT AT DEBT PARLEY

Talks Over French Military Sanctions.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Holland, Jan. 5.—The second Hague conference for the final adoption of the Young reparations plan was at a standstill today, with Austria still trying to negotiate a separate agreement with little entente creditors, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia.

The French and German delegates held a private meeting regarding the sanctions provided for in the Versailles treaty. The German delegates are insisting on an agreement that the Paris government waive its rights under the treaty to take any military or other action in case Germany defaults on payment of reparations.

When the Dawes plan was adopted in 1924 Edouard Herriott, then premier, waived France's right to take separate sanctions against Germany.

Britain to Avoid Sanctions.

Now with the Young plan superseding the Dawes plan, the German government wants a similar undertaking for wholesale abrogation.

Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, has already told Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, that Great Britain is not interested in sanctions as it does not intend to take any.

The treasury experts of the six inviting powers today examined the separate treaty on reparations between the United States and Germany and decided that it does not affect the Young plan or the international bank. The agreement, announced yesterday in Berlin, contains a clause, in which United States declares that it regards good will as a sole and sufficient guarantee of her obligations.

Polish-German Treaty.

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Auguste Zaleski, Polish foreign minister, announced today that Poland will ask the league of nations council at Geneva to make the Polish-German treaty, renouncing financial claims resulting from the world war, an integral part of the Young reparations plan.

M. Zaleski, who will leave shortly for Geneva to attend the league council, told the press that no agreement between France and Germany could be made at the expense of Poland, adding that the French-Polish alliance is the cornerstone of European peace.

The signing of the German-Polish treaty was announced in Warsaw Nov. 1. In the pact the nations canceled 30,000 suits involving 1,500,000,000 gold francs, settling all mutual claims arising out of the passing of Silesia, Pozanzia, and "the corridor" to Poland as an outcome of the world war. Poland promised not to exercise the right given by the Versailles treaty to liquidate certain German property in Poland.

Urbana Woman Killed by Student's Automobile

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Samuel Ball, 40, of Urbana, was killed tonight when struck by an automobile driven by C. A. Johnson, also of Urbana, a senior at the University of Illinois.

EYE OF AMERICAN PRINTER 'PROVES' BACON'S THE MAN

Claims Evidence Shows It Was Not Shakespeare.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, England, Jan. 5.—(AP)—J. Edward Morgan, scholarly proprietor of a California printshop, is returning to the United States from Shakespeare's native England with what he believes is overwhelming proof of the Baconian authorship of the bard of Avon's plays.

Morgan, who has been prowling around the historic haunts of the great playwright and making photographic copies of pages of Shakespeare and Bacon folios in the British museum, is no ordinary theorist with a handful of acrostics to prove his case.

If the printer from California is right, Francis Bacon not only wrote Shakespeare's plays, but scattered the letters of his name like an alphabet through the pages of the early folios and wrote his signature over and over again in the very decoration of the volumes.

Switches His Theory.

Strange to say, Morgan developed his theory while engaged in research to prove the Baconian theorists wrong. He proved them mostly in error, he says, but in the microscopic examination of texts he stumbled onto an entirely different body of evidence, pointing straight to Francis Bacon.

It was his printer's eye that led him to study certain weird peculiarities in the typography of the folios. These peculiarities, he contends, would be noticed by any competent printer who took the trouble to go through all the famous Shakespeare texts.

He says he discovered dozens of initial letters, and even single letters, in the body of the text, which under careful scrutiny are seen to be Baconian signatures, some of them resembling the involved monographs with which some artists sign their paintings.

Bacon's Initials Everywhere.

Even the alphabet used in some of the early texts is so devised, according to Morgan, that Bacon's initials appear almost like a "by-line" at the beginning of every act—if one is inquisitive enough about books to try occasionally reading one upside down.

With the aid of photographic enlargements of Shakespearean title pages, Morgan expects to squelch all skeptics by showing how Bacon worked his name into the conventionalized foliage of engraved borders and even put his initials on faces that for hundreds of years have stared at Shakespearean scholars from the engraved embellishments to which scholars usually pay least attention.

So firmly convinced is Morgan that his evidence is irrefutable that he plans to bring out his photographic enlargements and other exhibits in the form of a book for children, ostensibly designed for minds that enjoy puzzles and puzzle pictures.

Up to Shakespearean Scholars.

"When the children begin to ask questions," he chuckles, "it will be up to the Shakespearean scholars of the world to give them a logical answer."

Morgan had to sell his Oakland, Cal., printshop to get to England, but he looks on that sacrifice as a mere detail in his exciting roundup of Bacon's "alphabet-soup" signatures.

33 SELECTED AS THE WORTHIEST U. S. CHARITIES

Coolidge, Smith, Rosenwald Decide List.

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The thirty-three charitable institutions which are regarded as the most worthy in the country in the opinion of former President Calvin Coolidge, former Governor Alfred E. Smith and Julius Rosenwald, noted Chicago philanthropist, were made public today. The selections were made by the three men acting as a committee to select the beneficiaries of the $6,000,000 residuary estate of the late Conrad Hubert, inventor of the flash light.

More than 500 institutions were investigated by the committee before the final selections were made. In each case the institution which will benefit from the estate was a unanimous choice of the three.

Beneficiaries to Add to Fund.

While the Hubert will provided that no stipulations should be placed upon money paid to the institutions selected by the committee, the method under which distribution of the estate has been arranged makes it obligatory upon the beneficiaries to raise an additional $9,000,000 to complete the projects for which the Hubert money has been awarded. The committee felt that by making only partial donations towards the objects it deemed most worthy, it would leave the raising of additional required amounts an easy matter.

The committee's bequests have been divided into three classifications. These are institutions which will receive immediate amounts from cash on hand; those which will share in the first $1,000,000 realized from the unliquidated portion of the estate, and those which will share in the remainder of the estate when it is finally liquidated.

Immediate Aid for These.

The beneficiaries named by the committee to receive money immediately from the cash in the estate and the amounts awarded, follow:

The St. Vincent's hospital of the City of New York, $500,000; the Boy Scouts of America, $500,000; Girl Scouts, Inc., $500,000; Provident hospital of Chicago, $500,000; Beekman Street hospital in the City of New York, $500,000; the Children's Aid society in the City of New York, $200,000; the American National Red Cross, to be used for the construction of a new building in New York City, $375,000; Young Men's Christian association of Jersey City, $250,000; the New York Foundling hospital, $50,000; International Migration Service, Inc., American branch, $50,000; Jewish Mental Health society, $250,000; the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, $250,000; the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, $250,000; Young Men's Hebrew association, $175,000; and New York university, $250,000.

To Be Benefited Later.

Institutes which will benefit from the first $1,000,000 realized from the further liquidation of the estate are:

University of Chicago, to be used for the School of Social Service administration, $250,000; Henry Street Settlement, in the City of New York, to be used for additional nursing service, $100,000; American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., $100,000; Beth Israel Hospital association, in the City of New York, to be used in connection with the completion of its hospital building, $200,000; Howard university, in the City of Washington, D. C., to be used in connection with the building of the medical school of said university, $200,000; William and Mary college of Williamsburg, Va., $50,000; the Catholic University of America, located in the City of Washington, D. C., $50,000, and the University of Virginia, $50,000.

Eleven institutions share the remainder of the estate when it is liquidated. While $5,600,000 is awarded by the committee to the two first classifications, leaving only $400,000 for the third class under the $6,000,000 valuation of the estate, it is admitted that this estimation was made purposely conservative, so that the beneficiaries would not have expectations which would not be realized.

It was said last week by one of the executors that the liquidated value of the estate might be as high as $8,000,000, which, if realised, will create $2,400,000 to be divided among the eleven institutions. These eleven are:

The Kent school of Kent, Conn.; New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, Inc.; Leonard Wood Memorial for the Eradication of Leprosy, Clark School for the Deaf, Northampton, Mass.; Madonna House of New York City; the trustees of Smith college for the Smith college; School for Social Work of Northampton, Mass.; Johns Hopkins university for the use of its institute of law; Maternity Center Association, Inc., 1919, of New York City; Rollins college of Winter Haven, Fla.

The committee held its closing meeting last Thursday in the offices of the Bankers' Trust company, where it had been meeting two and three times a month since the three men who compose it accepted their positions last June.

Former Gov. Smith had been selected as spokesman for the committee. "I want to say that we have had a very pleasant time together, and I regret the end of this association in such a work with the other two members of the committee. Mr. Rosenwald has traveled here from Chicago at least once every two weeks since early last July to give his personal efforts to this work, and Mr. Coolidge has journeyed from Massachusetts to be present at every meeting of the committee."

The former governor then introduced Mr. Rosenwald, who said:

"I have nothing to add to what Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Smith have said, except that I think these institutions which have been selected to benefit under the will of Mr. Hubert have the great advantage of having been selected by a committee upon which the former President and the former governor have bestowed a great amount of personal labor in interesting other people through the basis on which additional money for their purposes will be raised."

Former Gov. Smith then said that, while under the will the committee had no power to impose any regulations as to the use of the money, it had found the institutions that had been awarded parts of the estate were engaged in operations that would require a certain amount of money, and that in the main the awards that had been made were merely a partial donation toward the object of the institution.

Appeal to U. S. to Save Liberty of Press in Cuba

HAVANA, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Platt amendment was invoked today in an appeal to United States Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim in behalf of two newspaper men alleged to have been illegally imprisoned at Santiago de Cuba. The appeal was made by Gen. Francisco Peraza, former revolutionary leader who now is active in the Nacionalista party.

His letter to the ambassador said: "There have been arrested by the military authorities in Santiago de Cuba two newspaper men of that city who are politically opposed to the regime of President Machado. The arrests were contrary to the laws of the republic and the only charge made was that they had published in their newspapers and commented upon an article published yesterday in the Havana newspaper Diario de la Marina relative to the proposal of President Machado to modify again the constitution.

"The detained are persons known throughout Cuba. One of them, Carlos Delunde, has been a congressman, while the other, Roger de Lauria, has worked on the chief newspapers in Cuba.

"This arbitrary method of the government is contrary to the constitution and the laws, which confer on the courts and civil authorities the rights ordinarily of enforcing laws and punishing violators without interference by the military. This lack of respect of rights has intensified the discontent in our country. It is dangerous to such a high degree that you and your government cannot possibly escape penetrating into our affairs.

"The Platt amendment obligates the United States to offer guarantees to all Cubans against dictatorial power. Believing in the strength of this law, I ask and beg of you to protect the detained men in the exercise of their individual rights and to interpose in preventing attempts on their lives, a thing which is considered possible inasmuch as I am advised that these men this morning were ordered moved from the military prison in Santiago to Havana, instead of being allowed to remain in Santiago to face charges under the civil court as the legal procedure calls for."

HIS INSTITUTION CLOSED, HEAD OF BANK KILLS SELF

Donnellson, Ill., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Charles O. Mansfield, 70, president of the State Bank of Donnellson, which was closed Saturday by the board of directors, shot and killed himself in his home here this morning.

The banker's body was found in a sitting position in the basement of his home by a son, Paul, who rushed downstairs when he heard a shot fired at 9:45 a. m. today.

A coroner's verdict later today was that Mansfield had shot and killed himself with suicidal intent. Dr. A. B. Cary, a witness, testified that Mansfield had been extremely nervous for several days and had remarked that he would be "better off out of the picture," since he had $25,000 life insurance.

However, she discovered REM a couple of years ago and says, "REM has certainly been a help to Richard and I'm glad I found out about it. I've told my sister about REM, too." REM has been a great help to many a mother whose children get "bad weather" coughs. They seldom have to be coaxed to take it, for they've found by experience that REM's easy to take. NEWTON JENKINS ENTERS SENATE RACE AS IN 1924

Deneen, Ruth McCormick Prepare for Campaign.

BY PARKE BROWN.

As United States Senator Deneen and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, congresswoman at large, were preparing yesterday to open their campaigns for the Republican senatorial nomination, Newton Jenkins, who ran for the senate in the 1924 primary, announced his candidacy. Six years ago, by polling 125,000 votes, Jenkins enabled Deneen to defeat Senator Medill McCormick for renomination.

Mrs. McCormick's headquarters yesterday made public the itinerary for the first week of her speaking campaign. It will start in Shelbyville one week from today and, with three or four meetings a day, will carry her through nineteen counties before Saturday night, the week winding up in White and Saline counties.

Senator Deneen, who will leave Chicago for Washington today, said that his route is complete and that he will open up next week, but that he cannot announce the exact dates until certain matters are disposed of in the senate within the next few days. But it is understood that, as in former state campaigns, his first week will carry him into Egyptian territory.

Both candidates are planning to visit each of the 101 downstate counties and to have two or three weeks left for the big windup in the Chicago area.

Campaign Plans Outlined.

The statement from Mrs. McCormick's headquarters said:

"Mrs. McCormick has made arrangements so that her vote on important legislation during her absences from the house in Washington will be cast by the pairing system. Her campaign will be conducted so as to require a minimum of time away from Washington.

"Mrs. McCormick is looking forward with pleasant anticipation to meeting the voters who in 1928 piled up for her a grand total of 1,711,651 votes [for congresswoman at large] and enabled her to lead the entire state ticket in the general election that year.

"It is probable she will discuss state, national and international issues. Her candidacy for the senate is the first serious effort of a woman to win such a nomination and election and for that reason the Illinois contest is already attracting the attention of the entire country."

Itinerary for First Week.

The itinerary for the first week of Mrs. McCormick's campaign follows:

Jan. 13—Shelbyville, 10:30 a. m.; Mattoon, 2:30 p. m.; Charleston, 7:30 p. m.

Jan. 14—Paris, 10:30 a. m.; Marshall, 2:30 p. m.; Robinson, 7:30 p. m.

Jan. 15—Lawrenceville, 10:30 a. m.; Olney, 2 p. m.; Newton, 4 p. m.; Effingham, 7:30 p. m.

Jan. 16—Vandalia, 10:30 a. m.; Greenville, 2 p. m.; Carlyle, 4 p. m.; Salem, 7:30 p. m.

Jan. 17—Flora, 10:30 a. m.; Fairfield, 2 p. m.; Albion, 4 p. m.; Mount Carmel, 7:30 p. m.

Jan. 18—Carmi, 10:30 a. m.; Eldorado, 2:30 p. m.; Harrisburg, 7:30 p. m.

Mr. Jenkins, a Chicago lawyer, said his campaign will be conducted on the important issues now confronting the country. One of these, he said, relates to American adherence to the world court. Mr. Jenkins asserted he is opposed to the entrance of this country into the world court as he is opposed to all entangling foreign alliances.

As a lieutenant of marines during the world war, he said, no one knows the futility of war better than the soldier and that there is no course so sure toward war as that which lies in European entanglement.

From the headquarters of the "People's Republican organization" in the Hotel La Salle an announcement was issued yesterday that a testimonial dinner will be given on Jan. 22 for Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity, chief of the Chicago police department from 1918 to 1920. The announcement said the event might be taken as an indication that the former chief will become a candidate for sheriff on the Republican ticket in April. Brig. Gen. Garrity was said to be in Washington.

BRITONS WARNED AGAINST ZEAL OF U. S. ALIEN RULES

Tribune Editorial Used in New Campaign.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The foreign office proposes warning all the British subjects going to America of the dangers they run if they overstay the period allowed by a temporary visa. This was announced in today's Sunday Chronicle, the London paper which initiated a campaign a few weeks ago against the methods employed by the American officials dealing with the violations of immigration regulations.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S comment on the Chronicle's allegations of the brutal treatment meted out to British subjects was quoted in their issue of today.

Attacks Bureaucrats.

The following excerpt from THE TRIBUNE editorial was made:

"The bad manners of the American officials in dealing with American citizens returning from abroad are notorious. It may be assumed that the behavior of the bureaucrats toward their fellow citizens is mild in comparison with the treatment accorded to aliens, for the alien has not even a congressman to whom he may complain."

Referring to this TRIBUNE editorial, Dr. Albert H. Roler of Evanston wrote to the editor of the Sunday Chronicle: "Acting on the suggestion contained in the last paragraph of THE TRIBUNE'S editorial, could you not use your influence to get the British foreign office to give official help and demand an explanation and apology from those of our official plug uglies who are directly responsible? By doing so you would, if this complaint were carried to higher authorities, do us a great favor also."

Others Take Up Issue.

Since the first article on the subject appeared in this London paper there has been considerable agitation by Conservative papers such as the Daily Telegraph, containing stories of the brutal treatment accorded British subjects deported for overstaying the validity of their visa. The chief British complaint is the length of time a man may be detained awaiting trial and deportation. In such cases Britain practices the quickest possible action, deportation taking place immediately in each case without any wait for a number of deportees to accumulate to be sent off together.

As a result of the airing by the press of the methods used by American bureaucrats the foreign office stated in a letter to A. A. Sommerville, Conservative member of parliament, who raised the question in commons, that special warnings will be inserted in the pamphlet on passport regulations given out with every passport, while additional warning will be issued to seamen and Canadian emigrants who make up the greater proportion of British deportees from America.

PLOT TO BLOW UP BELGIAN WEDDING TRAIN BARED BY SWISS

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Jan. 5.—According to documents seized at Annamasse, near Geneva, by French and Swiss police, the Belgian royal family had a narrow escape on its way to Italy.

It was at Annamasse, European headquarters of anti-Fascist communists, that a plot was conceived and perpetrators chosen to blow up the royal train at a spot between Chiasso and Milan. The exact spot was marked on the seized map, but the plot was discovered in time and Italian police notified.

Many arrests are expected in both Switzerland and Italy, where police are continuing inquiries.

JAIL DELIVERY FOILED AFTER BARS ARE SAWED

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Sheriff Elmer Shoaf and several deputies nipped a probable jail break in the Champaign county jail when late Saturday night they discovered several bars of one of the cell houses severed.

Among the nine prisoners confined in the cell were William E. Ragan, former superintendent of the Linde Air Products company, Chicago, charged with robbery of the Fisher State bank on Nov. 8, and Carl Wilson and Harold Smith, two members of the alleged bandit gang of five charged with the robbery of sixty dancing party guests of the Harris home here Nov. 9, when thousands of dollars in money and jewelry were secured.

A special guard was placed around the tier of cells last night and the bars were replaced today.

12 Injured When Section of Mall Falls at St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Twelve men working on a mall project on Third street, near Cedar street, were injured today when the top level section collapsed and fell twenty-two feet. All are expected to recover. Sixteen other men escaped unhurt. The section that fell was 131 feet long, 58 feet wide and three feet nine inches thick.

ROYALTY STRUTS AS MARIE JOSE CONQUERS ROME

Masses, Behind Walls of Guns, Greet Her.

In the crowds were women carrying babies, housemaids with Sunday morning off, Balilla boys selling photographs of the prince and princess, and all the motley hoi polloi of Rome.

In an aura of shiny plated cuirassiers with horsehair streaming from their gilded helmets, the cortége conducting the Flemish princess from the land of Rembrandt to Quirinal palace, a sixteenth century residence of Pope Gregory, from whom the calendar was named, proceeded down an avenue which has been renamed "Viale Principessa di Piedmonte" after the prince's bride-to-be.

Heading the procession was a calvacade of twenty mounted royal carbineers with white pants and gilded helmets, and after them came twenty-five more mounted royal bodyguards with drawn sabers. The whole cortége proceeded at a brisk trot to get to the palace as quickly as possible. Over the cobblestone pavement sand had been strewn profusely to give silence and smoothness. On each side of the street were drawn up double files of soldiers with fixed bayonets standing shoulder to shoulder.

Passes Under Triumph Arch.

The cortége passed under an artistic arch of triumph, constructed of evergreens and laurels on a wooden framework and trimmed with red begonias at the corner of the Piazza Esedra with its famous fountains. Beyond this arch the procession came to a halt before the reviewing stand and Prince Boncompagni, governor of Rome, stepped out and read an address of homage to the princess on behalf of the city of Rome. He was standing near the carriage of the two kings, with the princess 50 yards away.

Then the cortége rumbled down lengthy Via Nazionale at a stiff trot and turned the corner of Via Ventiquattro Maggio up to the palace.

In the first carriage were several court officials. In the second were the two kings. King Albert was pale and sat rigid and stiff. King Victor Emmanuel saluted the crowds and looked about a great deal. In the third carriage was Queen Elizabeth and Queen Elena. The Roman populace, noted for its curiosity, seemed deeply struck with Queen Elizabeth's bearing and elegance. Queen Elena was gracious and smiling. The Duke of Brabant was in the carriage with the queens.

Marie José Sits Composed.

In the fourth carriage came Princess Marie José with Prince Humbert and Princess Astrid and the Count of Flanders. On this procession the little Belgian princess seemed to have already won the hearts of her future subjects. Her manners and superb composure seemed all that even the Italians, with their faith in exterior elegance, could desire. In her white dress she appeared like a little snow princess, and charmed them into murmurs rather than noisy greetings. The princess had a faint smile, but appeared to be moved, pale, and a trifle reticent.

In the following eleven carriages came other members of the royal family and members of the courts. Between each carriage was a cavalcade of mounted warriors, armed to the teeth with sabres drawn.

Winding up the procession was Prince Boncompagni, governor of Rome, in a gorgeous rococo red and gold closed carriage drawn by four horses.

In fifteen minutes the first carriage reached Quirinal palace. There was an immediate stampede in that direction for the third episode of the royal and heraldic scenario.

Princess Blows Kisses to Mobs.

The Piazza Quirinal, before the royal palace, overlooking Rome and with St. Peter's dome in the distance, was a fitting setting for the third episode, which was concluded with the snow princess blowing kisses to the mobs gathered in the square about the famous Dioscuri. As each carriage arrived before the palace, its occupants were saluted by the major domo of the palace in a sixteenth century red and gold uniform, and then they drove into the interior courtyard. Over the palace floated the royal banners of the respective sovereigns.

There was a moment of waiting in the square, where many people had been standing since early in the morning.

Meanwhile inside the palace was completed the ceremony of presentations and greetings. Premier Mussolini in his uniform of prime minister, with other members of his government, had adjourned to the palace, while the other ceremonies were taking place at the station. He, with his cabinet ministers and knights of Annunciata, were in the second balcony salon of the palace.

Premier Mussolini paid his homage to the Belgian sovereigns, to the Italian rulers, and to the prince and princess and then left the palace with the members of his government.

While these events were taking place, crowds outside were waiting for their expected sight of the princess. Presently two lackeys in red livery appeared on the central balcony and draped a large red velour carpet over the railing, and behind them two more opened wide the big window. The crowd grew animated with emotion and suppressed cries.

Presently Queen Elena stepped out onto the balcony, and she was followed by King Albert, Princess Marie-José, Crown Prince Humbert, Queen Elizabeth, and finally King Victor Emanuel. They stood smilingly in a row on the balcony to receive the homage of the crowd, which was given in an explosion of acclamations. Then all retired inside until the crowd set up a mighty clamor calling for the prince and princess, who came back to the balcony together, and amid uninterrupted cheering Prince Humbert saluted and Princess Marie-José blew kisses to the four corners of the square for five minutes.

The blonde princess of Belgium seemed to be firmly enshrined in the hearts of her adopted countrymen and women.

Royal Families Attend Mass.

The crowds began leaving the square and the troops marched away playing martial music, and the guests left the palace to rejoin their residences in other parts of Rome.

When quiet had been restored in the palace the two royal families attended mass in Pauline chapel, where on Wednesday Princess Marie-José will become Prince Humbert's bride. Afterwards lunch was served in the palace for the immediate families.

This ended the day's program, and the rest of the day was spent in resting and walking about the palace gardens, far from the crowds.

BEDRIDDEN VETS THANK GIVERS OF CHRISTMAS JOYS

Letters to Officers Are Filled with Cheer.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Cheerful sidelights on conditions in United States veterans' hospitals throughout the land are given in letters that are coming to officers who served in the world war and who at Christmas time remembered with gifts and greetings their men now invalided.

These human documents, most of them written from beds of pain, are the more affecting because the spirit of them is gallant, uncomplaining and deeply appreciative of what the government and citizens are doing to restore the health and brighten the lives of suffering men.

In the scores of these letters which Chicago officers of every arm of the service have shared with THE TRIBUNE there is not a groaning note. They are bright, newsy, and hopeful.

From Many Hospitals.

They come from hospitals in widely separated parts of the country. Here is a hail from the one in Fort Lyon, Colo.: "The disabled men in the hospital here were treated royally at Christmas time, and they appreciate it. I only wish that I could thank you through a better medium than a letter, but at present that is impossible. . . . Hoping for health is about the best thing I can do, and it is the kindness of such people as yourself which renews that hope and the faith I have that I will again become active in every day affairs."

Letters from the veterans' hospital in Portland, Ore., are jubilant about the Christmas festivities there. "Dr. Carter," writes Private Benton, who was shell shocked in France, "certainly knows his stuff. Even on Christmas eve and Christmas day he was in the mess hall and all around the wards seeing that every one had his share of Christmas spirit. Every floor had its Christmas tree attractively adorned—in fact, some of the patients were so excited and elated as to keep the nurses busy. I have a watch and fountain pen which I find indispensable. It would be impossible to get better treatment than we get here."

Vets' Christmas Merry.

From his hospital bed in Muskogee, Okla., Private Miller chirps, "All the boys here had lots of Christmas," and he wishes his old commander and the whole world a Happy New Year.

"A few days before Christmas they installed a new radio for us here," is Private Maclin's tidings from the invalids at Fort Harrison, Mont., and he tells how pleasant the day was, and Private Palenske at Edward Hines Jr. hospital, near Chicago, is so happy to know that "my commander during the big struggle has not forgotten me" that he forgets to put in a word about his ailments.

Pride and happiness in being remembered shine through all the letters. "It is so good to know that after eleven years we are not forgotten," says Sergt. Duenkel, writing from Augusta, Ga., and adds: "It creates a feeling in me that is worth more than a D. S. C. pinned on me by the President himself." Then, like a son writing home to father, the sergeant confidingly imparts family matters to his old colonel and signs himself "most gratefully and respectfully yours."

Cheered by Remembrance.

Just the knowledge that he is thought of is big compensation to another man who never will be well again. "It's nice," he writes, "to think that, although some of us will be in the hospital for the rest of our lives, some one on the outside thinks of us."

Here is a good sport—Sport Waller, who is in the National Military home in California. "Major," he begins, "I can't put in writing how much I thank you. You know a fellow gets blamed blue once in a while, but I guess that's life. There is another fellow here out of the Twenty-eighth and he has not walked a step since '18. I can get around, so I am pretty thankful at that."

And that good sport signs himself, "Your humble comrade," adding in a postscript about one of his presents, "Major, that was some book!"

One doomed man in a southern state begins gallantly: "Colonel, I salute you." . . . Then courtly thanks. . . . Then these piteous lines: "Please, colonel, excuse this short letter of appreciation, but I am really not able to write much as I am a 'one lunger' and am down but not out."

No Surrender for Him.

No, the man will not surrender. That word was not understood in his division, and he bids his commander remember:

"You remember the record of our old division, of always taking their objective or die trying. Well, that's me and I still have the morale and am still fighting and have been now for eight years. . . . So I am closing ly again saluting you. . . . And I hope you will understand my inability to write you as I would like to."

Private Louis ——, a veteran of foreign birth who is in a hospital in the far west received from his commanding officer a book among other things. That book he promises to read, and evidently the writing of the promise drove him to the lexicon, where he found many luxuriant words, as follows:

"And accordingly, as am assigning my self in reading and studying every article or sweet and human expression that is supposed to correctly guide every human being to the right and pleasant destination, I will not fall of reading and studying the book that you, sir, have provided to me, and as have said intentionally to learn all the good suggestions or instructions that the said book contains . . . May our Supreme Father be thankful to you for me—and am heartly expressing to you, sir, and your family—a very happy New Year and a very joyous life for the time being.

"With respect am sincerely yours,

"LOUIS R.
"Good By."

Heroes Don't Complain.

Never a moan from any of the men who have written these bundles of letters that came from fourteen states of the Union. But when wives write for husbands too weak to guide a pen, the aching heart finds voice. Thus:

"I am writing this letter to you for my husband, William P. L—, who is a patient in this government hospital. He wants to thank you one and all for your kindness and for the Christmas box he received . . . He just brightened right up and smiled up at me and said: 'Gee, aren't they good:'

"And let me tell you he never took that happy smile off his face the whole time I was there, and it made me very happy to see him smiling and so bright. So you see that kindness of yours made two souls happy on Christmas day. . . My husband was a real hero in the war, just as he is now. He received many citations for bravery as well as medals, and a French decoration for bravery. He was a real hero.

"He was shell shocked, wounded and gassed, and now he is failing very fast and my heart is broken, because he is such a good man. He is good as gold and I think the world of him.

"I visit him every Sunday—never missed a Sunday in two years and I visit him all holidays besides, and he just waits for me to come. The doctors and the nurse tell me how good he feels when he knows it is Sunday."

WATCH AND WARD SOCIETY MAY QUIT; THIRD OFFICER RESIGNS

Boston, Mass., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The resignation of Dr. David D. Scannell, prominent Boston surgeon, from the board of directors of the Watch and Ward society, in protest against the organization's activities in the now famous Dunster book case, has created a furor within the society membership.

The resignation, following close on the withdrawals of Bishop Lawrence as a vice president and of Prof. Julian L. Coolidge of Harvard from the board of directors, it became known tonight, has created a crises involving possibly the organization's continued existence.

Members of the Watch and Ward, apprised of the most recent resignation today, were frank in expressing apprehension as to its effect on the society, and the suggestion that the organization may be forced to abandon, or at least curtail, its activities was made in several instances.

GEN. PERSHING IN UNANNOUNCED VISIT TO CITY

Gen. John J. Pershing and his son, Warren, entered and left Chicago yesterday without comment on the announced project to draft the general as a senatorial candidate. They entered the city unannounced and left on the Capitol limited, bound for Washington. They arrived aboard the Burlington lines after a visit of several weeks with Gen. Pershing's sister at Lincoln, Neb.

When Mark Woods, Nebraska political and business leader, announced on Saturday that friends of the war chief had banded together to urge him to become a candidate for the senate against Senator George W. Norris, progressive, in the Aug. 19 primaries, Gen. Pershing was asked his sentiments and stated he "hadn't thought about it." Woods asserted that public sentiment would probably elect the general if he could be persuaded to run.

50 HAVE NARROW ESCAPE WHEN ICE BEGINS TO BREAK

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 5.—(AP)—While friends and relatives watched from the shore fifty fishermen narrowly escaped death in Green bay, north of here today, as the breakup of ice trapped them on a huge floe. Racing against time, rescuers brought them all off safely only a minute before the ice was swept out through Death's door into Lake Michigan.

Hundreds of nets and all the fishing equipment were carried away as the men abandoned the floe in their dash to safety.

The breakup occurred shortly after noon, about two miles off shore. Heralded by a rumbling and creaking, a crack in the ice appeared along a 15 mile front. Twenty-five of the men rushed for the shore at once. Some of them had to swim in order to bridge the rapidly widening gap. The other 25 remained behind, believing the crack would close. When it widened instead, seven of them jumped on a horse sled and raced eight miles north to Howard Bay point and got ashore. A sail sled brought off the rest.

HALF-TRUTHS ABOUT NAVIES.

The London Daily Telegraph continues to prepare the case for British sea power in advance of the naval limitation congress in London. The British public is being informed that the United States now has virtual parity in large cruisers with the British; further building, it is concluded, should be confined largely to ships of about 6,000 tons mounting 6 inch guns. Otherwise, it is charged, the United States will not have parity but superiority.

This contention may and no doubt will be accepted as fair by the British public; it may even be accepted by those in this country who believe that this country is safest when Britain possesses the preponderance of force at sea. The British contention is wholly unacceptable to those in this country who mean parity when they say parity.

The British have the world's largest fleet of fast passenger liners, capable of being converted into cruisers mounting 6 inch guns. These passenger ships, when converted, gain in significance as the regular naval ships decrease in numbers, size and striking power. The British merchant fleet will be of the first importance if most of the cruisers of other powers are small and mount 6 inch guns. Against an 8 inch gun cruiser the converted merchantmen will be of considerably less value. It is for that reason, no doubt, that the British wish to keep cruisers small, and, by the same token, the United States is interested in possessing a type naval ship which cannot be challenged by a merchantman.

Mr. Henning recently called attention to the growth of the American merchant marine under the stimulus of recent legislation. We have a few ships capable of being converted into cruisers and in time we shall have more, but there is no reason to anticipate that the American merchant marine in our generation will achieve anything like parity with the British merchant fleet. On the contrary, as Mr. Henning points out in a subsequent article, British shipping interests are taking care that our merchant fleet remain within bounds. By a process of discrimination in rates, threats against shippers who use any but British lines, control of insurance rates and rebates to shippers who confine their business to British lines, our merchant marine is being deprived of cargoes and thereby starved into relative insignificance.

All these facts the Telegraph slides over. Britain has gone on record as conceding parity on the sea to the United States, but British spokesmen gloss over the relevant facts to make their case for apparent rather than real parity. It is to be hoped that the American delegates to the conference will not permit half-truths to provide the basis for naval adjustments between this country and Britain. The advice of the naval experts accompanying our delegation can save us from a position of permanent inferiority on the seas.

RETURN OF LOOT.

George E. Carlson, a commissioner of gas and electricity under Thompson's former administration, and Arthur F. Henderson, president of an electrical supply company, were found guilty by a master in chancery of charging the city $200,000 for materials much of which were never delivered. The master subsequently reported that an accounting was due the city, and the liability of Carlson and Henderson was fixed. The city's judgment against this pair is expected to be more than $100,000.

The first assistant corporation counsel, J. W. Breen, reported to the council finance committee that an offer had been made to pay $20,000 on Carlson's bond. Breen advised the committee to accept this compromise settlement, a recommendation which indicates the sense of public honor in the city hall, and in the city's law department particularly.

Ald. Govier should be gratefully remembered for rebuking this proposal to bargain with men who had misused public funds. "I'll never agree to that," he stated. "Even if both men are judgment proof, we ought to get judgment against them so that we can levy against them if they ever get into any other business or get hold of any money. I'll never vote for any compromise that would enable them to clear their reputations by having the litigation settled out of court."

The practice of compelling politicians who have diverted public money to their private bank accounts to make restitution is a recently revived instrument for the public protection. It is, we believe, an even more serviceable instrument than the criminal prosecution of public malefactors, although we by no means advise the absolution of grafters from criminal liability. In the case of Carlson and Henderson, for instance, the citizens have obtained satisfaction in the civil courts, although the defendants were acquitted on the criminal charge after one jury had disagreed.

If the taxpayers are constantly prepared to use this defensive weapon, the feed box politicians will be deterred, we believe, by the fear of losing their pelf and the expense of litigation from inordinate rapacity. Ald. Govier does not want the weapon weakened by permitting the public to surrender the expedient which the corporation counsel recommends. He deserves the strongest support from his constituents and the entire city.

THE UNDERWORLD CONSPIRACY.

New York thought it had a glimpse of something highly important, if it could be fully revealed, when its big racketeer, Arnold Rothstein, was murdered. Now it feels that more of the same might be found if the truth could be had of the Vitale dinner. It was a testimonial given to Magistrate Albert H. Vitale interrupted by the incursion of a number of holdup men who robbed the guests. Some of the guests were police characters. There was a return of most of the stolen articles, including the gun of a policeman who was present and robbed.

Arrests have been made on the theory that some of the gangsters who were guests knew that the holdup was to be a feature of the dinner, and that theory is decorated with a story, seemingly incredible, that the whole purpose was to recover a murder contract which had been executed as to the murder, but not satisfied as to the payment for it.

Here, as in the Rothstein case, there is the feeling that if a dependable trail could be found it would lead to some important discoveries in the interrelationship of politics and crime. Nearly every great American city has an ill defined picture of a certain interchange of services by the men from whom it gets political action and the men from whom it gets its organized crime. The peril of this is recognized, but it has been sufficiently well masked to protect itself.

It is apparent that a city cannot protect its law and order, its public security, and citizenship, if there is such a conspiracy against it. A city is predestined to violence if its political action is based upon a mutuality of interest giving votes to politicians and immunity to criminals.

PORTENTS IN WASHINGTON.

On Christmas eve the President's office on the White House grounds burned. Friday night of last week the country was given another start to learn that the capitol was on fire. It was not much of a fire, being held to the place of its beginning in a record room in the house of representatives' wing, but can the country be certain that these events are not ominous?

If the person who may be fiddling when the fires are burning could be found it might be easier to perceive what we must apprehend. It may be just the general hysteria in Washington running a fever which gets to the ignition point in spots, or possibly elements in the population overstrained by listening to Mr. Harris of Georgia, Mr. Heflin of Alabama, Mr. Jones of Washington, or even, on occasion, Mr. Borah of Idaho, have decided to end it all and have begun by trying to burn the seat of government.

Even without these portents of fire the omens are none too good for this nation of freemen. The forefathers of the constitution have turned their faces to the wall, preferring not to witness what they cannot control, and it may be that the days of the republic are numbered and that its last page is turned. Then the foxes will chase rabbits in what was once Pennsylvania avenue and George III. will turn to Lord North, observing philosophically: "And how!"

THE HIGHER LIFE ABROAD.

Arthur Ponsonby, British Laborite, goes to the house of lords, having been made a baron in the New Year's honors list. As is not improper for a government which tries to combine the wings of peace with a bullet proof vest, the list inclines rather toward altruism than toward substantial and solid soap, butter and egg men who have been good party providers. One new peer is secretary of a world friendship alliance. (This will cause some of our secretaries to consider the meagerness of reward of good works in American life.) Another is a heavy spender in the encouragement of British aviation. One of the new knights is a composer and another is chairman of the governors of the Shakespeare Memorial theater. Another is a member of the Sulgrave institute. Sweetness and light, the true and the beautiful, it can be seen, paid a little dividend.

Mr. Ponsonby, of distinguished and orthodox political descent, was one of Britain's war made radicals. His objection to the war made him a Laborite, and now being a Laborite makes him a baron. There was a time when if a radical or revolutionary made the peerage the peerage would quickly make him a sober minded stalwart, but Mr. Ponsonby, having been raised in a queen's household, is probably peerage proof. He is not sent into the house of lords to change his opinions, but to vote them.

When Arthur Balfour sunk the American navy he was made an earl. When William Shearer tried to sink the British he was lucky the American government could not find a way to put him in jail. Our truly good will observe how much more attractively both the practical and the altruistic life can be decorated abroad. If they feel a call let no one detain them.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT IF THE ARMY SHOULD WALK OUT?

[Minneapolis Tribune.]

It's a long time since the officers and enlisted men of the United States army have had an increase in pay, as compared with other groups in the federal service.

While the pay of the army has remained virtually stationary since 1908, pay in other branches of the federal service has increased from 25 to 175 per cent. Meantime the cost of living has increased 104 per cent.

While it is obvious that the continued efficiency of the military service requires that it attract and retain, particularly in its officer personnel, men of ability and high professional attainments, unrest and resignations from the service seem to be increasing.

These are facts that speak for themselves. Something ought to be done about it. There are many men in the army who have difficulty in meeting not only the standards expected of them but of providing the merest necessities of life for themselves and their families.

Of course, the army never walks out on the country, or considers such a thing. Its duty is to walk in when there is trouble. Yet the list of resignations shows there is something like a walkout in the army.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HIGH PRICE FOR SAFETY.

A DISTINGUISHED health authority who has had charge of control of epidemics in various parts of the world thought it prudent to be vaccinated against plague. He escaped that fearful disease, but thereafter he paid for his protection by an unusual reaction to cold. Whenever he would swim in cold water he would break out with nettle rash or urticaria or something similar. If the water was very cold he was even more unpleasantly affected. Since he did not gain a great deal from vaccination, plague being a rather rare and unimportant disease, he paid too much for what he got.

Drs. Horton and Brown report six similar cases in their experience. One of the bodies which enters into the formation of that compound mixture that we call protein is histamine. They found this urticaria rash, brought about by exposure to cold, to be due to histamine. Earlier investigators had found histamine in the skin and had proved that it might be responsible for certain disorders.

In the experience of Drs. Horton and Brown histamine may be carried away from the chilled skin and produce fainting, shock, and other constitutional effects. One of the cases they report fainted and had transitory mental disturbance when shocked by the cold water of a stream. Since the urticaria lasts only a short while, treating a person to overcome his susceptibility to histamine is more important than treating him in an attack to effect a cure of his symptoms.

There are two methods of preventive treatment. One is to give daily very small injections of a solution of histamine. The other is to give daily baths, starting with a brief exposure to tepid water and slowly increasing the length of the exposure and lowering the temperature of the water. The latter is nothing more than a modification of the procedure commonly known as hardening by the use of a daily cold bath.

Violent urticaria due to bathing in cold water is rare, but other disorders which may be due to the action of histamine on the skin are not. Among these may be chilblains, Raynaud's disease, cold feet, bath itch, winter itch, and possibly also susceptibility to coryza. For some of these the preventive measures referred to may prove helpful.

EASY ON BICARBONATE.

C. C. writes: Will you please advise whether taking a half teaspoonful of bicarbonate in a half glass of water before bedtime is harmful? I take it then, as it clears the digestive tract of gas.

REPLY:

I think it is.

You seem to take it as a laxative. Habitual taking of laxatives is harmful. In addition, taking soda upsets the acid-alkali balance in the body.

DON'T WORRY, MADAM.

Mrs. B. writes:

1. I must soon have my glasses changed. When I was a child one eye was injured near the pupil, but no visible scar was left. I have worried greatly about its developing as I grow older.

2. Is it necessary to have one's eyes dilated for the best fitting of glasses?

REPLY:

1. No reason for worry or even for investigation if the facts are as given in your letter.

2. It is for young people. It is not for people fifty years of age and over.

ROUGH ON NITS.

Mrs. B. G. writes: Could you tell me any other method for removing nits from children's hair than removing them one by one, or cutting the child's hair?

REPLY:

The subject has received considerable study with the following results:

Wash the hair with quite warm vinegar. This loosens the eggs. Comb the hair with a fine toothed comb.

To remove vinegar from hair rinse with plain water. Wash with soap and water. Rinse. Dry.

To prevent nits from hatching grease the hair well. It is customary to grease the hair after it has been treated, rinsed and dried.

NEW STREET SIGN.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly help us procure a street sign for Thorndale and Mason avenues? B. L. S.

Report is made by the superintendent of the sign division that street signs will be placed at the intersection of Thorndale and Mason avenues within the next week or ten days. JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Deputy Superintendent of Streets.

ARMISTICE DAY SALE.

Is a chattel mortage foreclosure sale held on Armistice day a valid sale? L. H.

Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TAX EXEMPTION OF CHURCH PROPERTIES.

Villa Park, Ill., Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like to ask information about the exemption of church properties from taxation, also that of charitable institutions, cemeteries, and hospitals bearing the name and under the auspices of church societies.

1. Is it a provision of the constitution of the United States to exempt such income bearing and often highly endowed churches and societies, corporations, etc., from taxation?

2. I have heard it was not a federal law, but that the state law of Illinois "permitted" their exemption. H. F. L.

1. No. 2. Correct. The Illinois constitution merely authorizes exemption.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FATHER DEPENDENT ON DAUGHTER.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a daughter living in Wisconsin be compelled to support a dependent father living in Illinois? The wife is unable to support him. The daughter, married, could take care of him. B. H.

We suggest that you take the matter up with the department of social service in the county building.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gnips fall where they may.

SIDEREAL.

On a dark night when the moon is late,
Or does not rise at all,
And heavens are black as quarried slate,
Standing stark and tall,

The daughters of Atlas, seven in all,
With coiffures of silver fair,
Come forth as the Pleiades swarm and fall,
In a clustered mist up there.

Faint and high shines the dipper star,
With Alpha off to the south,
Capella gleams like a lighthouse far,
Some celestial harbor's mouth.

Vega, Canopus, Arcturus, each name,
With Hesperus hanging low,
And the planets burn with fulvous flame,
Like a guttering candle go.

And who is the lamplighter speeds along
With His flambeau in the sky,
To every sphere with its faint, sweet song,
In the curving dome on high?

Who never failed in His rounds aloft,
Through the centuries as they fell,
But treads the skyways so fleet and soft,
And signals "all is well"?

CLARENCE P. MILLIGAN.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL committee announces it has a balance of $135,363, and the Democratic national committee reports at the same time that it owes $449,686. We are waiting for good Bishop Cannon to call attention to the verse which says, "To them that hath shall be given and from them that hath not shall be taken away even that which they hath not." Or something like that.

The Grasshopper Reporters and the Immigrant Ants.

When we read Saturday about David Sarnoff, who came to this country as an immigrant boy, rising to the position of president of the Radio Corporation of America, we remember many years ago, probably about the time that David was landing on our shores, there was a crowd of us, all happy and mirthful reporters, romping about on a Sunday afternoon down around the Battery in New York. A long line of immigrants, following one another like a flock of geese, clattering in wooden shoes, and each with a pack carried by a stick over his shoulder. One of the more thoughtless of our carefree band pointed out the immigrants and laughed at their strange clothes. Whereupon one of our mirthful group, much wiser than the rest, raised a protesting hand and said solemnly: "Don't laugh, boys; you'll be going around to some of those immigrants in ten or fifteen years begging for a job." There is probably a moral to this true tale, but it's good enough just as it stands.

MONDAY! And it's a good thing. Christmas and New Year's and the holidays in between got us all mixed up. Every morning last week after New Year's day we thought it was Monday and began feeling blue. But now we can start right. This is Monday! And good and blue! Oh, plenty! What with a lot of people who have to get back on the job and those who haven't any job to get back on to, and cold and rain and slush and the city pay roll slashed and a lot of policemen fired and no signs of a subway being started in Chicago. Oh, blue! Ultramarine blue! And we've lost the dollar and thirty-five cents we were saving to buy tickets to the big Chicago World's Fair in 1933. Blue Monday! Gosh, there ought to be a Wailing Wall in this town.

Why, the Very Idea!

"When sin and Satan usurp power it is the duty of every one to disobey." Strong language! That fellow must have been one of the Boston speakers at the massmeeting last week denouncing the killing of the three rum runners by U. S. coast guardsmen. But let's read on: "Such a government ought to be put out of existence as a piracy against mankind! Our submission is sin! Suppose our government became so perverted a revolution became necessary—then what!" Well, well, those anti-prohibition speakers certainly talked right out. But wait! We're all mixed up! What we quoted isn't in protest of the killing of the rum runners by the coast guardsmen. Oh, no; it's from a sermon by the Rev. George Barrell Cheever in the Church of the Puritans in New York, April 5, 1857. The Rev. Cheever was speaking against the decision of the United States Supreme court in the Dred Scott case.

OHIO REPORTS a very brilliant meteor diving earthward. It was "flaming red, green, and yellow, and accompanied by a menacing detonation and a horrible rumble." Stuff and nonsense! That description explains everything. That wasn't a meteor. No! That was Bill Borah on his way to Washington to stir up the prohibition law.

THE BELOVED.

She, too, walked the paved road of youth—
Nor swerved nor temporized—
Clear eyed and garmented in truth,
So lovely and so wise.

But, blind as fog up from the sea,
Whirled life a little mad.
"Come, sweet," he said, "and dance with me.
I'll teach you to be sad.

"As lover, I would work my will.
Dry salt the tears I'll lave,
That you may lie content and still Beside me in the grave."

JUDY SHEA.

LAGNIAPPE.

FIRST there was the fire at the White House, next the fire in the great dome of the capitol building! How did those fires start? Is it a plot? Let a commission be appointed at once! But, shucks; in that case we won't know for years, and if somebody is starting those fires they'll have time to set fire to the Potomac river and burn the darn thing up. But we bet Mr. Hoover will appoint a commission just the same. All right, we don't want to know what started the fires anyway. (Sour grapes!)

LETTEM go to California, or Florida, or the gulf ports, or where they will (if they've still got money). We'll stay at home and plow through the snowdrifts and keep an eye open for blizzards. But, one thing, we stay-at-homes can eat sausage and buckwheat cakes. Oh, they can get 'em in Miami and Los Onglaise and Biloxi, too, but buckwheat cakes and sausage haven't got any kick unless there's plenty of ice and snow outside.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 6, 1865.

THE NEWS.—The articles in the rebel press nowadays are significant of the decadence of the rebel scheme. They are full of wailing and bitterness. The end of the rebellion is near, if the government and the people do their whole remaining duty of filling up the armies and pushing forward the war.

WASHINGTON.—Richmond papers of Jan. 3 have been received. The Richmond Enquirer contains the following: "Colonial vassalage is a preferable thing to Yankee slavery. It would be a good bargain to receive the material aid of England and France by a formal sacrifice of our institution of slavery."

NEW YORK.—The Times correspondent at Savannah says there are no active military operations to record, but on every side there are evidences of immense preparations. The army believes Charleston will be the next point of attack.

DECATUR, Ala.—A dispatch from Courtland, Ala., says Gen. Stedman's cavalry have pursued, captured and burned Hood's pontoon bridges, and captured 600 mules, 100 wagons and 200 hogs.

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of War Stanton has departed for Fortress Monroe, Hilton Head and Savannah, to consult with Gens. Grant, Foster, and Sherman.

SPRINGFIELD. — Gov. Richard Yates was elected United States senator from Illinois for six years by the legislature.

CHICAGO.—Miss Sarah A. Watrous and Lucillus B. Lawrence, both of this city, were married on Jan. 4 by the Rev. S. M. Osgood.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 6, 1900.

LONDON.—There is a rumor today that Col. Baden-Powell has defeated the Boers at Mafeking. A dispatch from Frere Camp says there was firing on the 5th at Ladysmith and Colenso. There are indications that Gen. Buller's big fight on the Tugela has commenced.

CHICAGO. — The pro-Boer massmeeting in Central Music hall was an enthusiastic and sensational gathering. The British government was denounced violently, President McKinley was severely criticized, and the names of many prominent Chicagoans were hissed by the big audience. Among the names hissed were those of Dr. E. B. Andrews, Judges Farlin Q. Ball, Abner Smith, A. M. Waterman, and R. S. Tuthill, Queen Victoria, W. W. Astor, and Cecil Rhodes.

CHICAGO.—Robert T. Lincoln and Norman B. Ream, executors of the estate of George M. Pullman, were allotted $425,000 for their services. The final accounting probably will be made next week. The value of the estate likely will amount to nearly $14,000,000.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 6, 1920.

PARIS.—The supreme council has tentatively set Jan. 10 for the ratification of the treaty of Versailles.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The last hope of the west for annulment of the wartime prohibition law was smashed by the decision of the Supreme court upholding the right of congress to define by legislation the amount of alcohol which constitutes an intoxicating liquor.

NEW YORK.—"Babe" Ruth, holder of the world's home run record in baseball—twenty-nine—was sold by the Boston Red Sox to the New York Yankees for a sum estimated in excess of $75,000.

CHICAGO.—Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, playing before the largest crowd ever packed in a county building courtroom, won a divorce from Luigi Curci. Judge Charles A. McDonald of the Superior court indicated he would sign a decree. The charge against Luigi was infidelity.

CHICAGO.—William "Smiley" Corbett, who laughed his way through life, smiled his way out of it last night. A few minutes before he died in his home at 4739 Sheridan road he bade his wife, sisters, and a priest good-by, smiled, and closed his eyes. "Smiley" was perhaps the best known of all loop hounds, and his old place, the Lambs' café, was the gathering spot for actors, sporting men, politicians, and the "old timers."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

REFORM THROUGH PRECINCT CAPTAINS.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—George O. Fairweather suggested the electing of precinct committeemen in Chicago instead of ward committeemen. B. W. Snow stated it would be unwise, as it would put the ward committeeman further from the public. This is true, but usually the further they are from the public the better it is for the public.

From the standpoint of the factional leaders, ward committeemen are better for them than precinct committeemen, for it permits the factional leaders or any one with political aspirations and plenty of money to start up new factions and leaves a large opening for graft between the higher-ups and these factional leaders. It is easy to control a majority of fifty ward committeemen, but a very hard job to control over three thousand precinct committeemen.

Make your elected officials directly responsible to three thousand precinct committeemen and their attitudes will change.

If precinct committeemen were elected they would be in close contact with their constituents and each committeeman would be fighting for his individual precinct, which would bring the public into close contact with its elected officials and thereby eliminate graft; also factions.

As the primary law of Illinois is unconstitutional as it now stands, with precinct committeemen elected throughout the state, except Chicago, where ward committeemen are elected, what service would be greater to the public than for some newspaper or organization carrying the above law to the Supreme court and thereby eliminate the curse in our city politics—namely: ward committeemen, graft, and factions?

THE ALL STARS.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—The headline appearing in the sport section of THE TRIBUNE on Jan. 2, "Big Nine Players Star in Eastern Team's Victory," did not do justice to other players not in the Big Nine. The three outstanding stars for the east were Naguski of Minnesota, Glassgow of Iowa, and Cannon of Notre Dame. Cannon and Glassgow are not players in the Big Nine, but they were plenty of noise out on the west coast New Year's day.

It looks as though the author of that writeup was antagonistic toward Iowa.

S. W. GOODENOUGH.

SAGE ON CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.

Berwyn, Ill., Jan. 1.—It was with great interest that I read the recent comments of Robert Sage on conditions in Czecho-Slovakia. His articles attracted considerable attention on the west side and in the western suburbs, where a quarter of a million people of Czecho-Slovakia origin reside.

No doubt Mr. Sage was trying to be fair, but he did not get the right perspective during his brief visit to Prague or Bratislava. It would appear that he misapprehends the situation in Slovakia, where only a minority of the more conservative Slovaks engage in domestic quarrels with Prague, like the western farmers here do with Washington, or the remarks about the backward states. But they stand united against outside interference. Mr. Sage also emphasizes the fact that there are 19 parties in Czecho-Slovakia, which condition is common in European countries where the system of proportional representation prevails. I am sure that President Masaryk has less trouble with his 19 parties than our President Hoover has with his two major parties plus the insurgents.

You say that the 11 year old rule is far from being satisfactory, and while it is admitted that Czecho-Slovakia is encountering many difficulties, most American observers agree that the country has already achieved surprisingly good results; that democracy in Czecho-Slovakia is reality; that racial quarrels have subsided, and that economic conditions are more than satisfactory.

VACLAV F. CIPRA.

FINANCING RADIO PROGRAMS.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—"Seevy F.," writing in the Voice of the People, looks the gift horse right in the mouth. During the last few years millions of dollars have been spent to improve radio broadcasting. New stations, increased power, more modern equipment, better and higher priced talent, stars of national and international fame, development of chains that bring the best programs to listeners of small and remote stations, and all this absolutely free to the listeners.

Much of the improvement has been made possible only through the financial support of radio advertisers. There may be a comparatively few listeners who would prefer a radio tax in lieu of the advertising, but thus far no practical tax plan has been worked out or suggested in this country, and in Europe, where it is being tried, it has proved most unsatisfactory.

Advertising announcements usually are but a very brief part of excellent programs. Tonight at 8:30 an advertising program was broadcast over W-G-N, during which the total time consumed for advertising and station announcements, including call letters, etc., was but four minutes, and the rest of the high class program occupied fifty-six minutes.

Compare the class of programs being broadcast today with the junk sent out on the air without advertising five or six years ago and then decide which you prefer. A REAL RADIO FAN.

THE PLAN OF SAN DIEGO.

Clinton, Ia., Dec. 20.—I read Mr. Henning's expose of the Great Mexican San Diego conspiracy with a great deal of mirth. The next time he writes a plot dream I trust it will not break down from its own weight. Any one at all familiar with the history of our trouble with Mexico, and the condition of that country at that time, will not be deceived by his exposé.

It was no trouble for England during the late war to decode whatever she wanted to decode in her efforts to get us in the late war, and to pull her chestnuts out of the fire, which were the greatest navy in the world and the control of the sea. Her propaganda mill's were running overtime putting out false stories, which a hysterical people sucked in as if it were honey instead of death dew. The great conspiracy finally culminated in Funston finding a body of four hundred men marching on the United States with a view to recapturing Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona.

Now, really, is it not laughable? You wasted a large amount of printer's ink.

Displays of Set Tables

An aisle of tables—many of them set by prominent Chicago hostesses who have gained recognition for their distinguished tables—has been arranged in the Main Store on the Second Floor

In the Evanston Store and the West Suburban Store, Oak Park, as well as in the Main Store, groups of tables planned for the moderate budget are on display.

Style Show of Southern Wear

will take place in the Walnut Grill tomorrow at luncheon and at tea time. Mannequins—wearing the brightest of new southern clothes—selected by our stylist—will parade between 12 a. m. and 2 p.m. and between 4 p.m. and 5 p. m.

Seventh Floor, South, State

Go South if Only to Wear the New Clothes!

What have we here? Trousers—the Mary Nowitsky Suit—trousers and more trousers—the backless sun suit

You'll have to forgive us, we utter a few superlatives now and then—for even we weren't prepared for such loveliness as the new Southern clothes are showing. And you'll never know how hard it was selecting just these few things to sketch from all the lovely ones.

APPAREL, SIXTH FLOOR—MILLINERY, FIFTH FLOOR

10:30 finds us up and off to the Bath and Tennis Club clad in the little Shantung suit with a Shantung hat to match, from Fashion Bureau (Sixth Floor, Middle, State) if we are going to watch the game—or in one of the new tennis suits which consist of jersey knit shirt and pique skirt if we are to play it. From the Sports Section, Sixth Floor, Middle, Wabash.

2 o'clock finds us lunching at the Patio la Maize if we have felt ambitious enough to dress (otherwise Bath and Tennis club as we are!) And we wear these cunning things we found in the Misses' Section (Sixth Floor, South, State) with cape or cap sleeves —or, another charming possibility, a frock from the Costume Room of flat crepe with huge velvet bows. Women's Costumes, Sixth Floor, South, Wabash.

4 o'clock finds us out for a stroll or a roll in our wheel chairs wearing a terrifically smart white lace knit jersey frock with a little black and blue belt. From the Sports Apparel, Sixth Floor, Middle, Wabash, or Rodier cloth coat with new sleeves (Women's Coats, Sixth Floor, North, State)

And we found the perfect hat to wear with it! Maline with white wool embroidery. Street and Sports Section, Fifth Floor.

5:45—the setting is Breakers or Whitehall, the time—tea time—and the frocks two perfectly charming ones—a printed chiffon from the Misses' Section, Sixth Floor, South, State—and a youthful little lace model with cape sleeves from Women's Costumes, Sixth Floor, South, Wabash.

The large hats we found in the American Room, Fifth Floor.

8 o'clock and on—shall it be the Colony Club or the Everglades? It makes so little difference so long as we are under the tropical stars, and wearing one of the new flat crepe evening gowns from the Fashion Bureau, Sixth Floor, Middle, State, with a heavenly neckline —and a little cape wrap in an important shade—pink—with an important bow in the back. From the Misses' Coats, Sixth Floor, North, State the striped linen suit if we want to just sit and bask—and cast off the coat for a good bake! the Mary Nowitsky suit of many colors if we take our bathing seriously. Original from Fashion Bureau; copies from the Sports Section.

The linen beach suit, middle, in heavenly color contrasts such as burnt orange and brown, two tone green.

Sports Apparel
Sixth Floor, Middle, Wabash

Just about the smartest thing we've seen! Black and white knit shirt—matching beret—and white pique trousers! The most exciting thing about this backless suit of black jersey and blue linen is its cape of large blue awning stripes.

'NOW'S THE TIME!' RUSSIAN REDS TELL U. S. REDS

"Start a Revolution!" Moscow Orders.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 5.—Further detailed instructions concerning methods the American communist party must use to take advantage of the "present economic crisis in the United States" have been published in the official organ of the communist party, the Moscow Pravda, which believes the opening guns of class warfare will soon be heard in United States.

Reports of a coal miners' strike in Illinois forecasts the storm, says the newspaper. It announces Moscow's success in liquidating factional fights within United States communist ranks, which leaves the present organization, with its 10,000 members, free to follow Moscow's instructions on how to develop an American revolution.

Urges War on A. F. of L.

The Pravda says the drive for increased membership, now on, must give particular attention to the more exploited classes of the American proletariat including unskilled labor, Negroes, women and youths. It stresses the importance of the formation of the new "League of United Trade Unions" as the chief enemy of the American Federation of Labor.

It says this league, with members within ranks of old unions, can bore from within and develop class warfare by opening a merciless fight against employers and the bourgeois American government. American communists are also instructed to work among unemployed in a campaign for unemployment insurance, a seven hour work day and a five day working week.

"Development of unemployment may play an important rôle in America in the coming months, and the Negro question will increase its importance," says the Pravda. "The American communist party must support the Negroes, who are demanding complete racial, social and political equality.

The Danger of War.

"American communists must also make special efforts to give the fight of the American workers an international character and destroy the illusion of American isolation. They must demonstrate against putting the Young reparations plan into effect against the danger of war and for the protection of the soviet government."

Since the deflation on the New York stock exchange more news has been cabled to Russia by New York and Washington correspondents of the soviet press than ever before. The smallest strike in America brings big headlines in Moscow papers, which devote columns to articles speculating on the possibility of a collapse of America as an industrial colossus.

Russians' Vision Distorted.

Knowledge of America is slight among Russians. Readers of soviet papers have a queer idea of the remainder of the world, which they believe is verging on revolution. Through ten years of censorship and twisting of news, the communists have succeeded in getting the population to believe that the economic and industrial situation abroad is just as bad, if not worse, than in Russia.

The average workingman in Moscow, standing in line for his daily pound of black bread, believes that his line is shorter than the ones in New York and Chicago.

FIREMEN DISMISSED BY NEW MAYOR WILL NOT SURRENDER JOBS

New Albany, Ind., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Ninety per cent of New Albany's firemen have been ordered dismissed by the new city administration, which takes office here Monday noon, but they say they won't quit. As a consequence there will be two sets of fire chiefs and squads.

The new administration, headed by Charles B. McLinn, dismissed as school superintendent two years ago only to be elected as the first Republican mayor in years, intends to use its new police force to settle the dispute.

Valuable Hawthorne First Editions Found in Canada

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 5.—Examining a pile of old books purchased for a few dollars, Mrs. Dora Hood of Toronto, Canadian book collector, found a perfect first edition of Nathaniel Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" with the signature of Anson Jones, the last president of the Republic of Texas, who killed himself at Houston in 1858. In the same collection was a two volume first edition of Hawthorne's "Marble Faun." The "Scarlet Letter" is valued at about $1,500 and the "Marble Faun" at $1,000.

LOOK OUT FOR COUNTERFEIT $10 NOTE, U.S. WARNS

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Warning of the appearance of a new counterfeit $10 federal reserve note has been sent out by the federal reserve bank of New York. The bill is described as being poorly executed and easy of detection. It is a counterfeit of a federal reserve bank of Chicago note, carrying a check letter "I," face plate No. 9, back plate No. 174, with a portrait of Hamilton, and carries the signature of H. T. Tate, treasurer of the United States, and A. W. Mellon, the secretary of the treasury.

APIA, British Samoa, Jan. 5.—The TRIBUNE correspondent arrived in Apia today on a chartered sloop in an effort to substantiate the New Zealand mandate government's charge that the natives provoked the riot on Dec. 28 in which nine Samoans and one white policeman were killed, 19 Samoans seriously wounded and 30 Samoans slightly wounded.

An impartial inquiry, which included interviews with the administrator, Col. S. S. Allen, Police Inspector Brisby, numerous of the wounded, and various Samoan chieftains, as well as foreign residents of three nationalities besides the British, the majority of the opinions expressed indicated that certain New Zealand mandate officials provoked the trouble.

Would Cede Islands to U. S.

The encounter, in the opinion of a number of neutral observers here, was welcomed by New Zealand officials in order to provide argument in advance of the receipt in the next few days of the Samoan petition which was sent direct to King George asking that the mandate be assumed by the British government, thus ending control by New Zealand. Failing in this, the chiefs have signed a petition, which proposes the ceding of all their territory to America, hoping a way may be found in America to consolidate the entire Samoan group.

These points seem established, having been brought out Thursday when an inquest was begun, being conducted by Chief Judge Luxford of New Zealand. The inquest adjourned until Monday, when the defense opens.

Testimony Thursday established the fact that the Samoan casualties were caused by machine gun fire and possibly some Colt revolvers in the hands of the police, while the sole foreign victim, Constable Abrams, was killed by a stone, probably thrown by a native bystander, since there is no evidence that any parader fired on or ar stoned the police.

Cause of Riot.

The conflict was caused when the police stopped the parade for the alleged purpose of arresting the bandmaster for the failure to pay his poll tax some years ago. This pretext is considered in impartial circles to have been designed to provoke the conflict and to influence King George and the privy council in London to continue New Zealand's control over these islands, taken from Germany during the world war.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent visited numerous encampments of the Mau, a native political organization. Their leaders insisted that the Samoans contemplate no reprisal and certainly no further appeals until the reply to their petition to King George is received.

[On Dec. 17, 1920, the former German Samoan islands, Upolu Apolima, and Manono were assigned under mandate to New Zealand by the league of nations. The British occupied the islands on Aug. 29, 1914, less than a month after the world war began. The British controlled islands are now known as the Territory of Western Samoa. Eastern Samoa, a smaller group of islands, has been a United States possession since 1900. The Dec. 28 riots occurred at Apia, on the Island of Upolu.]

CALIFORNIA GETS RAIN AFTER FOUR MONTHS' DROUGHT

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—The parched southland got its first drink in four months today when rain began to fall at 6 o'clock this morning.

The storm sweeping down from the northwest was moving rapidly south and the local weather bureau said that the fall would be general to the Mexican border.

The first snow of the season fell at Yosemite park last night and continued heavily today, ending the driest period in the park since 1917.

CELLMATE STORY OF TAYLOR CASE SENT LOS ANGELES

In a Los Angeles jail in 1922 a Chinese confided to his cellmate that he feared he was to be accused of the murder of William Desmond Taylor, movie director whose death is still a mystery. Yesterday the story told by the Chinese was in the mail for the chief of police of Los Angeles, sent by Coroner Herman N. Bundesen for what it is worth.

Sergt. Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office was told by a Chicago business man that one of his employés was the cellmate of the Chinese, and the employé's statement was as follows:

"The Chinaman was called out for questioning and when he returned he was relieved. He said he thought the police were going to question him about the Taylor murder, but they only asked him about being caught carrying a revolver. He told me he had been planted in Taylor's home to kill him because Taylor had difficulties with the narcotic interests. The Chinaman said he was connected with the opium traffic and he was paid $1,000 to kill Taylor."

The employé was held on a booze charge at the time, Reynolds was told, and he believed the name of the Chinese was Harry Lee, alias Harry Young, and he has heard that Lee is in San Quentin penitentiary.

BRITAIN'S HAWKS OF WAR GROWING SPEEDIER WINGS

Sky Army Now Flies at 180 Mile an Hour Clip.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—An improvement in the equipment of the royal air force is providing England with a fighting air army 30 miles an hour faster than that which it previously possessed. In round figures Great Britain's air force is passing from the 150 mile stage to a 180 mile clip.

A replacement of the older types of aircraft by more modern planes is taking place in four classes—single seater fighters, interception fighters, fleet fighters, and day bombers.

Fight at Greater Height.

Four squadrons of the royal air force are being equipped with the new Bulldog fighter, which, with a speed of 174 miles an hour at 10,000 feet altitude, replaces a type plane which made 158 miles an hour. At 20,000 feet ceiling the new plane makes 167 miles an hour against its predecessor's 156. It climbs to 20,000 feet in 14½ minutes, three and one-half minutes faster than the old plane, and has a service ceiling of 27,000 feet, 4,000 feet higher than the present fighter. All these figures are for a plane carrying a full military load, under which conditions the Bulldog reached 26,500 feet in 27 minutes. Much greater speeds could be attained without full loads.

Research work is also under way to perfect new interception planes, particularly to develop rapid climbing. This improvement was necessitated by the production of faster day bombers, which the last air maneuvers over London showed could break through the anti-aircraft and aerial defense and theoretically destroy the city.

It has not yet been decided whether an air cooled or water cooled engine is best for the interception fighters, so both types are being made and will make exhaustive tests under actual service conditions.

Build Faster Bomber.

England's latest fast bomber is of Hawk Hart type. It will make 177½ miles an hour at 5,000 feet, 172 miles an hour at 10,000 feet, 163 miles an hour at 15,000 feet, and 129 miles an hour at 20,000 feet, in every case with a full load. It climbs 15,000 feet in 10 minutes.

The increase in speed of the British fighting machine is due to the research in developing the machine which won the Schneider trophy. The important factors are improved engine design, giving greater power for the same weight; improved superchargers; and aerodynamic improvements cutting down air resistance.

Coincident with these developments it is learned that Britain has tested successfully what is perhaps the fastest fighting machine in the world, the new Fairey Rolls-Royce plane with

Army "Arctic Patrol" Planes to Wage Mimic Winter War

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Eighteen army pursuit planes and two tri-motored transports, forming the "arctic patrol" of the first pursuit group, will take off from Selfridge field, Mich., next Wednesday morning for a week of maneuvers over a 3,500 mile mimic battle front stretching from Detroit, Mich., to Spokane, Wash.

Final arrangements for the maneuvers, which will mark the first attempt of a large plane fleet to engage in mock warfare under subarctic conditions, were announced by the war department today. Maj. Ralph Royce will be in command.

Equipped with skis instead of the usual landing gear, the score of army ships will take off and land upon fields which at this time of year are coated with ice and snow. They will perform all varieties of tactics that would become necessary should the United States become involved in a war which would carry its air forces into the northwest, Alaska, or any other extremely cold territory.

Start from Detroit.

Leaving Selfridge field early Wednesday morning the fleet is scheduled to arrive in Spokane the following Monday, flying via Duluth, Minn.; Minot, N. D., and Great Falls, Mont. After a one day stop over in Spokane it will return via Miles City, Mont.; Fargo, N. D., and Warsaw, Wis., arriving at Selfridge field Thursday, Jan. 16.

"While the primary purpose of the 'arctic patrol' is to test the efficiency of planes, personnel, and equipment under the most severe winter conditions to be found south of the polar regions, its secondary object is to obtain first hand experience in the value of short wave radio in connection with army air corps operations in remote sections and covering long distances," the war department announcement stated.

In conjunction with the flight, a new radio station will take the air when station AB-6, installed in one of the transport planes, will inaugurate a series of short wave communication experiments while the ship is in transit.

Plan Radio Communication.

Constant communication will be kept up during the flight hours with the army signal corps network through stations at Chicago and seven other central cities, all of which will be in constant direct communication with the army message center in Washington, D. C. Regular communication will be kept with members of the American Radio Relay league each night and each morning before take-off with the Schenectady laboratories of the General Electric company.

"This will be the first time in history that the nation will be able to follow by ear the progress of army air corps airplanes across the country," the announcement asserted.

AIR MAIL POUNDAGE IS NEARLY DOUBLED, REPORT OF '29 SHOWS

A gain of nearly 100 per cent in the amount of mail carried over the 25 domestic air routes in 1929 was reported yesterday by the American Air Transport association. Approximately 7,000,000 pounds of mail were flown during the year. In 1928 the total was 3,542,079 pounds.

Chicago served as the center of the air mail system, the eastern and western halves meeting here and 64 per cent of all air mail was cleared through the Chicago postoffice, according to the association's report. Seven companies operate eight routes converging here on 18 daily schedules.

"While the 14,337 mile length of air mail airways remained about unchanged during the last year," the report said, "the pilots flew 15,695,000 miles, or an average of 43,000 miles a day. In 1928 7,846,296 miles were flown."

The association attributed the increase in poundage and miles flown to the addition of lighting equipment on many routes, permitting more night flying. The report predicted a greater expansion into the south and into South America during 1930.

2 Boy Skaters Drown When Ice Breaks; 4 Saved

Collinsville, Ill., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Two boys were drowned in Junghan's pond south of here late today while skating on "rubber ice," one of them going to his death in an attempt to rescue the other. Four other boys narrowly escaped a similar fate. The dead, both of Collinsville, are Jack Albrecht, 13, and George Crooks Jr., 9.

YRIGOYEN LOSES ELECTION FIGHT IN OLD STRONGHOLD

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 5.—President Hipolito Yrigoyen's prestige has suffered the first serious electoral setback in the elections at La Plata for a governor and vice governor of the province of Buenos Aires. La Plata has long been one of President Yrigoyen's strongholds and the victory of a Conservative by a margin of 518 votes came as a cold douche to the radical enthusiasm despite the fact that the radicals are certain to carry the province as a whole.

The Yrigoyenists minimize the defeat as a mere election freak, but the Conservatives hail it, declaring it was due to the growing disillusionment of the electorate, which sees blunder after blunder committed by "the bunch of amateurs installed in the government house."

The March elections for national deputies are now awaited with extraordinary interest, as it is believed there will be a larger poll, and that they will register another blow to the radicals.

Parked, warm and dry, while the family fights the storm

Down in some garage the family car is sheltered while the family shivers as it plods through the sleet of winter. Father drove it to work this morning. So the family goes to school, to the grocer, to visit, wading through the snowdrifts, shivering.

When a man parks the family car in a garage he helps winter put shackles on his family. He invites illness to his home. Without a car, the family is confined indoors or must venture over icy pavements and through slushy puddles.

Free the family from winter! Get a second car in which your wife can get about. Eliminate her winter nerves, born of loneliness and boredom. Keep the children well and at school. Let them have a car. AIR LINES GROW AT FAST PACE IN SOUTH AMERICA

Miami Becomes Big Base of Operations.

BY ROBERT WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 5.—Aviation has brought new commercial importance to this boom city. Within the last year it has become the principal operations base in the bloodless war America is waging against France and Germany for control of the last unexploited markets of world commerce in the Caribbean and South America.

Unless some effort is made to divert South American air trade to Chicago by establishing a line running directly north from Panama across the Gulf to New Orleans, there to connect with the projected continental line to Chicago, Miami seems destined to become the chief terminal for air commerce between the two continents.

For the last two years the extension of lines in South America has forged ahead more rapidly than in the United States. Today more than 14,000 miles of air routes, almost equal to the entire United States domestic air mail system, are in regular operation.

Cities Closer Together.

Airplanes are now vaulting high mountains and impenetrable jungles which have hindered the development of railroads. The continent is open to the greatest possible extension of air transport. In many instances a three hour flight covers distances which formerly took close to a month to negotiate by surface travel. The three principal cities—Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, and Santiago, Chile—are within two days of each other by plane, as against a week, at best, by steamer.

At present the major markets in Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, and Venezuela are farther from the United States in travel time than from continental Europe. French and German air transport routes are now heavily subsidized between the east coast markets, a second German company in the northwest and a third in Bolivia.

Extension Planned.

This country is just beginning to realize its backwardness in fostering air connections with the countries to the south. The postoffice department recently announced that an item of $1,500,000 has been provided in the budget for the next year for the extension of air mail alone down the east coast of South America.

Two years ago the United States had no representation in commercial aviation south of the Gulf of Mexico. Now Pan-American Airways and the newly formed New York, Rio and Buenos Aires line are fighting to dominate in the Atlantic coast route from New York to South America. Pickwick Airways, Inc., flying from Los Angeles to Guatemala City along the Pacific coast, contemplates the extension of their line southward to connect with Pan-American and divert east coast commerce to their line.

Wide Territory Covered.

Pan-American is already established with its air line radiating southward from Miami through the West Indies, Mexico, Central and South America as far south as Santiago, Chile, and Buenos Aires. They fly in regularly scheduled operation through Cuba over the Antilles, across most of the northern coast of South America to Panama and thence via Central America back to Havana with another line running down the west coast to Santiago and over the Andes to Buenos Aires.

The line extending down the east coast from Port au Spain, Trinidad, to Paramaribo will be pushed farther down the Atlantic coast before the year is out. The company has about 12,000 miles of foreign air routes with mail contracts for all from the United States and other concessions from the countries served.

New Line Planned.

Running in competition with Pan-American will be the New York and Buenos Aires line which will fly 8,000 miles along the Atlantic coast all the way from New York to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires and thence westward across the lofty Andes and paralleling Pan-American's transcontinental route to Santiago.

Whitney on Air Inspection.

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, president of the Aviation Corporation of America, arrived by airplane today from Miami for an inspection of the Panama division of the Pan-American airways, a subsidiary of the corporation. He said that two 41 passenger, four motored, amphibian planes were being built to provide direct dawn to dusk service between Miami and Panama.

THRONGS BEHOLD U. OF C. CANDLE LIGHTING RITUAL

2,000 Attend Ceremonial of Epiphany.

Two thousand people came forth last evening from the moonlit quadrangles and residential environs of the University of Chicago to take part in the candle lighting service with which the university commemorates the Epiphany, or manifestation of Jesus to the gentiles.

That service is strangely blended of heart searching simplicity and majestic antiphonals, and its setting is one of the most glorious Gothic fabrics in the western world. It was instituted at the university on Epiphany Sunday of 1928 and it instantly made a deep appeal to the imagination and the devotional feelings of persons of many creeds and of no creed.

It combines the reading of passages from St. Luke and St. Matthew that are defined as "the Christmas gospels," and the singing of hymns drawn from many ages and many lands of Christendom. Its climax is reached when, amid music so soft that it seems a worshiping silence, the vast chapel is slowly darkened.

Repeats Words of Matthew.

From the chancel comes the voice of a reader who is repeating the words of St. Matthew:

"Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house."

As the reader pauses robed figures emerge silently from the choir stalls and advance to a gigantic candle at the left of the altar which has been lighted earlier in the service. At that candle they light the tapers which they carry. The church is still dark. The strains of "Silent Night, Holy Night" are faintly heard amid the wavering candle light which is reflected in tessellated floors and sent shimmering far aloft to the glittering mosaics which adorn the roof of the nave.

Scores of Candles Lighted.

Amid shadows and song the scores of candles which stand upon the altar are lighted. Fire is borne to the men and women of the vested choir and the candles which they carry are lighted. The singers form in processional and march singing up the nave of the church, the congregation singing with them.

From its opening with the overwhelming "Adeste Fideles" to its poignant close on the childlike note of "Holy Night," the service fills less than an hour and the spirit of it is essentially simple. But its setting and its employment of antiphonal effects—when organ and choir in the chancel and organ and choir in the remote choir loft thunder the message of the manifestation one to another—make it one of the most impressive liturgical achievements to be heard and viewed in the course of the church year in Chicago.

Brings Ceremonial Here.

The ceremonial is based upon a similar one which Mack Evans, organist of the university chapel, found in use at Christ church, Cambridge, Mass., where it was described to him as "traditional," and he it was who brought it to our university.

INDIANAPOLIS AGAIN UNDER DEMOCRATIC RULE AFTER TODAY

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The first Democratic city administration since before the world war will be inducted into office here tomorrow. Reginald H. Sullivan, Episcopalian, bachelor, attorney, and former football captain at Wabash college, will become Indianapolis' mayor, being sworn in by his father, Thomas L. Sullivan, who was mayor of Indianapolis in 1889 and again in 1891.

Sullivan succeeds L. Ert Slack, Democrat, who was made mayor on the fifty-second ballot taken by a Republican controlled city council two years ago, after John L. Duvall, the then klan supported Republican mayor, had been convicted of corrupt practices in connection with his election. Subsequently other members of the city council were also indicted for corruption in office, and in most cases resigned to escape prosecution.

The city council was reorganized after Slack's election and except for charges of misgovernment made by some Republicans in the November mayoralty campaign, Slack's administration has been quiet.

QUIZ 2 WOUNDED MEN; BLACK HAND PLOT SUSPECTED

Frank Palumbo, 45 years old, a commission merchant, was questioned by the Maxwell street police last night after he and Tony Consentino, 42 years old, had been shot and slightly wounded while in front of their home at 1257 Oregon street. Palumbo and Consentino insisted they had been shot by robbers, but the police believed the men may have been the victims of a Black Hand gang attempting to extort money from them.

Palumbo was taken into custody after he and Consentino appeared at the Mother Cabrini hospital for treatment. Palumbo was shot in the left foot while Consentino had buckshot wounds in both legs. They said that two men, wearing masks, stopped them as they were leaving home and fired on them with sawed off shotguns when they refused to hand over their money. Palumbo was able to leave the hospital after receiving treatment but Consentino was held over night.

FOG, SNOW HIDES FATE OF 3 FLYERS IN EIELSON HUNT

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The dense fog and snow over the region west of Nulato, which yesterday halted the flight to Nome of two Fairchild planes brought here from Seattle to engage in the search for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borland, missing since Nov. 9, today guarded the fate of Capt. Pat Reid, chief pilot of the expedition, and his two passengers.

Capt. Reid and Matt Nelmenen, Alaskan aviator, took off yesterday morning under favorable conditions en route to Nome. The planes became separated in the fog and snow. Pilot Niemenen with Maj. H. C. Deckard and Mechanic Sam MacAuley as passengers returned to Nulato, about 300 miles west of Fairbanks. Capt. Reid's plane was believed down somewhere on the Bering seacoast. As the plane was well provided with provisions and arctic clothing and in addition carried an alcohol stove, little fear is felt for their safety. Plans are under way to send out planes to search the district.

Moscow Ships Relief Plane.

PRISON RIOTING MAY END REIGN OF REFORMERS

Legislators Aim to Stop Coddling of Convicts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Within five months three prison riots in New York state have been marked by gun battles, destruction of property and wholesale death. During the same period there have been disastrous mutinies in other sections of the country, the most sinister being the Colorado penitentiary outbreak in which 11 lives were lost.

Now the prison welfare leagues—those pro-convict organizations which seek to make homes out of jail cells—are taking the "rap."

Alarmed by the two outbreaks at Auburn and the rioting at Dannemora the trend in this state is toward stricter discipline. The legislative bodies at Albany are preparing bills for the return to stripes, shaved heads and the abolishment of mutual welfare leagues. How far they will get with these reforms remains to be seen, for the "convict coddlers" as they are called by some of the legislators, are well organized and are ready to fight for their ideals.

Auburn League Blamed.

One assemblyman has been quoted as favoring the lash for convicts who attack guards and disobey orders. Legislative leaders probably will ignore the more drastic proposals, but there is a definite feeling that steps should be taken to make the prisons real prisons and show the convicts that they are there for punishment.

There is little sympathy for the Auburn welfare league which was largely blamed for the rioting at that prison by Col. George F. Chandler who investigated the mutiny for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Nevertheless, it may not be abolished without a fight. Gov. Roosevelt is known to favor the principle of the league and whether the legislators will reorganize it or end it by law will be decided on the floor. In Gov. Roosevelt's opinion, the coddling of the prisoner is indefensible, but the maintenance of prison morale is essential to social welfare.

"Big Brother" Condones Riots.

The pro-convict organizations are the same by any name. Over in Morristown, N. J., there is a prison club dedicated to "moral life." There is another that has as its aim the teaching of convicts "to stay out of jail." The last named idea should appeal to every lawbreaker.

Charles Brandon Booth, head of the Big Brother movement, in an address before a chamber of commerce banquet, went so far as to condone the prison riots in this state. He also said the riots in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth were justified. The conditions in the prisons, he said, drove the men to mutiny.

Col. Chandler, after his investigation at Auburn, was outspoken in his condemnation of the Prisoners' Welfare league. The organization, he said, "is dominated by desperate criminals who keep the prison in a virtual reign of terror."

Gambling and Drinking Seen.

"The Welfare league," his report continued, "has given the prisoners freedom and they have gone about the yard and through the corridors well into the night.

"We have a statement from a guard at the gate that night after night he has looked through the window of the Welfare League clubroom at gambling going on with money on the table and drinks of what character he did not know but surmised. Prisoners have catcalled at the guards and have used vile and abusive language to them, and when put in cells by the guards have been let out through the league 'officials' to laugh at the guards."

In the Colorado penitentiary the Ku Klux Klan was found to be well organized within the prison walls, according to Warden Thomas J. Tynan. He said that plotting of the klan against the prison administration had caused a collapse of discipline which led up to the fatal rioting.

The coddling of prisoners is responsible for most of the prison outbreaks, according to Assemblyman Burton D. Esmond, vice chairman of the state crime commission.

"The state should not be oblivious," said Mr. Esmond, "to the desirability of reforming those who offend against its laws, but it should remember that not all criminals are reformable. The first duty of the state is to protect its citizens. To the law abiding the state owes a duty paramount to any consideration of reformation or amelioration of the condition of those who war against society. This is no time for officials' softheartedness and weakening of position to encourage the underworld to accomplish something through prison revolt."

63 YEAR OLD U. S. WOMAN SLAIN AT AFRICAN MISSION

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, Jan. 5.—An American missionary, Miss Hilda Stumpf, has been found murdered in a house at the African Inland mission station at Kijabe, 50 miles from Nairobi. Miss Stumpf, who was 63, had been more than 20 years with the Kijabe mission, where she was secretary to the head of the station. She was very deaf and lived in a small house 300 yards from the only other dwellings. Her assailant is believed to have been a native, but an arrest has not yet been made.

Coded Cable Tells Tragedy.

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The African Inland mission, the headquarters of which is in Brooklyn, received the news of Miss Stumpf's death in coded cable last Friday. The unsigned message indicated that the missionary had been attacked and then smothered to death. It said an official investigation was being made.

It is supposed the message was sent by the Rev. Lee H. Downing, who is superintendent of the 45 mission stations with their 225 American missionaries and more than 1,000 native teachers maintained by the American organization in that part of east Africa.

Mobilize Police to Hunt 3 Escaped Criminals

Boston, Mass., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The entire Massachusetts state police patrol was mobilized tonight in a hunt for three prisoners, one a lifer, who yesterday escaped from the Wethersfield state prison in Connecticut. They are credited already with stealing two cars and possibly perpetrating one holdup in an automobile flight. The escaped convicts are Roland Lalone, serving a life term for murder; Leo Landry, serving three to four years for larceny, and Watson Moulthrope, serving 18 to 25 years for robbery.

DETROIT DROPS HAWKS TO THIRD PLACE, 4-0

GREAT SHIRES' FANCY RETURNS TO FIRST GLOVE

One More Blow

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 5.—[Special.] — Suspension of Art Shires by the National Boxing commission will prevent him from fighting Pea Ridge Day at Kansas City this month, Secretary Ben Harrison of the Missouri athletic commission announced here tonight.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Great Shires, disillusioned gladiator, last night was reported to be flying by plane to Chicago with a number of firm purposes in mind. Among them was said to be a plan to arrange a conference with Charles A. Comiskey with a view to signing his contract to play first base for the White Sox during the season of 1930.

Promoter James C. Mullen, the man who launched Shires in the fight racket, last night said he had 'phoned to C. Arthur in Detroit yesterday and had strongly recommended that he forego future fights, return to Chicago, and make arrangements to resume his occupation, that of playing baseball. Shires reacted favorably to the suggestion and announced he would take the first Chicago plane flying out of Detroit.

Denies Dan's Dive.

Before taking off in Detroit Shires temporarily forgot his Michigan troubles to rave about the more recent diving charges made by Mysterious Dan Daly, alias Jim Geery, alias James Gary, alias The Swan, of Columbus, O.

"The Battling Criss charges are just one man's word against another's, but 5,000 fans actually saw what I did to Daly at White City in my first professional fight," Shires said. "These witnesses will recall that it was five minutes after I hit Daly before he became aware that there were any lights in the hall. And he still was hearing the birdies sing a half hour after they carried him to his dressing room.

"I never imagined I'd be willing to fight again for nothing, but if I ever meet Daly and he hints that he did a dive in our fight I'll slap him down without mercy, and the only one that will get any money out of the bout will be Daly's doctor."

Mr. Meade Explains.

Shires' view was supported yesterday by a statement from Eddie Meade of Cleveland, who handled Mysterious Dan in the Chicago bout.

"Geery," said Meade, 'was picked by me for that fight because Promoter Mullen told me he wanted a "ham" to go in the ring with Shires. Geery can't fight and neither can Shires.

"As for Geery's statement about his being taken around in Chicago and shown the sights, it's baloney to me. Geery told me he had been out looking at the elevated all by himself.

"And that knockout. Geery was out so bad he didn't come to for five minutes after four of us dragged him to his corner. If he was faking, he's the best actor I've ever seen."

Shires said he gladly would respond to any summons from the Illinois boxing commission to submit to questioning anent the Daly charges. While C. Arthur is said to not be particularly anxious to retain his Illinois boxing license, he is very intent on preserving his reputation as a clean athlete, a reputation, incidentally, that is very good in major league baseball circles, where Shires is known as an exceptionally earnest player though sometimes a bad boy after working hours.

Mullen O. K.'s Speech.

So eager is Shires to get himself right with the public that he plans to address the fans from the ring at White City tonight if the Illinois commission will permit him to mount the rostrum. Shires has promised to make his remarks short, snappy and to the point.

"I feel that Shires is entitled to make a short address from the ring where he began his brief but turbulent career as a pugilist," Mr. Mullen said. "Of course, I do not want him to start in on the story of his life and the habits of his large family in Texas, but I do not believe it will be a digression to permit the boy to tell the public first hand of the circumstances that have made him the most widely discussed athlete, if not the most publicized citizens in the United States, during the last month. I hope the customers will be quiet enough to permit the lad to say his piece."

Shires will have his baseball conference, his Illinois commission hearing, and attend to a few personal matters before leaving Wednesday for Lansing to attend the hearing of the Michigan state boxing commission, where he expects to be reinstated by the Michigan board and later by the National Boxing association, which now has him under suspension in 32 states.

TODAY'S MATCHES.

Layton vs. Kleckhefer.
Hall vs. Schuler.
Copulos vs. Jordan.
Reiselt vs. Denton.

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Johnny Layton of St. Louis, the defending champion, bettered two of his own world's tournament records by defeating Charles E. Jordan of Los Angeles, 50 to 22, in 23 innings tonight to climax play today in the world's three cushion billiard championship. By his victory Layton remained in a tie with Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia for first place, each now having won all of their three matches.

Allen Hall of St. Louis and Chicago played sensationally to beat Tiff Denton of Kansas City, 50 to 24, in 38 innings in the afternoon, while another Chicagoan, Augie Kleckhefer, downed Gus Copulos of Detroit, 50 to 16, in 33 innings in the first match of the evening. Reiselt engaged in the longest match of the day when he vanquished Harry Schuler of New York, 50 to 36, in 49 innings.

Layton ran eight in his last turn at the table to eclipse his former world's tournament game mark made last year in Chicago, when he defeated Willie Hoppe, 50 to 23, in 24 innings, in the final game of the 1929 tournament. His average of 2 4-23 per inning in tonight's play also is a new world's tournament standard.

Whereas the champion was off form and was forced to rally to win from Denton Saturday night, he was master tonight. His ability to get fine position made things easy. He trailed only once and that was in the first two innings.

Peoria Signs Kerns, Hard Hitting Infielder, Outfielder

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Frank Kerns, clugging outfielder and infielder, signed today with Manager Patterson's Peoria Tractors of the Three Eye league. The Chicago Cubs sent Kerns to Reading in the International league in 1928 and at the end of that season he was made a free agent.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Doc Krone's wrestling show at the Coliseum tonight is described by the doctor himself as "the presentation of the greatest aggregation of wrestlers ever to appear in one evening in one ring."

The appearance of Champion Gus Sonnenberg, Joe De Vito, Joe Stecher, Wladek Zbyszko and the other artists assembled by Promoter Krone, is to be something more than an athletic spectacle, the doctor holds. It is to launch a renaissance in wrestling—a new era in a greatly maligned sport.

Because of the uplift spirit injected into tonight's enterprise, all of the wrestlers say that Doc has struck a note deep in their moral fiber and they are going to rassle as they never have rassled before.

Krone yesterday took occasion to say he's never been so happy in all his life, what with wrestling entering a new era and everything.

"Old jealousies have in the past shaken the confidence of the Chicago fans in the wrestling profession," Promoter Krone said. "Never was there greater injustice.

Bankers Take Heed.

"In my 30 years' experience promoting wrestling I never have been aware of anything that wrestlers have done that would be open to fair criticism, but on the contrary bankers, merchants and all business men could take a great lesson from wrestlers. With hardly an exception their word is as good as the Bank of England. A wrestler never breaks his word.

"Los Angeles wrestling outdraws boxing and the same condition prevails in Philadelphia. Jack Reynolds, welterweight champion, has made a great success promoting shows in Cincinnati. Wrestlers for the most part are gentlemen and well educated. American wrestlers are more aggressive than the foreigners and are more methodical in their training. Many of the greatest foreigners were great feeders and overate.

"Wrestling has thrived the last year in almost every state except Illinois.

"In Philadelphia Ray Fabiana gathers $20,000 twice monthly. Paul Bowser, Boston promoter, did over a half million in Boston last year, and such Massachusetts cities as Springfield, Salem, and Worcester frequently top $10,000. In Los Angeles they hit $20,000 to $30,000 every show. Kansas City, Tulsa, Houston, New Orleans, Memphis, and most of the other southern cities patronize wrestling extensively."

Smashed Faces Are Honest.

After pausing to get his breath, Promoter Krone recalled many famous wrestling matches which he claims proved that the principals were doing their level best. He spoke especially of a rassle between Ed Strangler Lewis and Mike Romano, during the course of which Lewis lost 16 pounds.

Promoter Krone then closed his eulogy of the wrestling profession with the following clincher:

"To prove that wrestling is on the up and up, please observe that rarely you see a wrestler without one or two cauliflower ears, a misplaced nose, and a generally disfigured face. They don't get these blemishes playing tag.

"And, by the way," said Promoter Krone, "it would be a good idea to mention that there's no advance in prices because of my assembling this great congress of earnest behemoths at the Coliseum tonight. For the small sum of $2 one may view, from the best seats in the house, this stupendous spectacle and later be able to state to his friends that he was present when Doc Krone launched his wrestling renaissance."

The first rassle will start at 5:15 o'clock.

Primo Carnera Is the One Giant Who Fights, It Seems

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 5.—Of course, the enormous size of Primo Carnera, the Italian prize fighter, suggests many merry jests, but while his various managers, foreign and domestic, are enjoying themselves telling the newspaper boys that his whiskers are like so many half inch hemp cables and that the task of filling a tooth comes under the jurisdiction of several unions, including blasters, hard rock miners and concrete workers, it begins to appear that Primo can fight. At least, he can go through rather plausible motions with his fists.

PRIMO CARNERA.

If it should turn out that Primo can fight, even slightly under competitive conditions, then it will be difficult to laugh him off. Any fairly good fighter weighing 285 pounds and rising six feet eight or ten inches above the floor and swinging a fist as big as a loaf of bread, should be able to disarrange most of the normal heavyweight pugilists up to and including the better members of the second flight, meaning such chaps as Tuffy Griffith, Johnny Risko and Fainting Phil Scott, the celebrated sinker from old England.

Primo Is Different.

The New York prize fight commissioners have stepped in promptly to name a list of fighters with whom Primo shall be forbidden to have professional relations. This, doubtless, will have the effect of saving him from the better class of heavyweights until he first has had an opportunity to collect several purses for maltreating a number of the larger and more hopeless gladiators.

I do not know why the commissioners have made this ruling but it is nothing about which to become annoyed because pugilists of type known as bums generally swing and fall down with greater abandon than those who have or think they have reputations to protect. A contest between Primo and some other huge party, however obscure in the professional sense, might be funny indeed, whereas a contest with Griffith, for instance, would be likely to develop into a bore.

Primo is different from all the circus giants of the same general dimensions I have ever seen in the respect that he strips well, as the technical term has it, meaning that he has no widening and increasing series of secondary chins and billowing fold upon fold culminating in one vast undulating lap of slack hide, lined with blubber at the waistline.

Willard Lacked Spirit.

Furthermore, he is surprisingly energetic, even vivacious. He also has a ready facility for anger or fighting spirit, whereas Jess Willard, for instance, who weighed about 40 pounds less than Primo, in good condition, was sluggish. The nearest thing to fighting spirit Willard ever manifested was a rather sullen vindicativeness toward unimportant people who had

GENE SARAZEN'S 300 WINS 4TH TITLE AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Gene Sarazen won the Miami open golf championship today for the fourth year in succession, finishing the 72 hole competition at the Miami Country club with a total of 300. His rounds today were 69—76—145. Yesterday he returned 76—79—155.

The former national open and P. G. A. champion topped his challengers by a one stroke margin, second place going to William Leach of the Overbrook Country club, Philadelphia, with 301. Cyril Walker of Saddle River, N. J., another former national open titleholder, was third with 302. Leach's rounds today were 74—72—146, while Walker took 73—75—148.

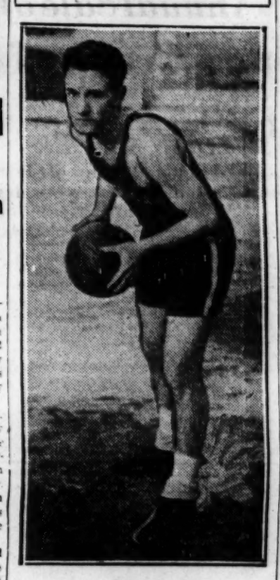
ROCKAWAY, OHIO STATE HURDLER, RULED INELIGIBLE

Columbus, O., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Dick Rockaway, star hurdler on the Ohio State track team, a national collegiate champion and world record holder, apparently has been lost to the Buckeye squad for the duration of the indoor season at least.

Rockaway failed in a subject of three credit hours during the fall quarter just ended, it became known today, automatically becoming ineligible for varsity competition until the spring quarter starts late in March.

MAKES DEBUT



HENRY WEISS.

Four Big Nine Quintets Begin Season Tonight

Michigan will begin defense of its share of the Western conference basketball title on Minnesota's floor tonight, and at the same time Ohio State will battle Illinois in a Big Nine game at Champaign.

The prestige which goes with the conference crown suffered a severe blow Saturday night when the Badgers, who share the title with the Wolverines, fell before Northwestern, 23 to 14.

Weiss Replaces Kanitz.

Two men will get their first chance in a conference game with the Wolverines tonight. One is Hank Weiss, the other Joe Downing.

Weiss is a little fellow as Big Nine basketball players go, measuring only 5 feet 7 inches. But his flashy work in early games has won him a berth at forward in place of Dutch Kanitz, one of last year's letter men. Hank is just a sophomore—the first in two years to win a place as a regular. He comes from Cleveland.

Downing is to appear at floor guard, where Frank Lovell has worked in previous games. Joe, the only junior on the squad, played forward on the B team last season. His home town is Frankfort, Ind.

The quintet will be completed with the three veterans, Orwig, Truskowski and Capt. Chapman.

Illinois will send an inexperienced quintet into battle against Ohio State's veterans. The teams finished in a tie for fourth place last year, winning and losing six games each.

Illinois Five Untested.

Virtually that same 1929 Ohio State team will be back on the floor tonight. Wrigley, sophomore center, is the only new man. Erwin and Evans, forwards, Fesler and Larkins, guards, complete the lineup.

The Illini, on the other hand, will have an untested quintet. Ed Kawal, Bud Fencl, and Babe Kamp all are sophomores. Burr Harper, acting captain, and Horace May, 6 foot 4 inch letter man, will round out the team.

LATE BULLETIN: SHARKEY FIGHT IS ON AGAIN

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Jack Sharkey, who was definitely out of the Miami fight picture a few days ago, is just as definitely in again. Just whom the sage of Chestnut Hill will fight on Feb. 27 on the shores of Biscayne bay has not been definitely decided, but the selection of an opponent has narrowed down to Phil Scott and Victorio Campolo, the angular Italian from the Argentine.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Detroit demonstrated to the Blackhawks last night why they've been moving up in the National Hockey league race by giving the Chicagoans the most decisive licking they have taken this year. The Cougars won, 4 to 0, which not only dropped the Hawks into third place but was the first time they've been shut out this season.

For the first time this year the Hawks heard the raucous squawks with which a sports public rewards a loser. In other games they've lost, the fans have loyally cheered them to the end. Last night the 11,000 in the Stadium stands grew ironical along in the third period and began to cheer sarcastically every time Goalie Gardiner stopped a Cougar's shot.

The game was the first really bad one the Hawks have turned in among the 19 they've played. Through the game they were pawing ineffectually for the puck and except for occasional flashes seemed to lack their customary fighting spirit. And the defensive play had much in common with a sieve.

Ripley, Somers at Center.

Picking flaws is a thankless task and probably it is better to cite the one instance when the Hawks showed a flash of speed. Plainly, they were disorganized through the shifts in lines made necessary by injuries and the only time the Chicagoans showed well was when one of the original forward lines was intact.

Ripley and Somers carried a double load in that they alternated at center and got less rest than the others. In particular the old line of Arbour, March, and Ripley gave the fans something to yell about, but it couldn't score. The two new men, Stuart Adams and Teddy Graham, who were starting their first game for the Hawks, played fairly well, not brilliantly, but as good as their mates.

Penalties were scarce, only three being called until the last period, partly because the game lacked some of the speed and intensity of combat that all the Hawks' former games have shown. They didn't get any breaks and they didn't deserve them—in other words it was "their bad night."

Meanwhile the Cougars kept hammering the Chicago goal. They scored late in the first period, added one more in the second, and rammed home a fourth in the last session, while the Hawks were denied even the solace of a consolation goal. For the Cougars it was sweet revenge for the game a month ago, when the Hawks won 4 to 0, scoring the first shutout recorded under the forward pass rules.

Lead Might Have Been More.

The Cougars' goal lead in the first period might have been two more had the Detroiters been able to hit the net with easy shots. Bellefeuille and Aurie had each missed rebound shots after Gardiner had been drawn out of the goal in stopping shots by May and Cooper early in the session.

Carson Cooper started the sortie that brought the Cougars' goal, taking the puck down left ice. Inside the Hawks' blue line he passed to Laurie Aurie who was coming in from the right. Gardiner got over to cover the net on Aurie's side, but the Cougar left wing slammed a high shot past him into the opposite corner of the net, a pretty shot because from the angle Aurie shot Gardiner had all save a couple of inches of the net mouth blocked.

DETROIT DROPS BLACKHAWKS TO THIRD PLACE, 4-0

The second period gave Detroit two more goals, due to ragged play by the Hawks, though the Chicagoan's offense showed to far better advantage than in the first period. Goodfellow scored first, a somewhat freakish goal, in 3:05. Aurie had taken the puck down the ice and shot as the defense bodychecked him. Gardiner stopped the shot but fell along with Aurie and the puck rolled free. Goodfellow who came down the ice along with Aurie pushed the free puck into the unprotected net.

Lewis Scores Brilliant Shot.

The regular Hawk line of Arbour, March and Ripley hammered the Cougars' goal for a time without luck, twice clear shots going to waste because the Hawk couldn't quite get his stick on the pass and then Herbie Lewis gave a personal exhibition of pretty hockey. Brilliantly stickhandling through the defense he had only Gardiner to beat. A fake shot drew the goalie far out of the net and Lewis skated around him to score.

The third period returned to some of the slowness of the first though the Hawks sent four men down the ice in an effort to score and several times there were pileups of three to eight men around the Cougars' net. Five minutes before the end the Cougars scored again. Goodfellow took the puck into the Hawks' defensive area and was skated off to the wall back of the net. He managed to pass out to George Hay in front of the net and Hay scored with a slash that knocked the puck out of the scramble into the goal.

RANGERS ROUT PIRATES

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Led by their star forward line of Bill and Bunny Cook and Frank Boucher, the New York Rangers handed Pittsburgh's Pirates an 8 to 3 trouncing tonight. This trio scored seven of the eight New York goals.

The Boucher-Cook combination scored three times in the final period.

IT is a curious fact that the best-tasting cigarette is the one in which no single taste quality is too evident. Over-mildness, for example—or over-richness—shows lack of "balance" just as plainly as harshness or bitterness.

On this basis, test Chesterfield. Aroma, smoothness, satisfying goodness, flavor, mildness, all present—but none emphasized at the expense of others. The one goal is taste—better taste, balanced taste—

SILVER SKATES DERBIES WILL BE HELD JAN. 25-26

Entries for Garfield Park Meet Close Jan. 19.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

With the skating season under way, giving contestants opportunity to practice, entries now will be received for THE TRIBUNE'S fourteenth annual Silver Skates derbies, to be held at Garfield park on Jan. 25 and 26. The lists will close at midnight on Jan. 19.

When the first TRIBUNE derby was staged, fourteen years ago, only one race was held. The event attracted so much interest among the youngsters that races for experts of various ages were added each year until there are now six divisions for boys and girls of different ages. This was done so that all may have an opportunity to win one of the five prizes to be awarded in each contest.

Compete in One Division.

No skaters will be permitted to compete in more than one race. If any are eliminated in the preliminaries they will have to wait for another year, as none will be permitted to skate in the division for older contestants.

An explanatory entry blank appears on the sports pages for those desiring to enter. No entry fee is required, but all skaters must be registered with the Western Skating association. The chairman of the registration committee has the names and ages of most of the contestants who will compete, and any entrant who falsifies his or her age will be suspended from further competition in races held under the jurisdiction of the Western Skating association.

Trams May Enter.

Those sending in entry blanks are requested to print their names plainly in pencil and make sure they place a cross in front of the race they intend to enter. Captains or managers of club, playground, or school teams can make entry by printing all names on one piece of paper and placing the entrants in the proper age groups. Such an entry form must be signed by an official of the club, playground, or school.

In addition to solid silver, silver plated, and bronze skates, which will go to winners of first, second, and third places in each of the six races, medals will be awarded to those who finish fourth and fifth. In the longer events a medal will be awarded the skater who sets the pace for the greatest number of laps. The organization which wins the greatest number of points will be given a trophy emblematic of the team championship. Every skater who goes to the mark will be given a bronze button as a souvenir of the derbies.

West Parks Coöperate.

West Chicago Parks commissioners have given THE TRIBUNE a permit to use the Garfield park lagoon on both days and the Western Skating association has issued a sanction.

As only two weeks remain in which to make entry, those desiring to race are urged to send in their entries early so they may be classified and approved by the Western Skating association.

humiliated or otherwise annoyed him.

I have not had the pleasure of social relations with many giants but I used to know the late George Augur, who worked in the sideshow for the Rangling concern. Although Augur weighed about as much as Primo does today and stood an inch or two higher, he was unhealthy and so weak that it wearied him severely to pick up his colleague; the midget called Major Mite, weight about 35 pounds, and run about twenty-five yards with the major sitting on the upraised flat of his right hand as the grand opening procession and tableau came to the end of the march around the arena. Augur's circulation was poor, he had a delicate appetite, and he was soft and pasty, as most giants are.

Muscles Well Defined.

Carnera has a rather healthy complexion and his animation suggests that he is one giant whose vital apparatus was built in proportion to the job of serving one so huge. His muscles are distinctly developed and the lower part of his middle falls away from beneath the wishbone to the waist in a hard wall of muscle, as flat as a bread board and about as large.

A Mr. Douglas, a serious English journalist, writing for the Sunday Express of London a few weeks ago, probably overrated Primo when he called on the labor government, Scotland Yard and the Coldstream guards to prevent the assassination of Franz Diener, the German heavyweight, in a bout with Primo in London. Douglas galloped across the pages, as it were, like a Paul Revere warning all concerned that if Primo should happen to lay a glove on Diener, the German's relatives, to the fourth degree of kin, would drop dead. His alarm was not justified by subsequent events, for Primo pawed Diener quite heavily and yet the German found no occasion for going to the floor.

The referee stopped the bout and Primo won by a technical knockout, but Mr. Douglas' high powered articles probably had alarmed the officials unduly and the German might have managed to stagger through to the end.

Far be it from me to make game of a colleague or in any tiny degree embarrass those very sensitive relations between Great Britain and the U. S. A. which the society of Pilgrims always are cultivating and which always are being set back some 50 or 75 years by some irresponsible rudeness of the press, but I take it that Mr. Douglas is one of those chaps who go down to the Lyons corner house and brood over the shortcomings of the government while quaffing two or even three dishes of strong breakfast tea with perhaps a bit of a jam tart on the side.

I may be wrong, but I fancy I can see him, all indignation, stalking into his diggings, kicking off his gums, or rubbers, tossing his shawl and umbrella into a corner and shouting, "Berresford! I say, Berresford! Dash it all, where is the inkpot? And fetch me five or six good stub pens. Here it is Tuesday and I have only just time to dash off a leader for Sunday week, straight from the shoulder and facing the facts."

Just a Zephyr in U. S. A.

Then, for two or three days and nights, there is a furious scratching of Mr. Douglas' pen as Berresford brings additional pots of tea to his elbow, and, at last the article is written and Primo Carnera, fighting in spite of him, fails to score a knockdown on a man who concedes him about 80 pounds.

I would not insist that the American way is better but nobody seems to have been much alarmed over the prospect of Primo's fighting in this country. Our chaps have been much amused by the quaint facts about Primo. His tailors don't measure him; they survey him. When he is ill he isn't an individual case but an epidemic. And so forth. And, when he is hit on the chin he may or may not sit down in a ludicruous manner, as remains to be seen.

I am fascinated by the idea that Primo may actually learn how to fight and develop into that giant, so often imagined, but never seen, who hits ordinary heavyweights on their chins and knocks them out into the vestibule.

Burmeister's 98 Wins Lincoln Park Shoot

C. G. Burmeister scored 98 to win the class AA division of the 100 target event of the Lincoln Park Gun club shoot yesterday. Clark Wright won the doubles event, scoring 46 out of a possible 50. Other class winners in the 100 target event follow: Class A, Clark Wright, 96; class B, Charles Winninger, 92; class C, Dr. E. W. Byerson, 89; class D, D. Badgley, 80.

French Doubles Team Wins Net Title from Chileans

Chastain and Hansen Meet in Ring Tonight

Haakon Hansen, one of the many fighters eyeing the world's middleweight title if Champion Mickey Walker decides to give up the crown and enter the light heavyweight division, meets Clyde Chastain of Springfield, Mo., at White City tonight. They will box eight rounds at 162 pounds.

Ability of Hansen to hit with either hand is well known. His punches do not travel far but there is power behind them. Chastain is a solid left hand hitter who directs most of his blows to the body. He likes to fight at close quarters and indications are that most of the milling will be done in toe to toe fashion. Both are under the weight and in good shape.

Pantaleo Meets Davis.

Paul Pantaleo, local light heavyweight, and Blondy Davis will trade punches in the eight round semi-windup. Both are hard hitters and the fight may go the limit. Pantaleo, who broke into the spotlight as a member of the Tilden Tech High school football team, has engaged in twenty-three professional fights and has won seventeen by knockouts.

Jimmy Owens and Louie Lavelle, welterweights, meet in the third eight rounder while Al Stillman and Emmett Curtice will be the principals in the fourth fight of eight rounds. They will weigh 165 pounds. Other bouts on the card will bring together Sammy Adducci and George Larson and Les Finnucane and Ludy Kotnik. The show will open at 8:15 o'clock.

Thomas Fights Tonight.

Joey Thomas, local featherweight, will clash with Prince Saunders, former Golden Gloves winner, in the eight round windup of the boxing show tonight at the Congress Arcade Athletic club, 2036 Milwaukee avenue.

Benny Bass, who recently won the world's junior lightweight title from Tod Morgan, and Danny Delmont of the west side, will settle down on the final lap of training today for their ten round decision fight at the Chicago stadium on Friday night.

King Tut and Bruce Flowers, principals in another ten rounder, will resume training at local gymnasiums. Tony Vaccarelli, Italian welterweight, will arrive in the city tomorrow morning to complete preparation for his bout with Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion.

Setters Beat Tonti, 22-20, on Moorehead's Field Goal

Moorehead's basket from midfloor as the final gun sounded gave Setters a 22 to 20 victory over Tonti yesterday, keeping the winners in the running for honors in the West division of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league. The teams never were more than a basket apart until the last five minutes. Tonti then pulled in front to lead, 20 to 15. A final spurt by Setters brought the clubs even.

Trailing by ten points at one time during the second half, Connally's basket knotted the count at 16 all at the end of the regulation period. Connally's free throw in the overtime gave Loyola the lead with a minute to play. Sink made a corner toss to put Calumet on top. FAMILY SECRETS OF BLUE GOOSE FOUND IN NORTH

BY BOB BECKER.

Last winter we sloshed through the mud and water of Louisiana's marshes in order to get a closeup picture of a large flock of birds. It was hot and the mosquitoes were active. But the effort was worth while because the birds we were stalking with binoculars were blue geese—thousands of them, feeding on the young grass sprouts which were just coming up.

The blue goose is a beautiful member of the waterfowl family and, until a few months ago, its appeal was enhanced because it had been able to keep its family life a mystery. No one had ever reported finding a nesting blue goose.

J. Dewey Soper, a young naturalist from Canada, after making six futile expeditions into the north on the trail of the blue goose, returned recently with the news that he had found them. He brought back pictures showing the terrain occupied by the honkers, nests of the birds and their young. So the mystery of the blue goose has been solved.

Mr. Soper located these beautiful geese nesting in western Baffin land. Until his arduous trip actually turned up the nesting honkers, the only information we had on their nesting grounds was "they were somewhere northeast of Hudson bay."

The blue goose has two migration routes. He uses one [via the Mississippi valley, Manitoba, etc.] in the spring. In the fall they come south by a different route which takes them farther westward. In the winter you'll find them by the thousands along the Louisiana and Texas coasts.

CURB MARKET PRICES ERRATIC DURING WEEK

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Erratic price movements characterized the trading on the New York Curb exchange last week, with business showing a further falling off in volume. In the early part of the week the market drifted lower in response to heavy selling for the purpose of establishing losses on 1929 incomes, and made irregular recovery when this pressure was removed.

Public participation was on an extremely small scale as compared with similar periods in previous years, indicating the absence of any marked reinvestment demand. Brokers reported that small speculators and investors were showing an inclination to stand on the sidelines until the trend of spring business became more clearly defined, and that operations of floor traders accounted for a good part of the week's activity.

Renews Pressure.

Application for a receivership for Stutz Motor resulted in a renewal of selling pressure against that issue, which carried it down to a new low record of $1 a share. This contrasts with the 1929 high of $34 and the record high of around $800 in the famous "Stutz corner" engineered by Alan A. Ryan a few years ago when the stock was suspended from trading privileges on the New York Stock exchange.

Fox Theaters also crashed to a new low at $2.50 a share on the threat of a stockholders' committee to force the William Fox theatrical enterprise into a receivership, but it made partial recovery in the closing sessions of the week. American Cigar broke to a new low record at 68 on the omission of the regular quarterly dividend, but rallied to 80 as the week closed.

CHINA'S MONEY IS DEFLATED BY DROP IN SILVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 5.—Unless some influence, at present undiscernible, is brought to bear to prevent a further slump in the value of silver, a likelihood exists that Chinese currency will be bound in the direction of the old Russian ruble and the German paper mark. The Chinese trouble is not due to repudiation, but to the constant slump in the value of Chinese silver, the dollar of which today is quoted at only 88 cents in American money when it is ordinarily valued at 50 cents in United States exchange.

Local Chinese and foreign bankers state that today's price of silver is the lowest in practically a quarter of a century, and the bottom has not yet been reached, some forecasting that the Chinese silver dollar is likely to drop to three and one-half for one American dollar.

Foreign Purchases Slump.

The daily slumping of the value of Chinese silver has had the effect of practically paralyzing Chinese importation from America and Europe, while the stock market collapse in New York, plus unsettled political conditions in China, have practically stopped foreign purchases of Chinese products excepting necessities.

As a result of the dollar's slump, the prices for local commodities are mounting, causing a rapid increase in the cost of living. Chinese and foreign banks have vaults filled with stocks of silver which is not usable locally except as collateral in the local issue of approximately $200,000,000 worth of Chinese paper currency. Bankers here are pressing the government to call in the paper currency, thus providing an outlet for the silver. But T. V. Soong, minister of finance, stated to THE TRIBUNE:

"While the situation is serious, it is believed that a crisis may be averted by the political situation being stabilized within a short time, enabling trade to resume."

The obvious way out is through the adoption of the gold standard, which was recommended by the Kemmerer commission, though this is impossible at the present time due to the political situation. The government's political troubles have been made worse by the silver slump since the necessity exists for the government to liquidate foreign debts, as well as foreign purchases, in gold currency now, requiring considerably more silver than ordinarily. Due to the fact that practically the whole world is now on a gold basis, every country is trying to sell silver to China, causing the market to be glutted. The silver crisis has caused the publication of innumerable fantastic schemes, one being to the effect that the Chinese government purchase a shipload of silver and sink it in the sea, since the resulting increase in the value of silver would, within a short time, make up for the loss.

NATIONAL CITY BANK BREAKS ALL RECORDS, STATEMENT REVEALS

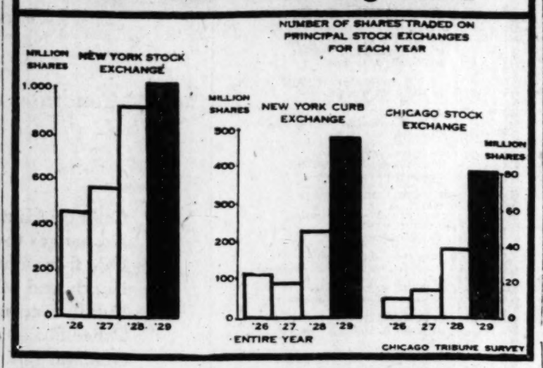
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 5.—All existing high records in American banking are exceeded with publication by the National City bank of its statement of condition as of Dec. 31, showing total resources of $2,206,241,170, against $1,847,705,543 on Dec. 31, 1928, and $2,062,400,220 previous high level recorded last June. Deposits total $1,640,554,360, against $1,349,024,386 a year ago and $1,470,891,893 last June.

Total capital funds stand at $239,650,233, compared with $166,993,905 a year ago and $235,260,406 at the end of last June.

The statement issued by the National City is of particular interest in Wall street in view of the rumors of that institution which were circulated there at the time of the October-November break in the stock market. The rumors were discredited then by experienced bankers, and one of them, a man whose opinions always have been held in particularly high esteem, remarked after having seen the statement of the bank's condition that he thought it "a crime for a bank to be so strong."

Increase in Trade in 1929 on New York Curb and Chicago Exchange Was Relatively Greater Than That on the Big Board



MUST ABSORB PRODUCTION, J. B. OTIS SAYS

"Business is less active just now and there appears to be no present prospect for considerable improvement until the country has had time to absorb the financial and industrial production of recent months," James B. Otis, chairman of the board of the Central Trust company, states in the current issue of the Illinois Bankers' association bulletin distributed to state banks yesterday.

Mr. Otis' statement is part of the association's semi-annual survey of business, including agriculture, industry, employment, credit, collections, bank deposits and the general economic condition. Based on reports forwarded by Illinois bankers, the report finds the general situation good with the state looking forward to a satisfactory 1930.

Russia's Trade with U. S. Shows Big Gain in 1929

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Orders placed by the Amtorg Trading corporation for shipment to the soviet union last year amounted to $94,500,000, or nearly three times the $32,300,000 shipped during 1928.

Chicagoland's Ice Cream Bill 26 Millions Last Year

BY SCRUTATOR.

The Chicago metropolitan area consumed, last year, thirteen and a half million gallons of ice cream, conservatively estimated to cost at retail more than twenty-six million dollars.

Forty-three ice cream factories supplied this demand, but 60 per cent of the total came from twelve plants, which are subsidiaries of two leading concerns in the dairy field, National Dairy Products company and the Borden company.

In the last year and a half the Borden company has absorbed the following firms: John T. Cunningham Ice Cream company, McBride Bros. and Knobbe, Standard Ice Cream company, Traill and Cooling Ice Cream company, and Central Dairy Products company, all of which had previously been brought into one consolidation; Wieland Ice Cream company, Jersey Ice Cream company, People's Ice Cream company, South Chicago and Honey Boy Ice Cream companies. Together they are said to have annual sales of five million gallons of ice cream.

Retail Management.

According to Dr. F. D. Walmley, in charge of all the Borden interests in this territory, all that has happened so far in the way of administrative change is the elimination of about twenty duplicate delivery routes and installation of uniform accounting. The same managements are in charge of the subsidiary manufacturers.

The interests of the National Dairy Products corporation centered first in the huge Hydrox company, with which are allied the Chapell Ice Cream company and the Thompson Ice Cream company. These three, consolidated, furnish an amount that is not far from equaling the Borden output.

Third place in the production goes to the Walgreen company, which cater to the sweets craving of the Walgreen and Economical drug chain customers. The Goldenrod and Goodman-American companies are rated fourth and fifth.

The consolidations under the auspices of the National and Borden companies have been justified by officials of the two concerns. Charles Wieland, manufacturing superintendent of the Borden subsidiaries, maintains that less than 150,000 gallons a year in a single plant cannot be economically produced. F. J. Bridges, president of Hydrox and secretary of the National Dairy Products, and Dr. Walmsley both insist that their companies have taken all risk to public health out of the business and constantly go much farther in cleanliness and inspection than the law requires.

Chicago's Laws Stringent.

At that, Chicago laws are more stringent than those of most other cities on this important food. They demand that pasteurization be accomplished at 160 degrees and that a half hour be consumed in the process. The government standard and that of many other cities is 145 degrees. The "mix" for ice cream has more rigid regulations than are considered necessary for milk sold at retail.

The price of cream at the plants of the concerns observing the high standards ranges from $1 to $1.40 a gallon. Some independents are currently reported to have prices as low as 85 cents a gallon. The bigger concerns assert that the difference is due entirely to quality and that the cheaper grade is sold at a profit per gallon greater than that from the highest priced kind.

How the ice cream has grown in recent years and the effect the industry has had on milk marketing will be discussed here in a later article.

ESTIMATE 1930 BUILDING WILL COST 9 BILLIONS

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Construction requirements of the United States during 1930, as estimated by the Copper and Brass Research association in its annual building survey, will total nearly $9,000,000,000.

Although building during 1929 fell below the average of the past five years, it was pointed out, there are many factors indicating an increased activity for next year. It is also possible, the survey said, that a new all time construction record may be established.

LIFE INSURANCE FIRMS INCREASE UTILITY HOLDINGS

During the last eight years, the fifty-two largest legal reserve life insurance companies have increased their investment in public utility bonds and stocks six and one-half times, according to a recent address by Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. At the close of 1929 these investments totaled $1,448,000,000, whereas at the close of 1921 they were only $223,605,000.

NATION'S BUSINESS ON FIRMER GROUND, F. D. CORLEY ASSERTS

American business—at least that part of it which most immediately reflects the buying moods of our thirty million families—today resists the caprices of fortune more staunchly than in past decades, said Frederick D. Corley, vice president in executive charge of Marshall Field & Co.'s retail merchandising, in discussing the trade outlook last night.

The commercial structure, continued Mr. Corley, has fortified itself, of course, with larger cash surpluses at the same time that it has guardedly restricted inventory expansion.

Plants have been improved, old machinery scrapped, and the latest labor improving devices installed, he pointed out, so that more and not fewer men could be employed and yet costs per article reduced through cutting the overhead cost per unit.

"What to us, as retailers, has been by far the most significant signal to appear in the ebb and flow of trade the last few weeks is the demonstrated staying power of the American public and its proved retention of all the buying ability necessary to completely satisfy its manifold wants," Mr. Corley said.

"The volume of business the first few days of the new year has been especially gratifying as we regard this early healthy demand as a happy harbinger of wholesome trade conditions later in the year."

Middle West Stockholders Total 64,168 as of Dec. 31

During the last three months of 1929 the number of stockholders in the Middle West Utilities company increased 79 per cent, Martin J. Insull, president of the company, said yesterday. There were 35,816 stockholders on Sept. 30 and 64,188 on Dec. 31. Of this number, 43,221 hold common stock only, 1,048 hold preferred stock only, and 19,919 hold both preferred and common stock. The total number holding common stock is 63,140.

TRADE DECLINE BEGAN BEFORE STOCK CRASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 5.—Sometime a change for the worse on the stock exchange and in general trade has come so suddenly that the subsequent reports of business activity and company profits continued for weeks or months to reflect the previous great prosperity.

The notable case, perhaps, was in the late months of 1920, when pace of production and railway traffic continued to break all records for the period, three months after deflation was in full swing. That has not happened on the present occasion. The exceptional suddenness of the stock market's readjustment might seem to have foreshadowed some such belated pictures of trade activity, but markets are beginning to realize more clearly that trade reaction had begun even before the crash in stocks.

Cites Steel Output.

Steel production, for instance, which in August had run nearly 18 per cent above the large figures of 1928 and in September was 9 per cent greater than the year before, reported in October decrease of 3 per cent from 1928 and in November a decline of 17½. Railway traffic does not usually reflect at once an abrupt halt in trade activity; orders placed in the previous busy period still necessitate shipment and delivery.

Yet car loadings, which for the nine months ending with September were

FURNITURE SHOW FIRST EVENT ON TRADE CALENDAR

Exhibit Opens Today; To Last Three Weeks.

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

The Chicago central wholesale market resumes its January activity today with the opening of the semi-annual exposition at the American furniture mart which, on the basis of pre-registration, should be a record breaking attraction for furniture buyers from all parts of the country. The displays will last three weeks.

Trade show events in mercantile lines will attract several thousand merchant-buyers to the Chicago market during this month and February, with the activity in purchasing spring lines reaching its peak during the Chicago-World City week from Feb. 3 to 8.

Many Retailers Soon Due.

Retailers from the south and southwest usually are the vanguard of the winter's seasonal influx to the Chicago market following the holiday rush. Later in January—about the third week—come the buyers from the west and northwest preceding the flood of merchants from middle western points. During this period the usual spring style show, which is sponsored by Chicago manufacturers, forecasts the spring season's fashions as a guide and stimulus to the winter buying.

Other trade show events to be held during the approaching weeks include the manufacturers and importers exhibit, the Gift, Artware and Novelties association showing the retail clothiers convention and the Infants' and Children's Wear association's meeting.

Brisk market activity is anticipated by prominent Chicago wholesalers. The trade show attractions, coupled with the fact that inventories of textiles and kindred lines on the retailers' shelves have never been so low as now, should bring a record breaking attendance of merchants to the central market here, according to Frederick H. Scott, vice president of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., wholesale.

Fill Empty Shelves.

The cautious "hand-to-mouth" policy which followed the November drop of securites has largely disappeared, with prospects good for fill-ins and spring buying, in the view of Porter J. Case, general sales manager of Marshall Field & Co., wholesale. "Necessary buying of merchandise to fill empty shelves caused by the 'hand-to-mouth' policy of merchants will speed up the January market to a considerable extent. Spring buying should approach and probably equal that of a year ago," he said.

Pre-registration of 6,000 buyers indicates a probable attendance of 9,000 during the three weeks' exhibit at the American furniture mart. A solid Pullman special from the south arrived last night, while a special train of merchants and buyers will arrive from Philadelphia this morning. Others will come from New York, Oklahoma, Texas and the Pacific coast.

RUSSIA'S WHEAT OFFER STARTLING TO GRAIN TRADE

Liberal Liquidation Follows Report.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Russia, which has not been considered an important factor in the world's wheat situation, startled the grain trade early in the last week with annouficement that it was offering wheat for export, a valuation on 75,000 bu being asked in London.

It upset leading long interests, brought liberal liquidation and lower prices, with the week's finish about the inside after a break of 6c from the high point. Net losses were 3¼@3⅝c as compared with a week ago.

Expectations at the start of the new year were for better prices. Foreign markets were higher, Argentine and Australian crop figures were reduced to lower levels, and a fair foreign buying demand was reported, although it was disappointingly small considered with expectations of bull leaders.

Apparently there is a good deal of politics in the offerings of Russian wheat, but it had a depressing influence, caused liquidation by previous buyers and kept new interests from taking hold, and created greater and more confidence in short selling, resulting in lowering or values, with the main support on profit taking by previous sellers and buying against "bids."

In all it was a disappointing week for the bulls who based their opinions and position on further lowering of Argentine and Australian crop estimates and reiteration of opinions from European and domestic interests that importing Europe is more dependent upon North America for supplies owing to disappointing returns of the southern hemisphere's harvest.

Clearances Disappointing.

Export clearances continue disappointing, yet it is difficult to secure cash wheat without advancing prices relatively closer to the May delivery. Cash holders have their hedges well placed and are not disposed to let go of their grain, as it cannot be replaced on the same relative basis on which it was originally bought.

At the present rate of exports the end of the crop season will see liberal supplies carried over into the 1930 crop.

Speculative interest has fallen off moderately, with trading about 50 percent smaller than a year ago, while the open interest in wheat at the finish of the week was 184,606,000 bu, compared with 183,524,000 bu a week ago and 128,027,000 bu a year ago.

Prices were well toward the bottom for the week, with March $1.29¼@1.29¾, May $1.32⅜@1.32⅞, and July $1.33⅛. Prices follow:

LARD CONSIDERED CHEAP

Lard prices are considered low at under 10c a lb for January delivery in Chicago, the lowest prices of the season, and a small increase in speculative buying appeared late in the week. The market is considered well liquidated with a fair export and domestic demand and good export clearances. Stocks at western packing points increased 1,447,000 lbs last month, while a year ago they gained 6,610,000 lbs, being materially above the average accumulation.

Meat stocks are piling up as they usually do at this season, yet are more than a year ago and above the average of previous years.

RUSSIA SHIPS GRAIN TO EAST PRUSSIAN MILLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 5.—Several train loads of grain from Russia have arrived in Riga during the last three days en route to the East Prussian flour mills. Other exports are being made through Black Sea ports for the Mediterranean countries. The soviet press does not mention the export and the local soviet trade delegation refuses to give any information.

Semi-famine conditions continue to prevail in Russian cities, where the population has been existing for 14 months on bread cards and the daily ration has recently been curtailed another 100 grammes, the urban inhabitants receiving a little more than three-quarters pound of black bread daily. The staple food of Russia is rye bread, white bread being unobtainable. The exports chiefly consist of wheat.

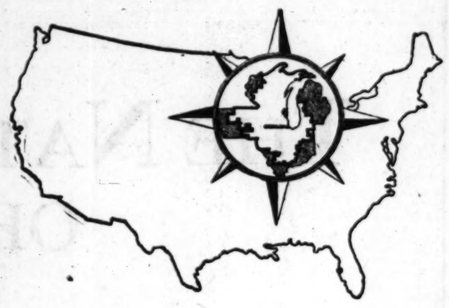
ONCENTRATE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE IN 1930



THE TRIBUNE WELCOMES THE CHALLENGE OF 1930

AGAIN a new year holds up a murky glass to business. Flush times have ebbed. A brilliant bubble has burst and a homely word has come into its own. America has taken up a notch in its belt and has gone back to the ledger and the lathe.

New opportunity now beckons to courage. New responsibility rests on the shoulders of the able. 1930 will see business men driven by competition, stimulated by competitors. New leaders will bid with old to set the pace. The unfit will flounder and the competent will face vigorous rivals.

Industry and commerce must specialize on profit. Selling efficiency will command greater premiums. Merchandise, methods, manpower—all must pass the calipers of the new year. Markets must show profits commensurate to sales efforts. Media must demonstrate economical productivity.

THE Chicago Tribune welcomes the challenge of the new year. It has already embarked upon a great program of improvement and expansion to meet it. Each year writes a record of Tribune accomplishment but, now, extra effort has been released to strengthen the value of this publication as a volume-producing, economical advertising medium.

Anticipating the increased needs of business during the coming year, the Chicago Tribune is driving ahead with redoubled energy. All along the line of operation it is perfecting its processes of manufacture and distribution. Millions of dollars in capital expenditures are being concentrated in the current year to enable the advertiser to secure greater returns at lower milline cost.

Sixteen latest type high speed presses and three folders are now being installed. They are but the beginning of a new press line which will include forty-two units and eight folders. Seventy-two units stand in the present Tribune press line. These now can whirl out 160,000 Tribunes an hour. The sixteen new units will speed up hourly production to 220,000 copies.

This is but one phase of the Tribune expansion plan to increase its efficiency and to become more effective for advertisers. Other facilities are being improved and extended. Waterfront property adjoining Tribune Square has been acquired as a means to economy in newsprint paper deliveries. The Tribune is increasing its fleet of ships which transport logs and paper from Tribune timberlands and mills to Tribune Tower. Forest operations and paper production likewise contribute to keep advertising milline costs down.

These savings will be passed on to advertisers in the form of greater editorial excellence and reader interest. Circulation will grow steadily greater. Readers will find new stimulus in editorial comment and news stories. Interest will intensify; response become more immediate. Keyed to the temperament of this tremendous market, the Tribune is creating new enthusiasms, new followers, new prospects for advertisers.

The appeal of the Tribune has already won a great audience. Its policies have created a dynamic response from readers. In Chicago and in the rich market of Tribune Town the Tribune today is an unrivalled means of opening new outlets and increasing sales volume.

ADVERTISERS in the Sunday Tribune ride quickly into the favor of 44% of all the families in Tribune Town. Coverage of all families in the city of Chicago is 76%; of those in metropolitan Chicago 71%. And in the 124 other key centers in Tribune Town coverage is 50%. No other publication can approximate the density or effectiveness of Tribune circulation. No other media can produce so economically such high sales volume. The Tribune never before offered advertisers such power and reader interest. And it is making these new investments with the determination of producing increased profitable sales for courageous advertisers.

NINETEEN-THIRTY will see an alert interest in key markets. This will be a period of honor and of trial for the newspaper. The Tribune is prepared. It is set to make the current year its greatest year in circulation and in advertising volume. Concentrate in the Tribune in 1930!

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She wins but not very graciously. When she hears that he has just lost his job she scolds him and calls him a play boy. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him that he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that since he has lost one job after another he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara and she offers to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. He refuses and tells her he is going out to Hollywood. She is furious with him and breaks the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco and starts for California. On the train he meets Anne Ames who is on her way to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying good-by in Utah John Andrew tells Anne that he will see her in Los Angeles in a few days.

Arrived in San Francisco John Andrew meets an old school friend, Peter Merriam, on the street. Pete is selling Mercury cars and tries to sell one to John Andrew. They go for a trial spin and with John Andrew at the wheel have a slight smash-up. In order to help Pete from losing his job John Andrew buys the custom built roadster for $4,980. He also gives all but a hundred dollars of his expense money to an old man with an inventions without asking what the machine is. He drives to Los Angeles in the Mercury and sees Anne at the Consolidated Studio where she is being tried out. He makes an engagement to take her to dinner. Before starting out he looks at the old man's plans, and learns they are for a noiseless camera. He sells the patent rights to Consolidated for twenty-five thousand, the money to be turned over to him on the receipt of the signature of Blake, the inventor.

In the meantime the hotel people become suspicious of John Andrew and ask him to pay his bill. He decides to pawn some belongings.

A DISTURBING MESSAGE.

John Andrew called, "Come in!" very cheerfully when knocks sounded at the door; one of the valet's assistants brought the two suits which Kellogg had sent to be pressed. John Andrew found a quarter, and reached for the charge tag accompanying the garments, pen in hand.

"I'm sorry, sir, but . . . you see, my orders are——"

"You want cash money?" asked John Andrew.

"My instructions, sir . . ."

"Do you keep the moths away from your guests' clothing?"

The man stared at the suits over his arm. "Where do you see moth holes, sir? I am unable to observe any, but——"

"Then keep 'em away from mine," said John Andrew. "I'm very fond of that gray suit . . . and bring 'em back in the morning, eh? Take along the quarter"—as the man laid it silently on the desk—"you can help it."

"Perhaps, sir, under the circumstances——"

"Get along," said John Andrew cheerfully. "Buy yourself a corner lot with it."

The telephone rang, and John Andrew let it ring several times before he went between the twin beds and took the instrument from its little stand.

His face cleared at once: "I thought you weren't to talk to me until Sunday," he said. "Get you at four? What time is it now? Almost three? Why . . . why, yes, I don't see why not, although I've got a little—er—business to transact before I come for you. Will I? O, you don't feel so afraid to have me buy you dinner now that I've closed a deal with Consolidated? Who told you about it?"

He listened while Anne explained how things went swiftly from mouth to mouth; next he said, "If I'm a little late getting there"—remembering the "business" which would be absolutely needful before he could pay for any dinner at all—"if I'm a bit late, Anne, you just read the funny strips like a nice girl . . . what?"

Mr. Chester, Anne told him, seemed to think that he was to take his leading lady for a ride somewhere down the coast, and for dinner: "He doesn't listen to me when I tell him I can't—I won't—go," Anne said, in nervous tones which made Kellogg's lips tighten. "He just says, 'I'll be waiting for you when you're dressed—try and get away from me, sweet thing'——"

"I'll sweet thing him," John Andrew snorted, "I'll bust him up small enough to be lemon drops . . . don't worry, Anne; papa will be there waitin' for you."

John Andrew, inaudibly, sighed. "Couldn't be better," he said.

When John Andrew hung up the receiver, he went to the two piles he had been arranging, and shoved them together. Next he looked out of the window, and for a moment considered tearing the sheets of a bed apart and lowering his bag to the lawn far below, retrieving it when he had run the gauntlet of the hotel servants and (he was beginning to believe) spies. Dinner, he realized, meant an additional ten dollars . . . or more.

John Andrew did his arithmetic again. Two days—three, if the bookkeeper would count in the coming night—at ten dollars? eleven? twelve? a day; that made thirty-six. Telegrams; say a couple of dollars more; forty. Food; five or so. A total of forty-five dollars. He needed fifteen or twenty more for Anne's evening. Say, sixty. On the basis of the money loaned him for the watch, he needed about three hundred's worth of merchandise to get sixty dollars . . .

And, he remembered, watches brought a better price than clothing or bags . . . The only things which might have any value were the silver brushes; they should bring ten or twelve dollars, surely . . .

"Come in," John Andrew called again, less cheerfully than before.

A boy in bright livery held a telegram out to John Andrew; Kellogg put another quarter (leaving $1.30 in his pocket) on the little round tray.

He tore open the yellow envelope, and, very swiftly, read:

"Hartshorne's probably dead," John Andrew muttered; "Canfield's only a game, but this fellow Cohn doesn't seem like a very pleasant individual thus far."

John Andrew read the message a second time, and took no more comfort from it. "Right," said John Andrew, "between the eyes."

Well enough to say, but not so easy to do. Go? Go where? John Andrew looked at the heap of clothing beside the ornate bag, at the scintillations made by the silver brushes. Not by any stretch of even his excellent imagination could they be sold for $500. Hang it, a fellow was just able to figure one problem out, and then another immediately confronted him, more difficult than the first. A fortune, and Anne, just around the corner, why was it necessary to have so much useless, senseless, grief now? John Andrew was honestly wretched; not until he made himself think ahead was he able to work himself into a more normal state of mind.

The situation was, exactly, this:

He had two days in which to raise $500.

He had two hours in which to meet his hotel bill.

He must—and must was the exact word—meet Anne (with enough to pay for dinner) in, now, less than a half-hour.

"Time certainly moves fast," muttered John Andrew.

Working backward, he was going to be at the Consolidated entrance at four. That much was settled, even if he bought Anne crackers and milk for her dinner. Next, as to the hotel bill: he could drive around all night, or find a place to sleep, and come back to the hotel in the morning to pay the bill. And lastly, or firstly, the custom built Mercury had to be sold.

Even John Andrew knew that automobiles could not be pawned; what he did not know was that he might have borrowed money on it. Therefor, despite the obvious loss which he must bear, the jade-green roadster must be disposed of. What matter? "I'll buy a couple of 'em Saturday afternoon," John Andrew said aloud.

Even while he was making this extravagant statement, John Andrew stooped and slipped two silver brushes and a silver comb into his coat pockets. Anne must be well and daintily fed.

On his way out John Andrew stopped at the manager's office. He explained nothing, saying only, "I'm going to be too busy this afternoon to get your money for you. My bags and stuff are in my room; you can take 'em, or throw 'em after me, but I'm not going to pay the bill until tomorrow."

The manager looked up; his face became stern, and, even while he gathered his storm clouds about him, to be broken about the guest's head, he said, "That will be quite satisfactory to us, sir."

"And," said John Andrew, recreasing his hat expertly, "I wish you'd tell the girl who takes off the counterpane and lights the bedside lamp at night not to move the cigarets from the table next to the bed over to the chiffonier . . . I need 'em the first thing in the morning . . ."

This guest, the manager decided, was either a thoroughgoing and complete scamp and swindler, or . . . or . . .

For a moment John Andrew's fate, as a resident at the Poinsettia, hung in the balance; then the manager said, smiling, "I'm that way myself. I'll bet the girl spoken to."

"Thanks," said John Andrew. "Spoils the whole day when you've got to climb out for your first smoke . . ."

Duncan Sisters Together Again in This Talkie

By May Tinée.

Good morning!

Behold the Duncan Sisters duneansistering all over the screen!

If you like 'em you most certainly got 'em in "It's a Great Life." They sing, they dance, they clown, and Vivian even goes down into the Valley of the Shadow of Death to wring a tear from you. Trouble is, she gets well too suddenly. The realist will find her snappy leap back from delirium and the pearly gates to vivacity and good, sane reason a bit disconcerting.

The film tells a back stage story of vaudeville life. The Duncans are seen as the Hogan Sisters who have an act in which they employ a piano player. One Jimmy. Jimmy and Babe Hogan are in love and Casey is hurt, furious and badly jealous over the situation, for never before has she shared her sister's affection with another. The marriage of Babe and Jimmy breaks up the act. The newlyweds go away on their own. Casey starts forth trouping alone.

Neither act is successful. Both sisters are lonely and unhappy. The critical illness of Babe brings them together again. An all around reconciliation follows and we leave Babe, Jimmy and Casey happy and successful.

Some gorgeous fantastically presented revue scenes are offered through the medium of Babe's delirium. Sound and technicolor effects are splendid. Mr. Gray and supporting cast are in good form. Several rather catchy songs are introduced.

Your liking for this picture will depend, mostly, on your feeling for the work of the Duncan girls. If you admire them the film will go over big with you. If you don't, I imagine you won't find it so hot. I thought it a rather cluttered up offering, evidencing good but not brilliant direction.

See you tomorrow.

U. of C. Professor Now Heads Child Study Group

Harrison A. Dobbs, associate professor of social economy at the University of Chicago, has been selected for special work by the executive committee of the National Probation association. He will head a group to study the care of delinquent children who are court wards. A grant of $33,000 has been made by the Rockefeller foundation, it was announced yesterday by Charles L. Chute of New York, general secretary of the association.

No adequate study ever has been made, Mr. Chute stated in announcing the gift. He pointed out that there exists a confusion of ideas and so detention homes today are being used wrongly for correctional purposes, and often for the care of children who should be at home.

Prof. Dobbs was formerly superintendent of the Cook County Juvenile Detention home.

Triplets, All Boys, Born to South Side Mother

Triplets were born yesterday to Mrs. Leslie Grubbs, 6129 Sangamon street, at the Englewood hospital. Three boys arrived within a few minutes of each other. The first weighed three pounds eight ounces, the second three pounds four ounces, and the third four pounds one and one-quarter ounces. They have not been named. Dr. G. C. Richardson, in charge of the case, said the condition of the mother and babies was "fair."

Woman's Republican Club Gives Luncheon Tomorrow

The annual meeting and luncheon of the Woman's National Republican club of Chicago, will be held in the Zeisler room of the Chicago Woman's club, 1734 N. 17th street, tomorrow at 1:30.

This Is Tag Day to Help Fight on Heart Disease Perils

Valentine's day is five weeks' away, but tiny red hearts will flood the mails this morning. They will not bear sentimental couplets nor darts and cupid decorations. Upon each heart will read the legend: "Help Prevent Heart Disease."

Money from the sale of the small red stamps will be used by the Chicago Heart association to aid in the prevention and the relief of cardiac disorders. A recent extensive study of vital statistics, according to Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, executive director of the association, showed that 24.5 per cent of all deaths of occupied persons are due to heart disease. By proper education, she pointed out, some types of the disease and disability it causes can be prevented, and many patients can be restored to a near normal life.

"Chicago has not a single bed for a man or boy convalescing from heart disease, Mrs. Britton continued. "The estimates of authorities on all convalescent care sets Chicago's need according to population at 1,500 beds, and the city has but 273. One hundred of these are reserved for crippled children, 29 for tubercular girls, and 144 for all other convalescent needs, with only 36 of that number available for heart sufferers. Chicago's care for cardiacs includes no provision for chronics nor convalescent provision for infants, and no organized plan for home convalescents."

Chief among the activities of the Chicago Heart association have been securing country outings for 535 women and children, organizing and supervising volunteer clinic aids for cardiac clinics in Chicago, establishing home visiting and recreational occupation for bed ridden patients, and studies of the cardiac in industry and school.

Dr. James B. Herrick is honorary president, Dr. Robert B. Breble, president; Dr. Walter W. Hamburger, vice president; Dr. Sidney Strauss, secretary, and Dr. Robert H. Harvey, treasurer. Dr. Harrold A. Bachmann is chairman of the executive committee. The seals will be on sale one dollar for each hundred, during January and February.

Chicago Woman's Club Resumes Its Open Meetings

More than 175 women attended the first of five weekly "Sunday open door" meetings sponsored by the Chicago Woman's club yesterday in Zeisler hall of the club building at 72 East 11th street. The meetings, first organized more than 25 years ago, are organized annually by the Chicago Woman's club for the benefit of women who do not ordinarily take part in club life. Mrs. Susan S. Frackelton is chairman of the open door committee.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. G. O'Connor, Circle avenue, Wheaton, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you agree with Mrs. Oldfield, a representative in congress from Arkansas, that only men should run the government?

The Answers.

Eugene S. Ferrier, 130 North Lotus avenue, electrician — I do not agree with her. I don't suppose any one wants the women to predominate in the various legislatures, but they should have representation there. Women's views on the various issues should be made known.

Mrs. R. C. Acers, 6166 Winthrop avenue, housewife — I believe Mrs. Oldfield is right. It has seemed to me that women are out of their sphere when they are in politics. Women should do things that are better suited to them. It should be easy for the wives of public officials to induce their husbands to respect women's wishes.

Howard E. Smith, 208 South La Salle street, lawyer—I do not agree with Mrs. Oldfield. The minds of women are as competent and as active, under the proper environment and training, as that of any man. I believe women should take part in the affairs of the government.

Mrs. August Swierczek, 312 Center street, homemaker — I do not. Women should be represented in the house of representatives, in the senate, and as well as in all other legislative groups. There is no danger of women gaining control of the government.

John Kara, 813 Cornelia avenue, moving picture operator—A woman's place is at home, looking after the husband and the children. A woman looks out of place in politics, and she is out of place there. It shows lack of confidence in the men in politics and in the wives of the men who are in politics.

Rabbi Wonders at Christians' Clashing Sects

Dr. Wise Says Jews Meet Hostility.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The sectarian divisions of Christendom cannot be understood by Jews, according to Dr. Stephen S. Wise of New York in his address last night before the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. Rabbi Wise spoke on the subject, "If I Were a Christian."

The noted Jewish leader cited the divisive spirit among the followers of the founder of Christianity, who pleaded that they "love one another." He added the fact that a military guard must be posted at the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem to prevent the priests of different groups from attacking each other.

"If I were a Christian," Dr. Wise said, "I hardly could help wondering at the great gulf that has become fixed between that unity and comradeship of the disciples of Jesus, as he commended those qualities to them, and the endless multiplication, throughout the centuries, of Christian churches, sects, and denominations. Much of denominationalism grew up, as the very name implies, around names."

Dr. Wise then pointed out what he considered a contradiction which was completed by the recent pact between the Catholic church and Mussolini. He stated that if he were a Christian he would rejoice in St. Francis of Assissi; but would sorrow over the pact made between St. Francis' church and the Italian dictator.

Speaking of the recent outbreak in Palestine, Dr. Wise declared he could not understand why the sympathies of Christians the world over rested more with Arabs rather than the Jews.

"One of the great Christian journals, the Christian Century," Dr. Wise said, "after effort on behalf of international peace through the medium of the Kellogg pact, does not reveal a scintilla of understanding of or sympathy with the Jews."

"If I were a Christian," he continued, "I should ask myself, 'Why stands Christendom against the Christ people—to use Zangwill's term—and why, in the face of all the evidence and facts, moral as well as political rights, does it render judgment for them that have despoiled and slain and raped, and render judgment against them that have been immeasurably wronged?'"

THEATER

TEN weeks of Victor Herbert's music, involving the revival of five well-remembered pieces, are announced for the Majestic, starting February 9. These revivals have been effected this season in New-York by the Messrs. Shubert, who report that they have met with a high measure of box-office success. Works other than the lamented Herbert's also have been revived: Lehar's "The Merry Widow," for one, and DeKoven's "Robin Hood," for a second; while a third, announced as in rehearsal, will be Luders' "The Prince of Pilsen." However, the "season" in the Majestic is scheduled to concern itself with Herbert only. The arrangement is to be as follows:

February 9—"Mlle. Modiste," with Miss Fritzi Scheff in the rôle she originated in 1905;

February 23—"Naughty Marietta," with Miss Ilse Marvenga in the rôle composed by Herbert for Miss Emma Trentini;

March 9—"The Fortune-Teller," with Miss Eleanor Painter in the rôle composed for Miss Alice Nellsen, who sang in the operetta in 1899;

March 23—"Babes in Toyland," which had a famous Chicago run in 1903 in the Grand Opera House;

April 6—"Sweethearts," which may be recalled as something neat wherein Miss Christie Macdonald sang.

Another bulletin from the Messrs. Shubert is that Harry Lauder will soon appear in one of their Chicago theaters.

Jimmy Savo, who has his funny moments, is billed for next week in the Palace.

Mr. Leiber and his aides will tonight appear in "King Richard III" in the Civic.

And there is prospect of more Shakspere this season: the players from Stratford-upon-Avon, here early last year in the Studebaker, would like to return to Chicago; and the probability is that a booking will be made for them.

Plans for the revival of Kalman's "Sari" with Mitzi have been changed; for the statement is now made that the operetta will be sung in English rather than Hungarian, and that Jack Squires, who was with her here a year ago in "Lovely Lady," and Boyd Marshall, who is her husband, will be in the cast. And this means, doubtless, that she will continue to be billed as Mitzi instead of by her former stage-name, Mizzi Hajos.

Riss Brown, out of the two-a-day, is to be in George White's new show, "Flying High."

Among the players named for the support of Miss Constance Collier in "The Matriarch" is Miss Beatrix Thomson, who made a notable personal success in the New-York performances of the play based on the good novel called "The Constant Nymph," although she was not able to save what is said to have been a poor stage-version of the tale. She is, off-stage, the wife of Claude Rains, the good actor who took part last season in the Theater Guild's Chicago performances of "Marco Millions" and "Volpone." Miss Thomson will be new to Chicago when, the 20th, "The Matriarch" is given in the Princess by the Dramatic League.

And Norman MacOwan, now acting in that theater in his own play of "The Infinite Shoeblack," gently makes known that he has other plays, and that he would like to be up and about the business of having them produced. The difficulty of his getting up and about seems to reside in finding an actor for his rôle, Doctor Ralston, who would be quite satisfactory to Mr. MacOwan as a dramatist.

"The New-Yorkers" is named as something in preparation by Herbert Fields and Cole Porter, who provided the words and music of "Fifty Million Frenchmen," a current Manhattan success. And "The New-Yorkers" hasn't been used as a title since a piece called that was written and staged for the late Dan Daly, who for a time was the most popular cut-up on the American stage.

Teuton Dancers, British Cellist Delight Critic

For All Reveal Fine Examples of Art.

BY HAZEL MOORE.

Midway of last season Harald Kreutzberg and Yvonne Georgi arrived in Chicago unheralded and unsung, to dance amazingly in recital at Orchestra hall, for a mere handful of the dance wise who in their wisdom had penetrated beyond the wave length of the American dance to know that here were the greatest dancers who ever came out of Germany. Yesterday they returned to the same theater to thrill the huge audience who had in the meantime become Kreutzberg and Georgi wise.

They are an astonishing pair. To watch them is to see the entire trend of modern art in Germany. They are strong with the strength of revolt, they are powerful in the muscular control of the developed gymnast, they are arrogant in their perfect surety in the use of a new medium, a new expression if not a new technic of the dance; they are beautiful in their young strength or ugly with the courage to see ugliness as art. The "Three Mad Figures," three crazed impressions of the effect of repeated rhythmic sounds on a madman, were superbly ugly and amazingly effective as mimed by Kreutzberg.

"Revolte," done by the two, perhaps best epitomizes the entire newness of their expression, though the "Persian Song," to music by Eric Satie, is typical of their method of choreography, the geometric design pointed by interlocked and changing arm positions. In all their dancing the rigid, muscular punctuation, the absolute period of stop is the most unusual feature.

Georgi is a splendid example of vitality and developed bodily grace. Kreutzberg is this and more. He is as impersonal as art. To his shaven head and the incredible elevation of his leaps he adds a dramatic expression that holds one enthralled. If he had done nothing else yesterday than "The Angel of Last Judgment," to music by Wilckens, he would have done well. Here was real power in conception and execution.

Incidentally the program announced was to have been entirely to music by their pianist, Friedrich Wilckens, but was changed to include various other composers. This was somewhat of a disappointment, as the examples of Mr. Wilckens' writing that remained on the program were most interesting. Another recital is announced for Feb. 3 and should not be missed.

Beatrice Harrison, who ranks as one of the foremost women cellists, appeared in recital at the Playhouse yesterday afternoon after an absence of many years. Miss Harrison brings with her the acclaim not only of her own country, England, but of all the continent. She was remembered in Chicago as a pleasant experience, and yesterday that impression was augmented.

For this Titian haired English girl handled her cello in an entirely unfeminine way. Her tone is both vigorous and large, but, better than that, is of a lovely quality. I found the Dellus sonata for cello and piano a splendid performance by Miss Harrison and Leon Benditzky of a particularly long drawn and uninteresting work. The following arrangements based by Herbert Hughes on old Irish tunes, "The Bard of Armagh" and "The Blackbird Reel," were entirely charming. The unaccompanied Kodaly sonata for cello unfortunately could not be heard.

The Skalski orchestra, André Skalski conducting, was engaged in playing an extremely long and popular program at the Studebaker theater. The orchestra of some fifty-five members was eager if not always accurate in following the good musicianly beat of Mr. Skalski's baton. The J. S. Bach, "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra" was accompanied in excellent style by Jan Chipausso, pianist, and Mr. Skalski and the orchestra. It proved a delightful variant to the more familiar works of Bach. Michel Wilkomirski, whose talent for the violin is well known hereabouts, was the other assistant artist.

Rita Neve chose the Civic theater for her piano recital. She was heard in the Corelli-Godowsky "Angelus" and the Beethoven "Sonata Pathetique." Miss Neve is a pianist with a sane and pleasant approach to her music. The first movement of the "Pathetique" rather lacked the technical strength and finish, but the Adagio following was done charmingly, with good tone and serene care. Her program was both long and inclusive.

Betty Borden and R. S. Pirie to Wed Today

BY THALIA

What an interestingly eventful week-end this has been for society! I daresay none of the guests at the Coe-Laflin wedding, reported fully in yesterday's TRIBUNE, has ever seen such strikingly designed nuptials.

Besides that wedding, there was the Second Assembly on Friday evening, the opening of the Junior league's "The Princess and the Goblins" on Saturday morning, the marriage of Mrs. Olive H. Mead and Edward H. Bennett with a reception at the Noble Maiden Judahs' yesterday afternoon, and today, Miss Betty Borden and Robert S. Pirie are to marry.

Mr. Bennett and Mrs. Mead were married at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Herbert Prince, rector of the church. They were attended only by Owen Jones of Lake Forest.

Mrs. Bennett is the daughter of John D. S. Holden of London and a niece of Brig. Gen. Sir Arthur Long of the British army. Since coming from Canada she has lived in Lake Forest and was formerly riding instructor at the Onwentsia club there. Mr. Bennett is consulting architect for the Chicago Plan commission, for the Century of Progress exposition, of the Washington Plan commission, which is developing architectural program of beautification in the national capital. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett will make their summer home at 89 East Illinois road, Lake Forest, and their winter home at 43 Burton place. Mr. Bennett has one son and Mrs. Bennett a son and a daughter.

The Junior league play revealed all the evidences of the ability and careful work that have characterized its predecessors. The performance besides, beside the rigorous rehearsing to which the cast has been subjected during the last 5 weeks, the diligence of the numerous workers who contributed to the costumes, setting, music, and the direction of the production.

"The Princess and the Goblins" is, however, not quite so engaging a play as others the league has done. It seemed to me to lack some of the whimsicality of "Racketty Packetty House," "The Rose and the Ring," and some of the others, but the good teamwork of the actors, the bright, effective costumes, and the setting were all that the mostly juvenile audience on Saturday desired. The Princess is played by Emily Pope in properly princess-like gowns, silver slippers, and curly yellow wig.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, looking much as she did in "Treasure Island" last year, does the attractive boy, Cubert, who rescue the princess from the goblins, and points the moral to the tale. Gloria Chandler did a grand job of directing the play, which opens promptly and has satisfactorily brief intermissions. Helen Reed's music was appropriate and to the spirit of the piece delightful, and the scenery and costumes designed by Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., with the assistance of Jane Dunham, were imaginative and colorful, particularly the princess' boudoir with a rose colored dressing table with a star shaped mirror, and a tested bed with big pink bows.

The marriage of Miss Betty Borden and Robert S. Pirie at the Fourth Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock this afternoon, with an ensuing reception at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Waller Borden of 1020 Lake Shore drive, will be a sort of reversal of that of her sister, Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson. The latter had a small wedding and a large reception, whereas, the larger number of guests is being invited to attend this afternoon's ceremony, and only a few have been asked to the reception.

Mrs. Stevenson is to be matron of honor and the bridesmaids will include Bertha Palmer, Laura Sprague, Eleanor McCormick, Barbara King, Dorothy Ranney, Jean Purcell, and Betty Smith of New York City.

The Silverthorne-Hellyer-Faurot duo in Riverside have had a veritable epidemic of marriages in their family in the last few years. Thomas and Frederick Hellyer were both married within the last year, to Emily Green and LaVerne Louer, respectively. George Silverthorne Faurot and Keturah Reagan were wed last fall, and John H. Silverthorne and the former Elisabeth Goddard preceded the other brides and grooms by a few months.

Now, the latest alliance to further complicate family reunions, is the engagement of Miss Jeanette Dixon to George Morrill Silverthorne Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Silverthorne, announced by Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Dixon of Monroe, Mich.

Miss Dixon was graduated from Dobbs Ferry and later attended a Florentine finishing school of the Countess Di Nocarole. Mr. Silverthorne went to Say prep at Southboro, N. H., and later to St. Paul's at Concord, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Scott Joy of 531 Roscoe street announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Ann, to Frederick Barton Hamm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hamm of Kenilworth. Miss Joy attended the University of Colorado and is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Hamm, who is the brother of Mrs. Rush Clark Butler Jr., attended Dartmouth and is a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham gave a dinner on Saturday evening and Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt gave a tea yesterday afternoon for Gena Branscombe, American composer, who is to be guest conductor for the fourth of this season's programs by the Women's Symphony orchestra on Wednesday evening at the Eighth Street theater. Miss Branscombe is the house guest of the Hoyts, and is being extensively entertained by numerous musical organizations during her stay. Mrs. E. R. Litsinger is giving a dinner for the composer before the concert on Wednesday evening, and after the performance she is to be the guest of the Altrusa club. Before her departure on Thursday the Chicago Musical college, which she attended, is to give a large reception for her.

The National Park Seminary Alumnae association will hold a holiday luncheon today at the Chicago Athletic club at 12:30 o'clock. Mrs. Raymond Haskins is in charge of the arrangements. Movies of the school are to be shown.

"Step on the Gas," Boy's Plea; Artist Shows the Portrait

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Anna Lynch ranks with Pauline Palmer, Lucy Hartrath, Anna Lee Stacey, J. Wellington Reynolds, Allen St. John, Albin Polasek, and Frederic M. Grant in being one of the imposing band of important Chicago artists who have not yielded an inch to modernist importunity. She is one of the "Tree Studio" group. Her work always is an inspiration and a delight and its versatility is one of its greatest charms.

A one man show of her paintings has just been opened at the Cordon club. There are three cases of miniatures and the walls of the galleries are lined with paintings in oil: Flower studies, landscapes, street scenes, and portraits One of the most charming of the portraits is of a little boy, W. J. Carney Jr. The child is about nine years old and he is sitting in a chair with a black Scottie on his knees.

The quality of the flesh tones, the coloring of background and chair, the simplicity of the arrangement all work for its great success. A very human touch is in the little story Miss Lynch tells about painting the boy. He got restless after some time of posing and said, perfectly cheerfully and with a minimum of reserve: "O, Lynch, step on the gas!"

The other portraits are of women and are dignified, simple arrangements.

In the flower paintings is found the brilliant soft color that is so much this painter's own. The two studies in which the blossoms are arranged in brass bowls are the most beautiful: they are fascinating.

Miss Lynch turns to an entirely different phase of picture with her exquisite canvases of sea and shore along the Spanish coast. In one the water is as calm as so much flowing silk; in another it has quickened in a fresh breeze that sends the little sailing boats scudding for shelter and glitters like a turquoise; in a third it is still again and reflects the beautiful shore in a placid, blue mirror.

The street scenes in Spain and France are charming. Their general atmosphere is gray, but the quiet tone is lit by the introduction of flowers on the wall or at the windows and masses of green and blossoms in the courtyards. Among the most entrancing is the little "Humble Patio." In Spain, too, Miss Lynch has painted several studies of young women, and her "Gypsy Girl" and "Señorita" are two of the most bewitching studies in the room.

The exhibition will continue through this month.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Copper and iron have no justification in the mineral rations of poultry. This is the conclusion of poultry specialists at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Trials have been finished to show that young chicks do not suffer from anemia due to a deficiency of copper and iron. Salts of these two elements have been found beneficial in the rations of young pigs that become anemic on a strictly milk diet; however, there is no necessity for an addition of these salts to the ration of growing chicks.

To find out if there is a relation between iron and copper in the ration and the amount of the same substances contained in the yolk of eggs, analyses were made. It is also impossible to increase the iron or copper content of the yolk of eggs by feeding large amounts of copper and iron, J. G. Halpin, poultry husbandman at the University of Wisconsin, concludes.

Similar conclusions indicate that there is no improvement in the hatchability of eggs when iron and copper are added to the mineral ration.

So, unlike some other farm animals where these two elements in the ration have proved very beneficial, poultry show no favorable reaction to iron and copper. It does not have an influence on anemia, mineral content of the yolk of eggs, or hatchability of the eggs, Halpin points out.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Sterrett of Winnetka announce the engagement of their daughter, Marguret, to Russell O. Lund of Evanston. Miss Sterrett is a senior at Northwestern university and a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Lund is a graduate of Northwestern and a member of Acacia fraternity.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—President and Mrs. Hoover had a few guests at dinner tonight, their Sunday companies being usually more or less informal and the guests usually personal friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter gave a dinner followed by a dance last night in their home on Du Pont circle, in honor of Mrs. Leiter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Huston Rawls of New York, who are their guests. The dance company included not only contemporaries of Mrs. Rawls in Washington society, but many of the debutante set and elder people, friends of Mrs. Leiter's mother, Mrs. John R. Williams. Mrs. Rawls formerly was Miss Frances Williams, and was the widow of John Ballantyne Pitney, son of the late Justice Mahlon Pitney.

Invitations have been issued by the British ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard for a dinner Jan. 15 in honor of Gen. Jan Smuts of South Africa, who will make a short visit in Washington.

Paris Predicts the Return of Bobbed Locks

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Among the latest reports from Paris is one in which the return of the bob is heralded. That is the way it is worded. The bob is coming back. And some of us weren't aware even it had gone away. We knew, of course, that it was being put through a feminen citizenship sort of degree. And we knew that a great many women on our side of the ocean were letting their hair grow.

We knew, too, that some of those letting it grow got discouraged about half way through the growing pain stage and went back to the short locks again. We also knew that a great many, noticeably largely among the younger element, got no such growing pains and flaunt a neat little knob at the back of the neck in what you might call a challenging way.

But now the latest report insinuates that millinery has not risen to the chic demanded by ultra smart women for wear over long locks. So it is told that Paris is again showing a growing predelict for cutting the hair. The report I read says: "One of the events of the session is the failure of the long hair vogue." And this at the height of a season in which skirts touch the ground at one point at least and waistlines are where nature marked them to be.

It is the fitted crown of the new millinery that will not permit any extra clutter of curls.

Of course, I'm not suggesting that you take this report about short hair as an edict. Perhaps a month from now another report will come along carrying quite another tale. Such is the vacillating news we have to offer on the subject of hats. What probably will be the outcome eventually—by which we mean now and six and twelve months from now—is that women will do just what they please about their hair. If they find the long locks becoming, they'll think up ways and means and waves and curls to make them more alluring.

If they decide that short hair is kinder to them—they'll try for smarter and smarter cuts.

A Cake Hard to Cut.

I promised to bake a cake for a church benefit. I made my best two-layer cake. It was sold for a good price to a man who bought it to take home. A few days afterward I answered my doorbell and there was the man. He handed me a flat package and said, "I guess this is yours."

I opened it and found the removable bottom of my cake pan, which I had left on the bottom of the top layer! He said they had quite a time trying to cut the cake. J. F. H.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.

Elmer Invites View of Nurse on Symphony

He Thinks She Couldn't Help But Be Pleased.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock conducting, through W-G-N, 2 to 3, played a concert yesterday that would be acceptable to the Muse of Music. Bach's now familiar Suite in D major (famous for its air on the G string) was the opener, setting minds and feet advancing.

Dohnanyi's Suite for orchestra, a work not before heard in radio, placed a damper on the dancing and set our minds at work musing and pondering over its varied charms. Strauss' "Wine, Women and Song" brought the concert to an end. A total of three numbers only, yet an ideal example of radio program designing. I am sure many thousands wished that the concert could have gone on in a similar vein for another hour or so.

The St. Chrysostom's church vesper service, from W-G-N, 4:30 to 5, was beautiful and one which I am certain is widely appreciated by the radio audience. If time schedules were rearranged so as to include a broadcast of the entire service I am sure it would be welcomed.

The celebration of the tenth anniversary of the formation of the league of nations, held at the Metropolitan Opera house, New York City, and broadcast through WMAQ, 2 o'clock, was an important addition to the usual Sunday afternoon features.

For once, the New York informal concert through KYW, 6:30 to 7, took on the form of a real recital. José Iturbi, Cpanish pianist, with a studio orchestra furnishing occasional accompaniment, was the recitalist. Solo numbers by Scarlatti, Liszt, and Albeniz were played, but the whiz on the program was a concerto for piano and orchestra by Wiener, a French composer, and written in jazz idiom—a curious and highly entertaining conceit.

The New York concert through W-G-N, 8:15 to 9:15, was pretentious, but rather heavy, and poorly arranged as to program. Fernandez Arbos, conductor of the Madrid Symphony orchestra, was guest conductor, and for the most part the orchestral program held one's interest. Miss Aida Bonelli, soprano, was the guest soloist. She has a sweet and expressive voice, but I am sure her program was too highbrow and not of the character to win general approval.

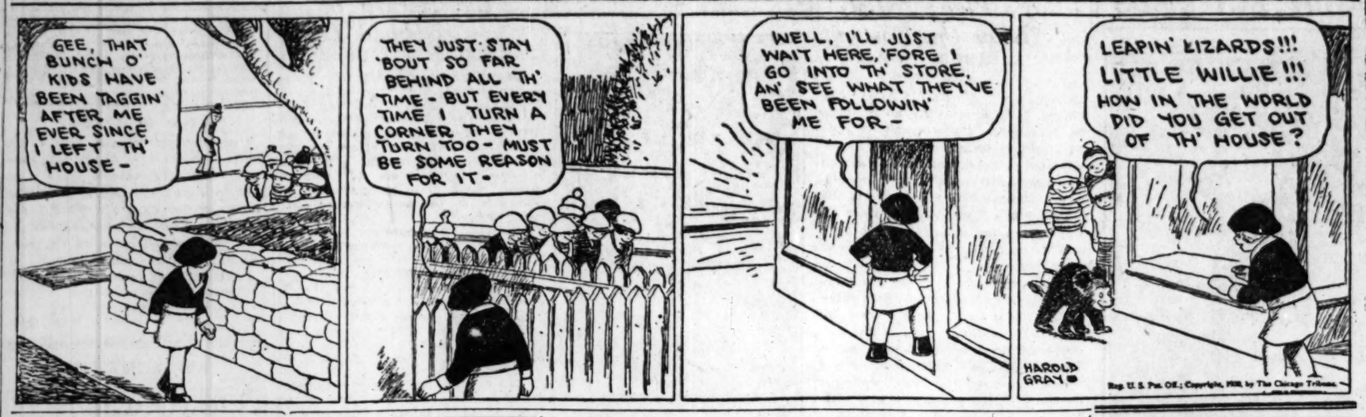
Quincy, Ill., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The Adams county board of supervisors will meet tomorrow at 9 o'clock in special session to consider what roads in the county will get the benefit of the $100,000 in gasoline tax that will be available for state aid roads.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Chased by a Bear



FRENCH PLAN 1930 OCEAN AIR RACE; COSTE TO ENTER

PARIS, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Another air race from Paris to New York in 1930 appeared probable tonight. One contestant would be Capt. Dieudonne Coste, accepted as the holder of the world's records for straight line and measured course long distance flying. The other will be Capt. Carretier, who was officially credited with bringing down 14 enemy planes during the world war.

Manufacturers began work in December on a new airplane in which Capt. Coste about next June expects to link Le Bourget and the Roosevelt flying field without a stop. He said that his famous "Question Mark," the plane in which he flew around the world and more recently set his distance records, is "tired."

Meanwhile the French airplane manufacturer Cousinet has started to build a monoplane with thick wings in which fuel will be stored. With the 1,800 horsepower to be developed from three Hispano-Suiza motors, Capt. Carretier expects this plane to have a lifting capacity of 13 tons and a cruising range of 7,000 miles. He said tonight that he would be ready to start ahead of Capt. Coste.

N. Y. THEATERS PLEDGE TO END TICKET "GOUGE"

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Theater managers controlling 58 out of the 64 legitimate theaters in the Broadway district have signed a resolution for ending the theater speculation evil proposed last week by the managers' committee consisting of Arthur Hopkins, Brock Pemberton, and Gilbert Miller, it was announced today.

Of the 36 managers approached for their approval of the plan to end ticket speculation by barring the practice of having agents buy blocks of tickets months in advance, only two refused to sign the resolution. These were A. L. Erlanger, controlling five theaters, and C. B. Dillingham, managing one house.

Encouraged by the rapidity of progress in the movement to reform the method of distributing tickets, the managers' committee will confer tomorrow with the principal ticket orokers.

Seeks Death in River, Then Cries for Help and Drowns

An unidentified man, who decided an instant too late that life was worth living after all, was drowned yesterday when he leaped into the south branch of the river from the Jackson boulevard bridge. Apparently changing his mind when his body struck the icy water, he screamed for help, and Daniel Ryan, the bridge tender, tossed him a life preserver. The man missed it by inches and disappeared. The body was recovered at Harrison street a short time later.

VACATION ENDS, RUM TRIALS DUE AT MICHIGAN U.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—After two weeks of vacation quiet, this little city will become a bustling seat of learning again when 10,000 students return to classes at the University of Michigan tomorrow morning. Just four weeks are left for them to "hit the books" before examinations, which start on Feb. 1 to continue for ten days.

The case of the three alleged student bootleggers apprehended in Fletcher hall is expected to be disposed of soon. The case of "Mickey" Phelan, alias William Morgan, who was arrested on charges of violating the prohibition act and attempted bribery of an officer, also is due for attention. Phelan is in jail, failing to produce $10,000 bail. His hearing, set for Dec. 20, was postponed to allow student witnesses to proceed home on their vacations.

Gas Explosion on Yacht Causes $30,000 Damage

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A gas explosion on the yacht Sea Foam, owned by Carl W. Blossom, Cleveland manufacturer, did damage estimated at $30,000 to the vessel in port here tonight. No one was injured. Carl Westerdroll, chief engineer, plunged through flames to cut off petcocks through which gas was escaping and which threatened 300 gallons of gasoline aboard the vessel. The flames were extinguished by firemen. Mr. Blossom was not aboard. He is due here tomorrow.

GEORGE DE HAVEN FUNERAL RITES WILL BE TODAY

George De Haven, for 20 years associated with Rand, McNally & Co., died on Saturday at his home at the South Shore Country club after an illness of two months. Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. today at the chapel at 2700 East 75th street. The body will be taken to Grand Rapids for burial.

Mr. De Haven was formerly connected with the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads in the east. He resigned as assistant general passenger agent of the Erie in New York in 1890 to become general passenger agent of the Chicago and Western Michigan railway and the Detroit Northern and Lansing railroad, later merged with the Pere Marquette, in Grand Rapids. He was active in promoting the railroad's development in the middle west and after ten years resigned to join the Harriman lines, with which he was connected until 1910, when he came to Chicago to join Rand, McNally & Co.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Emerson W. Bliss of Grand Rapids, and one sister, Miss Pauline De Haven of Philadelphia.

Eugene Feuchtinger, Music Teacher, Dead

Eugene Feuchtinger, 67 years old, 378 Hawthorne lane, Winnetka, director of the Perfect Voice Institute of Chicago, died last night at his home after an illness of a year and a half. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah Feuchtinger; one son, Eugene, and one daughter, Josephine. Funeral services will be held at the late residence at 1 p. m. tomorrow, with burial at Ridgewood cemetery.

SHIP DISABLED OFF CALIFORNIA; TUG TO RESCUE

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—The marine department of the Merchants' exchange was informed tonight that the British motorship Fresno City, which sailed for Vancouver from Tyne Dec. 4, had wirelessed the Reardon Smith line offices, the owners, that she was totally disabled 52 miles north of San Francisco. The vessel carried a crew of forty-five.

The tug Sea Scout was preparing to go to the Fresno City's rescue.

GROUNDED IN GALE.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The British tanker Lunula was aground tonight on a sand bank five miles from Puerto Mexico, in the southern part of this province, with its engines disabled by water which had poured in through a hole in the hull.

Another British vessel, the San Sotico, was only a mile away when an S O S was sent by the stranded ship, but the high seas kicked up by the northerly gale prevented it from approaching. It lowered two launches, however, to assist.

3 in Serious Condition After Crash Fatal to 2

Seymour, Ind., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—John Walz, 42; his wife, Hazel, and their daughter, Lillian, 14, remained in serious conditions here tonight from injuries in an accident on federal highway 31 late last night in which Walz's automobile, en route to New Albany, rammed a stalled poultry truck. Edward Norton, 70, and Mrs. Lillian Chandler, 67, who were riding with the Walze's, were burned to death when the wreckage caught fire.

Boys (10 to 15) Grow Like Weeds
Milk is the Food They Need—
How They Enjoy "Selected"

Mother and Dad marvel at the way "Junior" grows—and the quantity of food he consumes. This is a critical time and something besides his voice is changing. He actually needs two helpings of fresh vegetables, cereal, fruit, meat and milk at each meal.

The boy who "fills up the chinks," with "Selected"—the milk with the "Sweet Natural Taste" is less apt to crave the less nutritious foods. Little Sister, often so finicky at meal times, just loves the taste of "Selected" and drinks the required 4 glasses a day eagerly.

This milk is specially produced for drinking, on 105 picked dairy farms near Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. Special attention is paid to healthy herds; modern barns and equipment; methods of stabling, feeding, milking, and cooling. We pay a liberal premium for the diligent care that makes "Selected" so delicious. We bottle "Selected" in a special plant at Lake Geneva, and doubly safeguard its delivery by an extra hooded cap.

All Mothers, and especially those of adolescent children, should encourage the milk-drinking habit. Supplying "Selected" does it. Give it a trial and be convinced. Three simple methods of arranging one are suggested below.

Costs only 3 cents more a quart to enjoy this special drinking milk.

Writer Tells Parents Not to Let Mistakes Discourage Them

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A "Play Booklet" by Mrs. Bevans for mothers of pre-school children will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

It was not so long ago that parents who failed with their children would have had a good excuse, if they had wanted one.

"We didn't know our children needed this or that," was for many people a fair statement of the case. They really did not know and they had few sources of help to turn to.

Today, however, the situation is different. So much is known about the nature of children and what they need physically and psychologically at various ages, that those who do not realize intuitively how to guide them and care for them can find out, if they want to, while those who have the rare combination of intelligence and intuition about children can further increase their skill, and learn the whys of their ways, to the added benefit of the children they are concerned with.

Among the most vital things we've learned is that the early years are tremendously important. Unfortunately, the result of this knowledge has been that many parents who have made mistakes in those first years are apprehensive or discouraged about them, and feel that the die is already cast.

Now, of course, it's best not to make mistakes—either minor ones, or the more serious ones which end up in actual delinquency. But, having made the mistake, take courage for this reason: that a child can be freed of fears, cured of habits, and brought out of social maladjustments by an understanding of the causes, and by intelligent management.

Parents can often, by thought and study, work out these things themselves. Sometimes, though, they need skilled professional advice to show them the way, and this is obtainable by individual consultation or in clinics.

It is amazing how much you alone can do to corect your mistakes yourself by wanting earnestly to understand, and by reading and thinking. It is still more amazing to see what a trained consulting psychologist can do with growing boys and girls, with young men and women, and with mature people. Some of their results border on the miraculous, though the only miracle lies in their understanding the springs of human action, thought and feeling, and in possessing a technical skill in clearing up and correcting old difficulties. Some of their cures are quietly interesting—some actually spectacular.

So, no matter at what point in age or seriousness you've made a mistake, don't be discouraged. Be comforted in knowing that, if you care enough, you can bring about astonishingly happy changes in behavior in the later years of your children's lives as well as in the early ones.

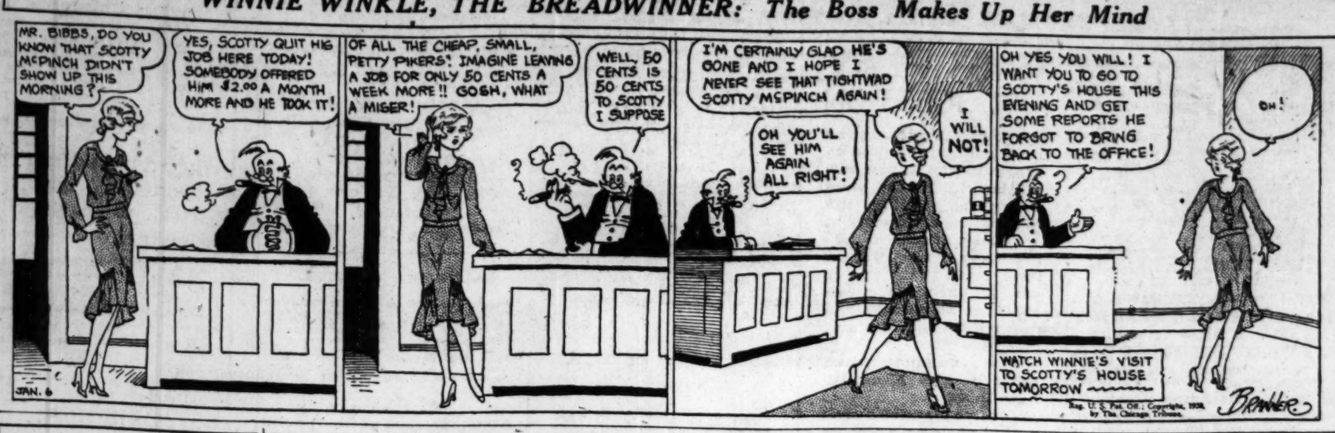
WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: The Boss Makes Up Her Mind



White and Gold for Dancing Debutantes

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—The goings on about town during the holidays run largely to "dancings," as the French so quaintly call them. Younger set and older set, everybody dances, and this season it is easy to tell the smart matron from the chic debutante. By their dress you shall know them, for with the passing of the flat, paper doll silhouette, mamma no longer dresses like daughter.

It is daughter who has the problem. Styles are made for grown up women, and the dancing debutantes in Paris are "being their ages" in special clothes made for them, a sort of codicil to the will of fashion, as it were, but quite as smart as any.

One of the favorite debutante color schemes for the dance dress, and coat, too, is white and gold. Lamé is fashionable as a material for all ages of women, but for the younger set Paris mixes this metal brocade so that there is more white and less gold. Just a fine frost of gold over a white silk is the best kind of material, and according to the Paris experts, one of the smartest. White, all by its lone is, of course, irreprochable, and the favorite evening color in Paris.

Paris will have none of those trailing, tightly fitted frocks for the young girl. Shorter frocks, and particularly for dancing, are the correct things, but shorter means anywhere from insteps to twelve inches from the ground.

Simple blouses with a high waistline and a rather high decolletage, attached to skirts that are either slender or very, very wide, make the ideal dance dress. Short coats, to be worn indoors, make ensembles of these frocks, because so much of the younger set's dancing is done in the public eye.

Such an ensemble is shown in the accompanying sketch. Chantal designed it, and the dress of white and gold has a simple, short bodice, with two white chiffon ruffles below, and the straight skirt is widened by cascading panels of white chiffon at front and back.

The white velveteen coat is draped to the left shoulder and knotted, and attached on the hip, so that it may be worn to dance in if you like. There is a long scarf end to be thrown over the shoulder as shown.

BOY'S SUIT.

Boys are sure to like wearing this copy of an English sack suit. The coat has an open round neckline and buttons down the center front with rounded corners at the lower edge. It has two pockets at each side and a small pocket above. The straight shorts are pressed in creases down the front. Tweeds, wool jersey, twills and velveteen are suitable materials.

The pattern, No. 3230, comes in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 35 inch material with ½ yard of 35 inch lining.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Strangers Speak Sometimes.

"Dear Miss Blake How could I introduce myself to a girl I have never spoken to? A. J. V."

I shouldn't try it. She would repulse any advances made by you, for after all you're a stranger to her.

Refuses Him Kiss.

"Dear Miss Blake: I take a girl out and give her a good time, but when I ask for a kiss she refuses. Don't I deserve at least one?

"FRANK."

Unless she proved an enjoyable companion she wouldn't be favored with your attentions, would she? So I think you're fully compensated without the kiss.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Linoleum to Lighten Housework.

"I wonder if any of your readers might have a piece of linoleum, 9x12, that would cover a rough board floor. Mrs. E. is trying to bring up her four children alone since her husband deserted her. The linoleum would make the housework easier for the mother as well as furnish an incentive for keeping the home more attractive."

"L. A."

With a family of this size to care for, one should employ all the time and work savers possible. Can you donate the piece of linoleum you are about to discard or replace which would be such a help to this mother?

New Year's Just Started; Let's Make It Count!

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Into a New Year now—and where are you going with it? On—just the same old way? Or, have you plans that you honestly propose to carry out?

Looking back over last year, isn't it shocking to think of all the things you promised you were going to do and the end of the year saw them not even started? Things that were going to help you educationally, things that were going to promote a wider social contact, things that were going to better insure your later, and maybe lean years? Things that promised to make your life richer, fuller, better?

Three-sixty-five days gone in 1929, with so little on the credit sheet And gone they are! All for lack of planning ahead they stand as wasted days, for the most part. All for lack of initiative, and because of that grisly habit of putting off and off.

Well, none of us is exactly without sin. We can all look back over the last year and accuse ourselves of having indulged in the easiest way of drifting, loafing along, not forcing ourselves to get out and go places, see things, hear things, get our interests involved in something beside our own self-bounded concerns.

So here's the start of another year, and life is good in the way it gives us another chance and still another. And NOW still another.

A woman was complainingly accusing her husband of "nothing ever happening in her life." Now, persons in whose lives nothing happens cannot blame a mate, a parent or a child. Mothers have a particularly annoying way of pointing this nothing-happens-to-me finger at daughters. Unfairly often, with the daughters the breadwinners and with what time they have left after working hours trying to fit themselves as better breadwinners.

If nothing interesting happens in one's life it is nobody's fault but the one to whom it happens. It's your duty and my duty to make things happen if we don't like the way they are going. And nothing happens to either one of us if we sit moaning and whining around the hive.

So, here's a new year for us to experiment with. We have to remember, though, that nothing interesting will happen to us if we don't make ourselves interesting enough to have it happen.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Bill is not yet 3, but he is an ardent football fan. He knows many of the players by name and never tires of seeing pictures of his favorites in the newspapers.

Yesterday poor little Bill broke his leg, and when I told him how sorry I felt, he looked up and said: "Tim Moynihan broke his weg, too."

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Rolling and Kneading Pastry.

To tell how to face squarely the pie crust problem would take about two or three thousand words. The reason is that it is harder to tell how to behave than what to get. Inevitably people try to knead pie crust. If they have done that, then they must surely let it rest a while to recover or, more correctly, to relax. The lawyer understands how great the importance of a conjunction of even a comma may be in a will or contract. The pastry maker ought to have some such discipline to make her note, as carefully as the lawyer must in his work, the conjunctions and commas in a recipe.

By the way, I should like to air my views about the study of geometry for the minister, or the study of English literature for the engineer. Whatever we study we largely forget, as far as the content is concerned, but the discipline we get in studying anything like Greek or Latin or geometry sticks in the shape of ability. Yes, trained ability along any line counts when you are trying to make pastry.

Let us glance at some pie crust recipes to illustrate the need for careful reading, and perhaps to help the cause of pie. The first one I look at says "Work," and then "Roll out." The next one says, "Make a paste." In neither recipe is there the word "Knead." A third recipe says in regard to the ingredients, "Mix quite stiff," and then, "roll out." In this last recipe the puff paste method was followed, and the rolled out dough was spread with butter and folded and rolled again, and then buttered and folded and rolled again.

The popular Danish pastry is made of raised dough rolled out. A raised dough requires kneading, but you cannot roll it just after you have kneaded it. It must rest and rise again, then you may roll it. A pie crust or cookie dough that has rested and been chilled will roll out beautifully, whereas when it is just mixed with almost inevitable kneading—instead of good squeezing—it will curl and shrink under the rolling pin.
